

On the occasion of the marriage of a young lady in one of the suburban cities of Boston, recently, Mrs. O'Blarney, who had been confidential wash-woman in the family for many moons, was honored with an invitation. She was on hand in season, dressed in gorgeous array and was assigned to an honorable seat in the parlor, where of she seemed determined to maintain the dignity, regardless of expense. While the guests were assembling, a young lady who was looking up her acquaintances in the party, came face to face with Mrs. O'Blarney, whom she knew professionally, and expressing considerable astonishment, inquired, "How did you come here?" Mrs. O'Blarney straightened up a peg and answered with so much emphasis that the whole company heard: "As I shall go to me grave—on me two feet!"

It should never be forgotten by those who profess to be judges of human nature, that the religious feeling may exist in its strongest form, unaccompanied by either amiability of disposition or honest of character; on the contrary, the most ferocious monsters that ever disgraced humanity have been the most superstitious in their religious feelings, the strictest in their pious observances. It is a lesson which all history teaches, and one which is every day lost sight of in our surprise at the exposure of some enormous villainy in those who are esteemed the pillars of the church.

PARIS is determined to be very elegant. It is determined to be provided with as many public gardens for recreation as an city in Europe. Gardeners are at present busily employed in arranging a large plot of ground at Montsouris, in the Fourteenth Arrondissement, adjoining the south western boundary of the Thirteenth. This will be the second public garden existing in the Fourteenth Arrondissement, a handsome garden having been opened three years since near the Mairie. Other gardens or pleasure-grounds are in course of erection.

A VERY well defined shock of an earthquake was felt in San Francisco on February 18th. The windows of the Flag office rattled and the gas burners oscillated in a very lively manner for the space of three or four seconds.

DENTAL NOTICE.—Being about to make a professional tour to the towns and settlements up the Columbia, I respectfully call the attention of those of my patrons who are in need of Dental Operations of any character, to the fact, so that they may have an opportunity to avail themselves of my services before my departure, if so desired. I will leave about the 20th of March, and return to this place to resume my practice, about the 15th of June. (271) J. W. GURLEY.
