ARE WE FRIENDS, OR ARE WE FORS

"Are we friends or are we foes?"
North and South the question goes—
Are we loss of are we friends?
Tell me how the moral tends;
Standing in our garb of blood,
On the soil where freemen stood,
We, the question, ask of those
Who world grind us neath their feet,
Are we feiends or are we foes?
Is the brotherhood complete?

By the blood that fell like rain
On Manasas trampled plais;
By the mem'ry—cherished still—
Of our dead at Malvern Hill;
By that hero's bones which aloop
In the valley, caim and deep;
By our fing, now laid to rest,
Typing all our bitter woes,
And by every nobler test—
We would be no longer foes.

We have known a tortaring hour,
We have fets the weight of power;
Pelt the blow which dashed the cup
As we held it trembling up;
Ours has been the fate which draws
Mourners round a conquered cause;
Middly as we may have fought.
With the fight our instred ends;
If our brotherhood is sought.
We are ready to be frieuds.

Would you have us crings and bow!— Lick the hand that struck the blow? And, above our storied graves, Cank our chains like willing slaves, Till the dead shall start with fear As the wailing sound they hear? If this pledge ye would demand, If ye'd have us bend thus low, Better were the fettered band, While our manhood thanders—No?

If ye'd set our hate aflame— Taunt us with our barning shame.

"Rebels" we mayinap have been,
But we've known no greater sin;
Let the choice then be with you;
Rising o'er our mutual wees,
Choose ye new betwith the two—
He it friends or be it fees?

NOT DEAD, BUT CHLOROFORMED .-The Shasta Courier is responsible for the following grave joke:

Between Yreka and Jacksonville, Oregon, there was a wedding last Winter-about the time of the deep snow, when Dr. Pelham and others of our citizens were corralled in in that cold country. The families of the respective parties to the marriage were in attendance, and the party was rather after the old-fashloned style, made up of neighbors, with their wives and babies, and everybody that happened to be stopping anywhere within accessi-ble distance. It was a pleasant affair, but, like all similar assemblages, it dispersed, and the bride retired to her chamber, first having whispered to the fond groom: "Don't come up for half an bour." This being the first request he obeyed, waited the time anxiously, nor let the hand of the ticking clock pass by a second the limit, ere he was gone to her with whom his life was joined. Rapping gently at the bridal chamber door, and receiving no reply, he entered unbidden, and saw his wife lying on the bed, arrayed in night-gear of purest white, pre-senting a picture of beauty, taste and loveliness beyond comparison. One step forward, a closer look, and the blood rushed back to his heart-she was dead! Loudly calling for help, father, mother, sisters, bridesmaids, all-all the house hold rushed to the room. The mother saw that her daughter still breathed; but horrors upon horrors I there lay the empty viol from which the intal draught had been taken. Messengers were dispatched for physicians; the patient was rubbed and sprinkled, and hopes were entertained of her revival, symptoms looking favorable. At this juncture, some one picked up a piece of folded paper from the table, on which was written, in the delicate hand of the fair young bride:

Be not alarmed, dear husband. Feeling that the occasion would be too much for my nerves, I have taken chleroform.

Your Own Wife.

A moment more, and the room was not so populous.
