

Daily Mountaineer.

SUNDAY MORNING, JAN. 28, 1866.

The Pacific left The Emporium on the 18th inst., with $504,500 on board.

The Oregon City Woolen Factory is proving a great success.

JOHN MITCHELL received $75,000 of the Fenian money, to be used during his mission to Paris.

The loss of cattle this winter for the lack of food, has been considerable on Boise and Snake rivers.

The French are building a steel-plated steam corvette for service in the Pacific ocean.

The University of Virginia has two hundred and thirty students in attendance. Those institutions at the South are being rapidly re-constituted.

It will require over a quarter of a million of dollars to repair and re-light the light-houses on the coast of the rebellious States.

The democracy are said to have the intention to commence the publication of a daily paper at The Emporium.

The lower floors of the wharves in Portland are pretty much all under water, from the sudden rise of the Willamette river.

There are indications that Montana will receive a large accession of population from Nevada, the present season.

The remains of Simon Kenton, the famous Kentucky pioneer, have been removed from near Bellefontaine, Ohio, to Urbana, in that State.

The grand jury of the U. S. District Court at Knoxville, have found indictments numbering over nineteen hundred, for treason and giving aid and comfort to the enemy.

Some of the steamers on the Upper Willamette have been engaged in racing. The Statesman thinks it ought to be made a crime by law, as it is in fact, to do such things.

An insurance company is projected at San Francisco, to be based on a million of 730 bonds. The advantage derived from this kind of an investment, is that the capital stock will escape State taxation.

The rebel officer who drove off Gen. Franklin and his fifteen thousand men at Sabine, Texas, is now a bar-keeper at Houston. In his present employment, considering the quality of Texas whisky, he is creating greater havoc than while at the head of a division.

The Brides—The bridge across John Day, on the Walla Walla road, was swept away several days since. The stages, passengers and express matter from the upper country are stopped at that point. The bridge across Five Mile Creek, on the Des Chutes road is gone.

GEN. OAR, of South Carolina, expresses the hope that the General Government will yet pay for the slaves liberated by the war. The State authorities of Virginia are engaged in collecting statements of the losses incurred by the emancipation of the slaves, and also of the loss caused by the fugacious propensities of the late human chattels, with a view to procuring indemnity for them.

THE COLORED PEOPLE IN GENERAL

Nothing can better illustrate the versatility of the colored population than the various manifestations of character shown by them within the last four years. At the commencement of the civil war, the negro meekly implored justice from the white man. He was laughed to scorn by "yo fierce Democracie," and even the benevolent Lincoln informed him that he had better emigrate to the more congenial climes of Liberia, Sierra Leone and the Guinea Coast. Next, the African confiscated himself and brought the property in himself over to the Union lines. Next he is seen drilling in the awkward squad; an ebony caricature of his dashing white compatriots. At Yorktown, the rebels compelled him to load the cannon mounted on their works, under threats of being beaten to death with a cannon rammer; and on the other side, the Union soldiers drew fine sight on him as often as he appeared in the embrasures. At Camden, Port Hudson, Milliken's Bend and Morris Island, he fought with great dash and gallantry, and covered terror-stricken in the crater at Petersburg and the trenches at Haynes' Bluffs.

In Hayti the pure African revolts against the mulatto, and gets terrifically thrashed for his pains; and in Jamaica he is massacred under the pretense of being a barbarian; after having been petted for forty years by the very power that butchered him. In Abyssinia the African seizes Cameron, the British ambassador, and threatens to hang him, unless the British influence the Viceroy of Egypt to quit threatening the frontiers of that colored nation.

In Brazil and Cuba, the African is still a merchantable commodity; in South Carolina, he is shot under the supposition of being some species of game; in East Tennessee he shoots white men in the legs; in Louisiana, he shoots the tops of men's heads off, and in Georgia, he shoots them thro' the bowels—thus illustrating the three phases of modern chivalry. He manifests a propensity for voodooism at Mobile; is judge, jurymen and legislator in Jamaica; member of the Common Council in Victoria; rides in street cars like white folks in San Francisco; is mobbed, robbed and murdered in New York; teased and pampered in Boston; fights duels in Paris; and after filling every position in life, from the summit of human ambition to the abject, crouching slave, is nothing but a "nigger" after all.

In the United States he has had the advantage of living with a strong race of men, from whom he appears disposed to learn to take care of himself. When his history in our country is written, without fear or prejudice, it will show that he was stolen from his native wilds to become a slave on this continent; that he worked two centuries for his board and clothes; was denied the gratification of every higher inspiration; that the whites fell out and fought about him; that he was made to fight in a war which he had done nothing to commence, and to violate a cherished principle of his nature by shooting white men. After taking up arms for a country, where he hoped to be allowed a participation in the benefits of liberty, he was sacrificed with unexampled selfishness by the Unionists, and often massacred with fiendish glee by the rebels. Between the two, his prospects are yet scarcely brighter than his past.

ROAD FROM MONTANA TO MISSOURI.

The project of a road from Montana to the Upper Missouri river begins to assume shape. An expedition sent out to prospect the road has returned. The Montana Post says:

Capt. Ray W. Andrews, the leader, reports the road from Mussel Shell to Helena as being under 200 miles in length, and probably not more than 180. The wood, water and grass along the line is splendid; the levels are low, and only one easy crossing of the Belt range of mountains to be encountered. The river running along the road for many miles is called Pemberton creek. The company will spend from $10,000 to $12,000 on the line, in order to have it opened for travel by next spring. A site is laid off for a town, to be called "Kereheval City;" ranches pre-empted and deeded to the company, and every preparation has been made to insure a successful start in the much needed enterprise of establishing a town at the permanent head of navigation on the Missouri.

The following is the list of Territorial officers lately elected for Washington Territory: Auditor, J. M. Murphy; Treasurer, Benj Harnard; Librarian, S. N. Woodruff. The military offices were filled as follows: Mr. A. G. Tripp, Adjutant General; Mr. McAnuliff, Commissary General; and J. M. Murphy, Quartermaster General.

The Democratic State Convention will assemble at Portland on the 5th of April. The basis of representation is one delegate for every seventy-five votes cast for McClellan; one for each county, and one for every fraction of thirty-eight. It is recommended that the county conventions be held on the 22d of March.

The Forrest divorce case is again in the courts. Forrest appeals to the Supreme Court of the United States for relief against the action of the New York courts, on the ground that his marriage occurred in England, and that the rights of neither party under the contract can be adjudicated by a State Court.

SOME ladies in Louisiana made a proposition to the Legislature to present the State with a stand of colors. At first the proposition was accepted, but when the fact transpired that the ladies were of the colored persuasion, the ideas of the legislators were of a different complexion.

DRINKS are raised to fifty cents each in Virginia. The Bacchanalians are "indignant over it."

Mr. William Birnbaum respectfully informs his patrons, and more particularly the ladies of this city and vicinity, that he will sell at private sale, at auction prices, at his store on Main street, the balance of his splendid stock of Watches, Diamonds, Jewelry and Fancy Goods. As this will be the last opportunity to purchase, the ladies and the public are invited to call.
