

Daily Mountaineer.

THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 10, 1866.

JUDGE GILES, of Maryland, has decided that the military parole of a rebel officer does not exempt him from civil process upon a charge of treason.

On the 2d inst. a man named Jacob Ott, was severely injured by falling from a building upon which he was at work, at Tumwater, W. T.

THOMAS SMITH, who was tried and convicted at the last term of the Circuit Court for Linn county, for the murder of his brother and wife, will be hung to-day at Aldany.

There are now 93 Generals in the army rolls, besides two on the retired list; one Lieutenant General, five Major Generals of Regulars, twenty six Major Generals of Volunteers, twelve Brigadier Generals of Regulars, and forty of Volunteers.

It is observed in New York that since the commencement of the year, the prices of domestic and foreign manufactures have fallen twenty-five or thirty per cent. A good many articles of cotton goods have fallen at least fifty per cent.

During the month of February last, 1,731 claims, involving the large amount of $14,206,826, were settled by the Fourth Auditor of the Treasury Department. The claims were divided into Navy Agents' and Paymasters' accounts, and pension, marine, naval storekeepers' prize and general claims.

When the President's veto message was considered in the Senate, Senator Johnson was in Baltimore. He was telegraphed to, and at once started for Washington on a locomotive; rode forty miles in forty-one minutes; reached the Senate Chamber and cast his vote to sustain the veto.

A rich and generous man at Salem, Mass., invited all the children to dinner, the other day, and each of his sons and daughters and sons and daughters-in-law found a check for $5,000 when the plates were turned. The grandchildren were remembered also, and the presents which he made amounted to $40,000.

NIPPED—The editor of the Eugene Journal who has recently returned from a trip east of the Mountains, told a friend in this city that from what he saw and heard up there, the Black ticket is a gone goose. He says the Democratic ticket will come down from there with at least 600 majority.—Portland Herald

We never told any person in Portland or elsewhere, that the Union ticket is a "gone goose" or that the copperhead ticket will "come down from there with 600 majority" or any majority. You invented every word of it. The Union ticket will be elected in the State by a handsome majority, notwithstanding the barefaced falsehoods to which copperheads are now resorting in order if possible to deceive the people.—Journal

Owyhee News—The Owyhee Avalanche, of April 28th, says, every day business is becoming more lively. The snow is leaving rapidly, and mill and mine owners are shoveling it off where large drifts accumulated.—The Lincoln, Cosmos and Mincar mills will start next week not to suspend again. Cosmos has been crushing Trook & Jennings rock, and is probably running now. The Oro Yino being the only accessible mine for teams at present, will supply all the mills. Upwards of forty stamps will be in operation before our next issue. Business is beginning to lift.

On the night of April 21st, forty-three horses were driven off by Indians from Jordan Valley—but twenty-nine were subsequently recovered. Indians have been operating on lower Owyhee, and towards Burnt river also.

Members of the Masonic Order in Owyhee are taking preliminary steps to organize a Lodge in Silver.

The Morning Star Mill cleaned up $14,000 within the past week.

The Jordan is booming with the melted snow. It interferes with creek mining, but the banks are being ground sluiced down at a rapid rate. Ditches that were dug parallel with and along the mountain sides for collecting snow water for washing the higher beds, are now full, and the water is being used day and night.

THE CANVASS.—The largest audience that ever assembled in Chapin's Hall, was there last evening to hear the opposing candidates for Congress discuss the political issues of the day. Mr. Mallory opened the ball by sailing into the antecedents of the Democratic party; charged them with sympathizing and giving aid and comfort to the rebels while in arms against the Government; charged Mr. Fay with openly advocating the right of secession, and denouncing every act of the Government to suppress the rebellion, as an usurpation of the Constitution. On the present question of the difference between the Executive and Congress, he sustained the President in his veto of the Freedmen's Bureau Bill, the appointing of military Governors in the Southern States, and with the exception of his action on the Civil Rights Bill, sustained the President in every act which tended to restore the Southern States to their former position. He read extracts from newspapers to prove that the resolution in the Democratic platform lauding the soldiers who saved the Republic, was a sham, and only intended to catch votes. Mr. Mallory spoke an hour, and according to agreement between the candidates, had the right to reply.

Mr. Fay started off by relating an obscene anecdote—one that was not fit to be repeated before any audience of intelligent men.—This he did by way of comparing the position of Mr. Mallory with the subject of whom he related the story. This was almost enough to disgust his hearers, without listening to him further. He said that Congress had no right to deny to any man who presented his credentials of election, a seat in that body; this, he said, was the position taken by President Johnson. He did not qualify it as did the President by saying any loyal man, and that Congress should be the judge of his loyalty. According to Mr. Fay's doctrine, Jeff. Davis or any other arch rebel should be admitted to a seat in the National Legislature upon the presentation of credentials from the State authorities. He sustained President Johnson in his veto of the two bills and in every other act that tended to create a rupture between the Executive and Congress; is in favor of taxing U. S. Bonds for State and municipal purposes, is opposed to the State Militia law; thinks the State ought to have no militia; that the United States should furnish all the protection that the State may require. He did not deny being opposed to giving a bounty to volunteers; but he said that it was a speculation among the State officers, and therefore his opposition. On the bond and militia questions he had considerable to say about cheese-knives, cinches, taxing the poor man for the benefit of the rich, &c.

In Mr. Mallory's reply he emphatically nailed the main questions advanced by Mr. Fay, and showed that his endorsement of President Johnson was a matter of policy and not a matter of fact. Mr. Mallory is too much for his opponent. Mr. Fay has an uphill job of it in trying to advocate the doctrine he attempted to expound last evening. The whole of his speech consisted in endorsing two acts of the President; favoring the unconditional admission of all members of Congress from the Southern States; the taxation of U. S. Bonds; the repeal of our State militia law, and Gov. Gibbs' cheese knife and cinch.

SUPPORTERS OF THE PRESIDENT.—Who supported Senator Johnson, of Tennessee, when he stood up nobly against the tide of secession that rolled through Congress? Did the Democratic party? Who sympathized with Mr. Johnson, when he was driven from his home, his property destroyed, and members of his family murdered by the hell-hounds of rebellion? Did the Democratic party? Who upheld Governor Johnson, when he was standing in the breach like a Spartan patriot, to wrest Tennessee from the grasp of treason? Did the Democratic party? Who rallied around the "poorish backwoods tailor," and as a reward for his fidelity, elected him to the second office in the gift of the people? Did the Democratic party? No: the Democratic party did not discover the virtues and statesmanship of Mr. Johnson, until the war in which he had sacrificed so much, and which it opposed so bitterly, had closed in glorious triumph for the Union; until the reins of the Chief Magistracy were in his hands.—Ex.

FIFTEEN men were dreadfully burned by the explosion of a pit of molten metal in London, not long since, caused by a drop of rain falling in it from the skylight.
