The Shevlin-Hixon Company. So critical has the car shortage situation become locally that it has become necessary for the Knapp-Cheney Company, operators of the box factory of The Shevlin-Hixon Company, to close down its plant for a week to enable it to relieve the congestion in its dry sheds and to make what shipments of stock for which cars will be available.

The suspension of operation, according to Manager G. W. Cheney, will probably continue for a period of only one week, during which time he believes that the congested condition of their shipping rooms will be relieved.

"For the last several weeks," said Mr. Cheney, "we have been able to get only about 25 per cent of the cars necessary to fill urgent orders. Business is good, but cars are not obtainable anywhere."

Three, and possibly four, summer camps will be established by The Shevlin-Hixon Company as soon as the winter weather breaks, according to Ernest F. Nichols, superintendent of the logging department of the company. The winter camp will probably break up into smaller groups early in May.

The growing of moustaches and near moustaches is becoming contagious around the offices of The Shevlin-Hixon Company.

General Manager T. A. McCann leaves tomorrow evening for a two weeks' trip to San Francisco.

Brooks-Scanlon Lumber Co. With no immediate relief in view, the Brooks-Scanlon Lumber Co. may be compelled to close down a part of its plant for a short time until shipments now on its books can be made and the store rooms cleared of the large amount of stock that is on hand. According to General Manager J. P. Keyes, the mill may operate only the day shift and the men in the dry sheds may work only eight hours daily. If it is found that sufficient cars can be had to warrant the using of the men in the shipping department on two shifts, while the mill is closed down, this may be done to relieve the situation.

Of the 300 cars that were needed last month to handle the company's shipping business, only 85 cars were received.
