

Daily Mountaineer.

MONDAY EVENING, MAY 28, 1866.

MAINE has still 1,800 men in the service.

An attempt was recently made to burn the State Prison, at Concord, N. H.

A strong effort is being made to revive the Breckenridge party in Kentucky.

There are nearly thirty-millions of acres of public land in the South open to settlement.

PORTLAND, Middlesex county, the banner town of 1865, makes a big bid for the same honor this year, showing a Union gain of 242.

The statutes of Tennessee prohibit negroes from keeping billiard and drinking saloons.—The validity of the laws will be tested under the Civil Rights Bill.

Hon. John P. Hale, present Minister to Spain, is an applicant for the position of U. S. District Judge, in New Hampshire, made vacant by the death of Judge Harvey.

The Franklin Oil Company in Tennessee, are meeting with good success. Tennessee papers profess to believe that State will go ahead of Pennsylvania on oil.

The Jewish Congregations, Beth Elohim, or "House of God," and "Shearit Israel," or "Remnant of Israel," at Charleston, are again united after a separation of twenty-five years.

A colored jury recently sat in a civil case at Augusta, Georgia. They gave a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of six dollars.—He thinks the jury did right. This is the first negro jury that ever sat in Georgia.

Gen. Sheridan requires passports from the New Orleans Provost Marshal for all persons departing thence for Vera Cruz, Tampico or Matamoros, Mexico. It is taken to be against Confederate colonists.

A New Haven firm has shipped a splendid carriage to Maximilian in Mexico. The carriage was lined with blue satin, and was known as the Landau style of carriage, and cost $2,500.

The candidates for the Legislature in this county will address the citizens at Chapin's Hall to-morrow evening. The canvass is getting interesting about this time. Everybody is at work.

A Richmond paper says Castle Thunder is being overhauled and transformed into a vast mercantile amphitheatre. We infer from the name that it is to be a place for contests between the "Bulls" and "Bears" of commerce.

The Hartford insurance companies have advanced their premium rates twenty-five and fifty per cent. on extra hazardous risks.—They have added but little to their surplus accounts the present year, on account of their numerous losses.

The American Union says the colored troops just mustered out at Chattanooga spend their money very freely. Many white soldiers exhibit the same kind of recklessness when mustered out, but it is never said that they ought to be enslaved for it.

CORK SHIP.—The Mobile, Alabama, papers report the arrival of a great curiosity at that city, a vessel made entirely of cork, which is lying at one of the wharfs. That she will never sink may be true enough, but the other claim of the Mobilians that she will last forever, is a little venturesome.

The Hartford Times says the expense of driving the piles for the foundation of Colt's pistol factory (on the site of the burnt edifice) will, with the cost of the timber for piling, exceed $60,000. The new edifice is to have a front of 500 feet, all of beautiful "pressed brick," with stone caps and facings; and the total cost of the new building must be about $250,000.

The Columbia river, from present appearances, will soon start the residents of Main street to hunt dry quarters. During Saturday and Sunday, the water rose about six feet, and at present it threatens to be on Main street by to-morrow. Should it continue to rise as at present, we may look out for a repetition of the high water scenes of 1862, and before many days. It is now about

THE CANVASS.—On Saturday last Messrs. Hogue, Kegel and Humason, candidates for the State Legislature, addressed the citizens of Fifteen Mile Creek precinct. Mr. Humason led off in a speech of near two hours in length, in which he labored hard to show that the Union party is opposed to President Johnson, and that it is a universal suffrage party; in fact, a disunion party; he utterly ignored the Democratic party but claimed the present organization in which he is working to be the Johnson-Seward party. He said that the former principles of the Democratic party were "dead issues," and have no bearing in the present canvass; that all should be forgotten, and the people rally now and put down this universal suffrage, disunion party, and support the nominees of the glorious "Johnson-Seward" party. He insisted that Congress should not question the qualifications of any person claiming a seat in that body more than his credentials so that if a known rebel presented credentials he should be admitted, no difference if elected by traitors.

Mr. Hogue followed in a speech of near the same length. He showed that the leaders of the Democratic party had rendered aid and comfort to the rebels during the war; that they believed in the right of secession; had pronounced the war a failure in the Chicago platform, and upon them, more than any other party, was the responsibility of the late war, and the present debt of the Government; that they are a party in favor of repudiation and opposed to protecting American manufacture. He successfully showed that the present Union party is not a universal suffrage party—that it is the only true Union party. He also maintained that the present Democratic party never did nor does not now endorse President Johnson, but despises both him and Mr. Seward and others whom they now claim to be Democrats. Mr. Hogue claimed that Mr. Nesmith was a true Union man and does not endorse the present so-called Democratic party; that he acted and belonged to the Union party; that we as a people are more indebted to Mr. Nesmith than all the rest of our delegation in Congress, and while he did not agree with all of Mr. Nesmith's policy, nor did he all of any man's policy in Congress, he believed him to be a thorough Union man, and would favor him for the position of U. S. Senator, all things existing as they do now.

Mr. Kegel made a short but truly patriotic, sensible and effective speech, expressing himself to prefer trusting men for high positions at our hands who had proved themselves true and loyal men during the war rather than those men who rejoiced over every rebel victory and Union defeat. He thought that Mr. Nesmith has proved a friend to our local interests; that he has claims upon us as a people that were deserving of consideration. He believed the Democratic party to favor repudiation; he held that a contract on the part of the Government was as sacred as a private contract; that the Gov't. had contracted with bond holders on the face of the bond not to tax them; and to do so, as is urged by the Democratic party, is nothing less than repudiation. Mr. Kegel referred to the late civil war; he said the people of Oregon had been free from its devastating scenes; had lived in peace and prosperity; but few of the sons of Oregon had been slain or wounded on the battle-field; our houses had not been dressed in mourning as those of our brothers in the Eastern States, and we should be thankful for these great favors and blessings, and should be ever willing cheerfully to contribute our small portion in sustaining this great, free Government. He thought Judge Humason had not made more than a stand off on his argument that the Union party could not endorse a part of the policy of the President and part of Congress, but must take either one or the other as a whole. The Judge had unwittingly done this same thing, as he had claimed the President and his policy as being Democratic policy, and at the same time endorses certain sections of the Civil Rights Bill, which the President had vetoed. Hence the stand off.

Messrs. Crandall and Ferguson followed in a few remarks, and the meeting dispersed. It will be seen from the synopsis of the speeches of the Union candidates that they both fully endorse Mr. Nesmith, and we have no fears but that they will be found to be true friends of that gentleman for the office
