COLDS MOST COMMON FORM OF SICKNESS

U. S. Public Health Service Points Out That Many Dangerous Diseases Follow in Wake.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 12.—The most prevalent illness in the United States is the common cold, a disease group included under one name and considered of such minor importance that vital statistics do not record the enormous number of persons who annually are subjected, according to the U. S. Public Health service. Remarkable as it may seem, the widespread familiarity with this condition has bred a contempt which hides its seriousness, yet when the sum total of the ravages committed by common colds is made, it becomes evident that instead of being a group of trivial affections, common colds must be classed as serious diseases.

The phrase "common colds" like "charity," covers a multitude of sanitary sins, and curiously enough, the name has been applied to a group of affections which far from depending absolutely on cold are frequently the direct result of living in close, overheated surroundings having a lower relative humidity than the driest desert known to man.

The word "colds" means an acute infection of the lining membranes of the nose, tonsils, throat and larger bronchial tubes. The process may be even more extensive and amount to a general infection of the entire body. All of the breathing apparatus excepting the smaller terminal portions in the lungs may be involved, and as a matter of fact the disease may, and often does, spread to these, thus producing pneumonia. In this connection it may be pointed out that pneumonia begins as a common cold. Colds do not produce tuberculosis, yet unfortunately what is considered as a cold may be in reality the first symptoms of the white plague.

The causes of colds are multiform and not entirely understood. In every case, however, they are dependent upon the growth and activity of living germs which are always received from other people. It is true, that almost everybody harbors disease organisms in the mouth and nose, and that these unfavorable conditions will produce a cold in the host. But these germs in every case were received from some other person. In other words, colds are infectious. It used to be thought that sitting in a draft or a prolonged stay in the swimming pool would produce a cold. This is erroneous, but the chilling of the body which the draft produces and the weakening of the vital forces caused by too long a swim, lower the powers of resistance and permit germs which have hitherto been harmless to their host, to produce their disastrous effects.

The bridegroom gave his occupation as a real estate dealer; the bride as a housekeeper. The groom was born in Japan, the bride in Michigan.

AOSTA, CHOSEN BY ALLIES TO RULE GREECE, COUSIN OF VICTOR EMMANUEL OF ITALY

Photos by American Press Association.

It was reported in Rome that King Constantine of Greece would be deposed by the allies because of his so-called pro-German sympathies, and the Duke of Aosta, a cousin of King Victor Emmanuel, would be placed on the Greek throne. This decision is said to have been reached at the recent conference of the entente leaders in Rome.

This action, according to report, has the full approval of the Venizelos faction and will be carried out under the leadership of the former premier.

The Duke of Aosta comes of a family of kings. Victor Emmanuel II, of Italy was his grandfather, Humbert I, of Italy was his uncle, Victor Emmanuel III, the present Italian ruler, is his first cousin. His father, Amedeo, duke of Aosta, became by election, for a short and stormy season, the king of Spain.

For a number of years the dazzling vision of the Italian throne itself was held before the duke's eyes. While his cousin, the present Italian monarch, was still the prince of Naples his health became so impaired that the duke was looked upon by Italy as the heir presumptive to the throne.

In the present war the duke has proved himself an intrepid general. Even before Italy had entered the European struggle he had been one of the first to place himself at the command of the minister of war. He led the Italian army in its drive on Trieste in August of last year. This advance swept across the Carso plateau, and before it Gorizia fell.

The Duke of Aosta is fifty-two years old. His mother was a member of the famous Flemish house of Merode, and from her he inherited a large fortune. A great part of his income has been cut off since the Germans occupied Belgium, in which country he owned coal mines and estates that yielded an income of $200,000 a year. He is an enthusiastic horseman and, like his brother, the Duke of Abruzzi, has been an eager and extensive traveler.

The duchess, like her husband, is enormously wealthy. She is a younger sister of the former queen of Portugal and a sister of the Bourbon-Orientalist pretender to the French throne. She became estranged from her husband when his prospects of ascending the Italian throne began to grow dim, and this fact is said to have been the incentive for her spending much time in Africa hunting big game. During the Turkish-Italian war in Tripoli she distinguished herself as a Red Cross nurse and has continued her activities in that line since the outbreak of the present war. The duke and duchess have two sons, Prince Amedeo, born in 1888, and Prince Aymon, born two years later. Pictures show the duke (No. 1), the duke and duchess (No. 2) and the duke with Prince Amedeo (No. 3).

COUNTY AGENT NOTES

Due to the frequent inquiries regarding the possibility of obtaining loans on the irrigated lands of Central Oregon in which the company maintains the first lien on the crop, the county agricultural agent received the following advice from Mr. W. W. Flannigan, secretary of the National Farm Loan Board:

"Answering your inquiry of recent date. The Federal Farm Loan Board has made no ruling as to the application of the Federal Farm Loan act to holders of land under irrigation or reclamation projects.

"As matters now stand, we are able to make simply the general statement that only those persons may borrow under the farm loan act, who are able to execute first mortgages on their lands. Determination as to whether or not you may borrow is a matter of law. If the indebtedness remaining against your land constitutes a first mortgage under the law, your would be prevented from borrowing unless you could use the borrowed money to wipe out the existing indebtedness.

"The Federal Farm Loan board is consulting competent legal counsel as the rights of entrymen under irrigation or reclamation projects to borrow under this system, and if it finds
