

Daily Mountaineer.

SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 12, 1866.

The material for a German paper to be printed at Portland, arrived on the Orizaba.

The Columbia river at this point is rapidly rising.

COMPANY "B," 14th U. S. Infantry, arrived on here last evening, en route to Fort Boise.

A son of Mr. Hon, residing in Southern Oregon, aged sixteen months, swallowed a small quantity of ley, and died from the effects of it.

The number of children in the State of New York between the ages of five and twenty-one years, as reported by actual enumeration and careful estimation, is 1,398,759; and of this number 916,617 have attended the common schools during the year, the average being more than one-third of this number.

We learn by stage last night, says the Idaho Statesman, that a man by the name of Austin came to his death yesterday at Sampson's mill, by falling upon the saw. The man was frightfully mangled, his head and neck being split open down to the shoulders by the saw.

The Oregonian notices the mysterious disappearance of Prof. Sayer, of the Portland Academy. This same Prof. Sayer mysteriously disappeared from here last fall. He opened a select school, and after he had collected the tuition money, in advance, he came up missing one fine morning. Don't be uneasy, he'll turn up.

MELBOURNE, in Australia, has a population of 120,000 inhabitants and is increasing rapidly. It has many of the aspects of an American city, American labor and American capital having added largely to its growth. American coaches, American wagons, American teams, American pioneers, American merchants and American ships are so common that, although in a minority as regards population, as an influence in enterprise the Americans are the ruling people.

MILITARY ITEMS.—From the Oregonian we learn that Capt. Small's Company G, 1st Oregon Cavalry, has been ordered to Fort Vancouver to be mustered out of service.

Capt. Lafollett, with his company of the Oregon Infantry, is reported on his way down from Camp Polk, but detained on the route by high water in the Deschutes.

Green C. Patton, lately promoted to a Second Lieutenant in the Oregon Cavalry, was mustered in as such at Fort Vancouver, on the 10th and assigned to Company B.

THE annual session of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows of the State of California commenced in San Francisco, on the 2nd instant. One hundred and twenty-two new members presented their credentials and were admitted. During the past year over 900 persons have been initiated into the Order, which now numbers 7,489 affiliated members, divided between 122 Lodges. The Order owns forty halls throughout the State, valued at $292,795, besides other property to the amount of nearly $500,000, exclusive of funds on hand in the different Lodges.

"J. W. S.," the editorial correspondent of the San Francisco Bulletin, writing from New York, April 3d, says of the President's proclamation of peace:

Read the President's proclamation of today, declaring the war at an end and peace absolutely restored. Note the record made by Mr. Lincoln and by Congress throughout from the beginning of the war to the end, and see how entirely consistent therewith is Mr. Johnson's proposition that the rebellious State are in the Union, and never have been out of it. If they have never been out of the Union, they are clearly entitled to representation in Congress, subject to no condition except that the representatives shall be thoroughly loyal men, and have been regularly elected—acts of which each house of Congress is for itself the supreme judge.

How vastly different is the position of President Johnson from that assumed by the democratic candidates, who pretend to endorse him. They favor the admission of all who present themselves for seats in Congress without questioning their loyalty; President Johnson favors the admission of loyal men only. Do they endorse his policy?

AN OUTRAGE.—We publish elsewhere an item from the Oregonian, that Capt. Small's Company of Cavalry, now stationed at Camp Watson, on the Canyon City road, is under orders to be mustered out of service. There is no mention made of the company being relieved by another, so we are left to infer that it is the intention of the military authorities to abandon the camp, and thereby take away the only shadow of protection our people have for travel on that road. We have thought for the past few years that the people of this section had been outraged enough by the sham protection they received from the military; but his last act goes to prove what we have often said, that Gen. Halleck is determined to even sacrifice the lives of our citizens in order to accomplish his speculative designs by depriving us of all the troops and placing them on the Chicago route to Idaho. In the face of the almost daily depredations that are committed on this thoroughfare, the withdrawal of Capt. Small's company should call for the indignation of the whole section. It is now time that this matter was taken in hand by the citizens of Wasco and Grant counties, and see if the men who control the military in this division, can with impunity aid in these murders and robberies by the withdrawal of the few troops now stationed at Camp Watson for our protection. It is only a day since we chronicled the stealing of a band of horses from the Warm Springs Reservation by the Snake Indians; and it is reasonable to suppose that when the troops leave the road, that the settlers will also be compelled to abandon the homesteads that they have labored for years to build up.

Let the committee appointed by the Protective Association of Grant county call a meeting of the citizens of the Dalles, to devise some means by which this evil can be remedied. A representation of the condition of the country, and the motives which no doubt actuated the military authorities in withdrawing these troops should be made to our delegation in Congress, and by them laid before the War Department. We do not believe that it is the intention of the Department to sacrifice the lives and property of one class of citizens to benefit another, and therefore this last act should be shown up in its true light. There is no time to lose now. This matter must be attended to.

THE WHITE BLUFFS ROAD.—There is scarcely a day that parties are not leaving here for Montana by the way of White Bluffs and Pend Oreille Lake; and the testimony of every one of them is that it is a good road, with plenty of wood, water and grass for camping purposes. About two weeks since a party of Californians, whom we mentioned as sitting out at the store of the Messrs. Baldwin, have been heard from. William Darwin writes from White Bluffs to these gentlemen, as follows: "We left the Dalles on Wednesday and got to the Yakima river on Saturday—Pells' Crossing. The road is good, with an abundance of grass. From the Yakima to White Bluffs is about forty miles by the wagon road or upper crossing. Parties coming from the Dalles had better keep this road. All that is wanted is proper guide boards, with the distances distinctly marked on them; and no one will have any trouble, as it is a good road for packers, cattle, or, in fact, any person going to the upper country." This is only one of a number of letters that have been received here from parties who have traveled over the road; and we only mention this to show what men who are entirely disinterested in the matter, say of it. It is, beyond a doubt, not only the best but the shortest route to reach the mines of Montana and Big Bend. A number of men started out yesterday over this route for Montana, and to-day a saddle-train of some twenty animals will follow, thus showing that the route is fast becoming known to the public; that no misrepresentations have been made in regard to it. There is another inducement which men bound for the upper country take into consideration, and that is the low prices at which horses are sold in this market. A good animal can be purchased here at prices ranging from $25 to $50; and we know that in no place on either side of the mountains can animals be purchased for anything near the same prices they can be bought for here.

BOYAKIN was last heard from at Marysville. He is lecturing on revelations.

CONSUMPTION.—This fatal disease is prevented by the timely use of Hays's Pulmonary Balsam. Give it a trial before it is too late. Sold by all druggists for fifty cents.
