"I CALL YOU."—Not long since, an eminent divine in the State of Illinois, (it won't do to mention dates, places or names,) visited a distant town for the purpose of preaching the dedicatory sermon in a new church. Court was in session, and on Saturday evening the judge and lawyers congregated together in a room, and amused themselves by card playing and story telling. The divine, at the request of F., a lawyer, visited the room. Coming upon the ground so suddenly, they were unable to hide their cards and whisky. The divine looked on awhile and then, raising his hat, invited the gentlemen present to attend church next day and hear him preach. This they agreed to do, and Sunday found the judge and lawyers in the "amen corner." The sermon over, the minister announced, "friends, the citizens of this town have built a fine church, there is still $1,500 due. We propose to raise the money by subscription to-day, and eyeing the judge, "I go one hundred dollars, who goes better?" The judge, glancing at the lawyers, slowly responded, "I see your hundred." "Thank you, brother," says the divine, "will any one raise it?" looking at the same time at lawyer No. 1. The lawyer saw that he was in for it, and quietly responded, "I go a hundred better," and so on through the list. The divine raked down the bar and their money, until the scene closed by a sharp shrill voice announcing, "I see the last hundred and call you!" Our readers can imagine the astonishment of that congregation. We venture, however, that those lawyers will not invite the divine to witness a "social game of whist," where men "see" each other, "go it blind," and "call" the hand.

B. L. BRIDGES, formerly a member of the Washington Territory Legislature, from Walla Walla county, was recently shot and severely wounded at Seattle, by the mother of a girl towards whom Bridges was "sweet." The mother forbade the house to "Ned," but he would come and see the girl—consequences as stated. Those old dames are decidedly suspicious at times.

THE adoption of the greenback currency in Nevada threatens the moneyed men of San Francisco, with considerable loss, by being compelled to receive the depreciated paper.
