

FACTS AND FANCIES.

The Omnibus relates the following story of a man, who, within the last few days, means to turn to account the popular apprehension of poisoners...

Mr. Blaze.—At Neva I am called off shortly after my arrival, by an athletic, scarlet-faced man, who politely says his name is Blaze.

"I have a little bill against you, sir," he observes.

"A bill—for what?" "Drinks?"

"Yes, sir—at my bar. I keep the well known and respected coffee house down street."

"But my dear sir, there is a mistake. I never drank at your bar in my life."

"I know it sir. That isn't the point. The point is this: I pay out my money for good liquors, and it's the people's own fault if they don't drink them."

His enormous body (around which Pack wouldn't put a girdle for $40) shook gleefully while I read this eminently original bill.

Years ago Mr. Blaze was agent of the California Stage Company. There was a formidable and well organized opposition to the California Stage Company at that time...

"You are some $1,600 behind in your accounts, Mr. Blaze," said the president, "but in view of your faithful and efficient services, we shall throw off $800 of the amount."

Mr. Blaze seems touched by his generosity. A tear stood in his eyes and his bosom throbbled audibly.

"You will throw off $800—you will?" he cried at last, seizing the President's hand and pressing it passionately to his lips.

"I will," returned the President. "Well, sir," said Mr. Blaze, "I'm a gentleman—I am—you bet! and I won't allow no stage company to surpass me in politeness..."
