SKINNING GEN. BUTLER'S HORSE.—About six months ago, while in the Dutch Gap canal, General Butler received information that his favorite horse, Almond Eye, had been accidentally killed by falling into a ravine. Upon the departure of the informant, he ordered an Irishman to go and skin him. 'What! Almond Eye dead?' asked Pat. 'What's that to you? Do as I bid you, and ask no questions.' Pat went about his business, and in an hour or two returned. 'Well, Pat, where have you been all this time?' 'Skinning the horse, yer honor.' Does it take nearly two hours to such an operation? 'No yer honor; but then you see it tuck 'bout half an hour to catch him.' 'Catch him! Fire and furies! was he alive?' 'Yes, yer honor; and you know that I could not skin him alive.' 'Skin him alive! Did you kill him?' 'To be sure I did! You know I must obey orders without asking any questions.' Gen Butler eyed his servant with such a malicious look that Pat thought he meditated skinning an Irishman in revenge for the death of his horse.

A London ship-builder has invented a water-chariot, a boat or ship on rollers. It will carry both passengers and freight; is sustained above the water level by the buoyancy of rotary hollow drums or cylinders through which the axles or shafts revolve by the propulsion of steam or other power, and is peculiarly adapted to the use of small craft, entering shallow rivers and creeks where ordinary vessels cannot pass, owing to the construction of their keels.

British Honduras has been nearly drowned out by the recent heavy rains which have ruined the crops and drowned most of the live stock. The coolie laborers introduced there have either died, committed suicide or been hung for murder, and the country is generally in a bad way.

The Macon Journal and Messenger says, "so unsatisfactory have been experiments with free negro labor on the Central road, that the Atlantic and Gulf road has been bringing white labor from the North."
