

Daily Mountaineer.

SATURDAY MORNING, JAN. 6, 1866.

RAPHAEL SEMMEL, of Alabama piracy notoriety, is doing business at Natchez, Miss.

The discoverer of nicotine, Chevalier Gaspar Cerioli, died recently at Cremona.

The S. F. Bulletin says: The war is over; the rebellion has been crushed; the South is prostrate at our feet. She asks us to help her up; shall we do it? or shall we tread her down in the mire?

A PARTY of surveyors are marking out a road from Montana to the mouth of the Mussell Shell river, on the Missouri, and expect to obtain goods that way next summer.

The people of Walla Walla are finding out that to have a jail full of criminals, and no courts to try them, is even a heavier tax than the aggregate paid in Oregon. Hence, the project of annexation is gaining ground among them.

The Idaho Legislature has repealed the statute appropriating $2,500 a year additional pay to the District and Supreme judges of that territory. They ought to be paid at least $5,000 a year by the General Government.

The Idaho World says that Gov. Lyon's message to the Idaho Legislature "opens with a thrilling paragraph of high-toned eulogy to the flag of our country which we all adore." The World has doubtless been taking lessons from His Catechism of the Date.

RECRUITING for the Papal army is actively going on in Switzerland, and as yet the Federal Government has offered no opposition to the enlistments. The Papal army now consists of 7,568 men, 2,244 of whom are gendarmes.

LOUIS KOSSUTH has, through the medium of his son, returned a touching reply to an address of condolence upon the death of his wife, forwarded by a number of his friends in Glasgow. The same says that M. Kossuth is completely overpowered by his loss.

A MAN in Idaho tried the experiment of passing "pure red sand" for clean Boise dust, and it was taken without hesitation. The currency in that territory is in a very bad condition, between metal without real gold in it, and red sand with no kind of metal in it.

SOME of the Oregon papers having asserted that Patterson was acquitted of the charge of murder in killing Pinkham, by a jury of "brother Democrats," the World denies the charge; and states that the jury was composed of persons of various shades of political opinions.

GARIBOLDI lately caused two of his horses to be sold in Genoa, on the public market place. King Victor Emanuel having learned what was to occur, gave orders to purchase the two animals, which brought 3,000 francs, and then offered them as a present to the General. The latter, however, positively refused to receive them.

FOR THE CASCADES.—The steamer Idaho was yesterday chartered by some of the travelers who have been detained here, with the understanding that she is to descend as near the Cascades as possible. Among those who started below, are several families who have been detained here for periods ranging from one to three weeks.

THE MAILS.—Mr. Waldron, the postmaster at this place, has made a requisition on Quartermaster Catley at Fort Dalles, for pack-mules to bring the United States letter mails from the Cascades. These mules will go down upon the steamer as near the Cascades as practicable, and from thence the mails can be brought up to Craite's Point, and then packed to this city.

TREASURE.—Well, Fargo & Co. yesterday sent by the Idaho twelve hundred pounds of treasure; of which seven hundred and fifty were gold dust and gold coins, and over four hundred and fifty pounds in silver bricks, of the aggregate value of $225,000. There were also very large sums of money in private hands, the value of which cannot be even approximately estimated. There is still detained in town considerable sums of treasure destined for San Francisco.

GRANT, SHERMAN AND OTHERS ON NEGRO SUFFRAGE.

In a recent speech delivered by Gen. Francis P. Blair, at St. Louis, he made the following remarks, which appear to be sufficiently authenticated to set at rest any question in regard to the opinions of Gen. Grant and Sherman and other eminent commanders of Union army on the negro suffrage question:

I had the pleasure of reading the other day a declaration made in Madison, Wis., by Senator Doolittle, where he proclaimed that he had a conversation with Gen. Grant, and that Gen. Grant had given him permission to declare at the meeting which was held at Madison, "he was opposed to negro suffrage in the South; that he believed it fraught with danger to the country." So also Sherman, who stands next to Grant in rank, and certainly next to Grant in everything else that constitutes a great and good man. He is also opposed to negro suffrage. Senator Doolittle, in the same meeting and at the same time, declared that Gen. Sherman had authorized him to make the statement of this kind and to this effect. He then held up these two great and glorious men—the men who, under God, have saved our country from its perils—whose wisdom and courage have been the means of sustaining our country in its desperate straits. These two men were held up before the people of Wisconsin, and Senator Doolittle made the demand whether the brave guards are entitled to more respect than these great military chieftains. I could name also Sheridan and Thomas, and every man who has distinguished himself in the army and in the navy, by service to the Government during the war; and I venture to predict and assert that they are upon the platform occupied by Grant and Sherman on the subject. If you will find me a Maj. General or any other kind of a General who has done nothing for his country, but stayed at a safe post during the war, and who has made a failure in every enterprise he has undertaken—if you meet with such a man you can set him down to a dead certainty that he is a Radical. Look at the illustrious John Charles Fremont! The equally illustrious Ben. Butler! and that other distinguished General who once commanded the Department of the State of Missouri, and who, like Mahomet, went to war on the back of a camel, Curtis! Now, gentlemen, there are reasons for these things. When these gentlemen failed in a military line, all they had to do was to make a proclamation freeing somebody else's negroes that they were not able to free; but they had to set somebody else's negro free, and that would make amends with the Radicals for their failures in a military line, and everything else. Yes, and it would make amends for cotton trading, and for the system of bringing California plunderers over here to build fortifications at five times their value, and every other species of corruption. But Gen. Grant, Gen. Sherman, Gen. Phil. Sheridan and Gen. Thomas marched down and set those negroes free that these fellows made proclamations about, and for them none of them would have been free.

Gen. Blair has of late formed new political associations, but his patriotism is beyond all doubt, which is witnessed by a military record unsurpassed, and scarcely equalled, by that of any officer of his grade derived from civil life. He has ever been consistently opposed to the institution of slavery, and dared to own his faith and practice it, while such men as Butler and Dickinson were playing into the hands of the men who afterwards tried to dismember our Union. On the simple question of the truthfulness of the statement in relation to the views of Grant and Sherman, it is sufficient that Mr. Doolittle has said that it is so; his word is sufficient, and it is to him and his patriotic and conservative co-laborers in Wisconsin that the Union party were indebted for its success in the general canvass of the State last fall. Those who were known as radicals, and who there, (as elsewhere,) claim a monopoly of patriotic emotions, attempted to defeat the party by calling a convention to adopt a new platform and put forward new candidates. This was fortunately prevented by the exertions of Gen. Fairchild and Senator Doolittle, and victory perched upon the standards of the Union party.

In this State an attempt has been made to put the Union organization on the basis which Sumner and Wade have laid down, and in consequence a profound feeling of apprehension has been produced among its members.

It must be apparent that an issue of this character will thin the ranks of the Unionists so as to seriously imperil the fortunes of the party in the coming June election. Indeed, after it became plain that there was to be no enlargement of the franchises of the colored people in the Northern States, it also seemed impossible to demand new privileges for them from the South with any show of consistency.

APPLES are dearer in Boston, than ever before in the fall. At retail they are about three times the average price of oranges.

THE IDAHO JUDICIARY.—While it is highly desirable that the judiciary should be composed of persons uniting high legal abilities and undoubted honesty, it is not quite certain that some of the proposed changes are all for the better. In the case of Judge Alexander Smith, it is very sure that he is not qualified by study or practice for the high position which he holds. Judge Kelly never attained to that eminence at the bar which entitled his opinions to that weight so desirable in judicial decisions; but we are pretty well assured that his removal is sought solely on account of one decision, recently made in a mining case of great importance. Some means ought to be taken to prevent the appointment of a judge for the sole purpose of making simply an adverse decision for the benefit of counter-claimants in the same case.
