Miliukoff Is American In Thought as Result Of His Residence Here

PAUL N. MILIUKOFF

Paul N. Miliukoff, the minister for foreign affairs in the provisional Russian government, has been one of the leading figures in the revolution. He is well known in America. In 1901 he was banished from Russia for political views expressed while a member of the faculty of the University of Moscow. He went to Chicago and became professor of Russian history at the University of Chicago. In 1906 Miliukoff was exiled to Siberia. He was guilty of liberal tendencies. He was in exile for two years, the result of which was his "History of Russian Culture," a justification of revolution. On his return to Russia he was re-arrested and led across the frontier into Bulgaria. A warrant of expatriation excluded him for two years. Miliukoff's answer was an immediate return to Petrograd, where he was again arrested and held in jail for five months without trial. When he was released he again went to Chicago. On his third visit to America, in 1906, he told interviewers that his speeches in the arena frequently were interrupted by some one shouting, "American" or "American citizen." He added, "So now I almost invariably begin my speeches by quoting something American."

Battle of Dorking.
The battle of Dorking was an imaginary battle. In 1571, at the close of the Franco-Prussian war, Englishmen were reminded by the quick work done by Germany over France of the possibilities of invasion, and Sir George T. Chesny wrote an interesting and instructive narrative called "The Battle of Dorking, or the Reminiscence of a Volunteer," in which he depicted the imaginary scene of a great battle on English soil, which was won by the Germans. In short, the battle was the product of a military man's imagination, but it was so well worked out and so vividly described that as long as the German armies were in France the mention of the battle of Dorking was enough to make an Englishman shudder.

A Nautical Explanation.
A New York woman, recounting her impressions of a trip abroad, said: "One thing at least I learned. That was the meaning of 'windward' and 'leeward.' The captain of the liner I crossed on explained this difference to me in a way that, if a little vulgar, was yet unforgettable. "'Captain,' I said, 'I never can tell the difference between the windward and the leeward. Explain it to me, will you?' "'Well, madam,' said the gruff old captain, 'if I were to spit to the windward and you were to stand to the leeward of me you would be a fool.'"

How to Carry Water.
If you want to carry a full pail of water any distance without spilling or to carry water from one room to another in a flat dish or tray you should always have something floating on it. If it is drinking water a clean saucer will do, and a flat piece of wood is the best thing for a pail. It is the little waves that arise from the water's lapping against the sides and then rushing to the other side that makes the water spill over. The doater stops this.—New York Sun.

His Regular Bath Day.
Prospective Boarder—What are your rates? Hotel Proprietor—Two dollars a day for single room, $2.50 a day for room with bath. P. B.—That is $14.50 a week. H. P.—No; only $14. P. B.—Yes, but I was counting Saturdays.—Penn State Froth.
