WAITING.

They comforted me when the Winter Stood grim in his cloak of snow. Saying, "Wait till the sweet Spring comet, O wait till the dowers blow, For then will the war be over, And then he will come, you know!

So I said to my soul, "Be patient, Nor strive with resistiss fate; Soon, soon will the lovely Spring time Open her emerad gate; He will come with the early blossoms— Be patient, my soul, and waiti"

Spring came in her blushing beauty,
With a crown on her young brow set,
And her fair bands full of flowers,
But her beautiful eyes were wet
With tears for the war unended—
My love was not coming yet.

Then I murmired, half repining,
"We named it a trifle soon—
He will come with the queenly Summer,
He will come with the regal June?"
And this is the Summer noon?

In the hush of my desolate chamber, Where only One can see. I cry, "O, moreful Father! How long shall this parting be? How long must I sit in sorrow Before he will come to me?"

An honest but discouraged miner says that gold digging is a slow kind of suicide.

An ancient abode of the First Emperor, the Villa de San Martino, in the Island of Elba, has just been sold to a rich French speculator.

Ir is feared that the subterranean railways in London will be the cause of much sickness. A large portion of the ground under Paris is occupied by the Catacombs, where millions of human beings have been buried.

Ir is stated by manufacturers of artificial wooden limbs, that they make eight left legs for soldiers to two right, and about the same proportion of right arms to left ones, showing that about four times as many lose left legs as right, and four right arms to one left.

Over $100,000 in money, belonging to the wife of the rebel General Ewell, and sent to St. Louis for investment just before the war, was seized last winter under the confiscation act. The district attorney has just received an order from the Attorney-General to restore it.

FIFTY thousand Americans are now sojourning or traveling in various portions of Europe. They are scat-tered among the various gay capitals of that continent or the thousands of rural or less crowded resorts rendered interesting by history, song or story These Americans, it is estimated, are spending in Europe at the rate of one hundred millions of gold per year.

An armless man named Dennis, em ployed as watchman at the Washington Navy Yard, recently disappeared suddenly, to the surprise of his many friends, leaving them to suffer by defalcations to the amount of $10,000. His affliction had secured for him the patronage and confidence of the community, being agent for the property holders and custodians of several funds.
