Washington, Dec. 3.—The President's Message to Congress, to-day, says that the resistance to the General Government having exhausted itself, the first question was, whether the territories within the limits of the States which attempted to secede should be held as conquered territories under military authority emanating from the President; but he considers that the military government established for an indefinite period would have offered no security for the suppression of the discontentment, would have divided the people into vanquishers and vanquished, and envenomed their hatred rather than restored their affection. The true theory is, that all pretended acts of secession were, from the beginning, null and void. States cannot permit treason in the individual citizen who may have committed treason in the attempt to secede and place their States in a condition where their functions were suspended but not destroyed; but if a State refuses to permit the Government there is more necessity that the Government should maintain its authority, and as soon as practicable, resume and exercise all its functions. On this principle he has acted and gradually and quietly, by almost imperceptible steps sought to restore the right full authority of the Government and of the States. To that end, Provisional Governors were appointed. All parties engaged in the late terrible conflict, must work in harmony was not too much to ask; that on the one side the plan of restoration shall proceed in conformity with a willingness to cast the discord of the past into oblivion, and that on the other hand, the evidence of security in the future maintenance of the Union shall be put beyond any doubt by the ratification of the proposed anti-slavery amendment to the Constitution. This amendment being adopted, it would remain for the States to resume their places in the two branches of Congress, and thereby complete the work of restoration. The President says he has no authority to make freedmen electors; that remains with the States. They can decide whether it is to be adopted as a condition or introduced gradually with conditions. Good faith, however, requires the security of the freedmen in their liberty and property, the right to labor and reap the first return of their labor. The President says that it will be his constant aim to promote peace and amity with all foreign nations. He thinks all of them are animated by the same disposition. The accordance of belligerent rights to the insurgent States was an unjustifiable act. Great Britain cannot be justified. She built ships, furnished men and material of war to the insurgents. Justification for this cannot be sanctioned before the tribunal of the world. At the same time he does not advise at present, an attempt at redress by acts of legislation. The future friendship between the two countries must rest on a basis of mutual justice. We have wisely forbore as became the propagandists of Republicanism, but it would be a cause of great calamity to them, and breach of good government, should any foreign power challenge the American people to its defense against foreign interference. He relies on the wisdom and justice of those powers to respect the system of non-interference which has so long been sanctioned by time.

New York, Dec. 5.—The report of the Secretary of the Navy suggests a thorough survey of the Islands on the Pacific coast, and the enlargement of the Navy Yard at Mare Island, San Francisco. The number of blockade runners and other vessels captured during the war is 265. The Secretary intimates that the expense of the navy to the end of June, 1866, will be nearly $24,000,000.

Washington, Dec. 4.—The following was introduced by Mr. Sumner, in the Senate, to-day:

Resolved, That in order to provide proper guarantees for security in future, so that peace and prosperity shall surely prevail, and the plighted faith of the Nation be preserved, it is the duty of Congress to take care that no State declared to be in rebellion, shall be allowed to resume its relation to the Union till after satisfactory performance be given, upon several conditions, which conditions by precedent, must be submitted to popular vote, and sanctioned by a majority of the people of each State respectively, as follows: Complete re-establishment of loyalty as shown by honest recognition of the Union, of the Republic, and the duty of allegiance to all times without equivocation of any kind. Complete suppression of all oligarchical pretensions and complete enfranchisement of all citizens, so that there shall be no denial of rights on account of color or race, but justice shall be equal before the law. Rejection of the rebel debt, and at the same time adopt in just proportion the National debt and national obligations to the Union soldiers with solemn pledges never to join in any measure direct or indirect, for their repudiation, or in any way tending to impair national credit. An organization or educational system for the equal benefit of all, without distinction of color or race; choice of citizens for office, whether state or national, of constant and undoubted loyalty; whose conduct and conversation shall give assurance of peace and reconciliation. Resolved, That in order to preserve these essential safeguards, without which national security and national faith will be imperiled, States lately in rebellion cannot be precipitated to political independence, but they must wait until these conditions are in all respects fulfilled.
