

RABID COYOTE BITES LOGGER

LESLIE VAUGHN SENT TO PORTLAND FOR PASTEUR TREATMENT, BUT DISEASE CARRIER IS STILL AT LARGE.

Leslie Vaughn, a faller in the employ of the Brooks-Seanton Lumber Co. at Camp Number 2, is in Portland taking the Pasteur treatment for rabies, while the mad coyote which attacked him, is still at large, escaping after being chased for more than a mile by Vaughn's fellow workers.

The woodsman was busily engaged at work with his saw, employees who were near report, when the coyote ran through a bunch of laborers, singled Vaughn out, and slashed viciously at his leg. Vaughn's first intimation of danger came when he felt the animal's bite.

The coyote turned toward another laborer, who promptly threw his ax at the brute, missing, but distracting the animal's attention. An unsuccessful chase followed.

A physician was quickly summoned and Vaughn's wound cauterized, but it was deemed advisable that he should avoid all risk by taking the Pasteur treatment.

Dogs at the camp are reported to have been fighting with coyotes within the last three days, and fear is felt that rabies may be spread in this way.

VAMPIRE OF THE OCEAN.

"Ironing" the Devilfish is a Mode of Flirting With Death.

"Ironing" the devilfish, the largest of all the rays and one of the largest creatures of the sea, means flirting with death. The devilfish is also known as the ocean vampire. Its scientific name is Manta vampyrus, and all these names tell something of its habits. It gets its name devilfish from the fact that projecting from either side of the head is a hornlike appendage which in reality is a detached part of the pectoral fin or wing. The horns, sometimes three feet long and freely movable, are used to bring food to its mouth.

These fins have been known to circle above the bow of a boat, lifting the vessel out of the water and deluging the occupants of the boat with gallons of water. When they flop back to the surface they make a noise that can be heard far off. Exciting? Dangerous? The sport is both. The only thing that saves devilfish hunters at a time like this is preparedness. Every man must be at his station, all must obey the will of the harpooner, and if a bit of luck is thrown in the manta is killed.

The devilfish gets its name of manta, meaning blanket, from the pearl divers of the Caribbean sea, who are of the belief that it devours people after enveloping them in its enormous wings.

The fish has prodigious strength and has been known to tow a hundred ton vessel far out to sea. An authenticated story is told of a manta that towed eight boats, lashed together, for hours until finally the crews were compelled to cut the rope and let the devilfish escape.

Its vitality is wonderful. There are records of specimens escaping after having been harpooned, lanced and shot many times with rifles of heavy caliber. It fights even after the brain and heart have been pierced. Death comes only when the spinal cord, back of the brain, is severed.—New York Sun.

TRAVEL IN THE AIR.

The Safety That Goes With Transportation by Aeroplanes.

It is a new idea that the aeroplane is a safe means of transportation in safe hands, yet it is an idea that we must firmly get into the popular mind. The average citizen is still frightened at the prospect of leaving the ground and having no support except the air itself. Yet at the speed which we expect an aeroplane to maintain—seventy or eighty miles an hour—there is no means of transportation that is so safe. The obstructions that cause accidents with trains and automobiles do not exist for flying craft. A locomotive has to follow a definite track, which may cause a frightful calamity. The aeroplane is not so circumscribed. Its tracks are wherever it wishes to go. There are no obstructions in the air—unless we regard "air pockets" as such—no bridges to cross, no mountains to penetrate, no signals to run by and no switches to be misplaced.

Or compare this new craft with the rough road of the automobile. The slightest mistake or even inattention on the part of the driver, going, say, forty or fifty miles an hour, may hurl the machine over a precipice or overturn it on an embankment. But such a lapse on the part of an aviator has no such deplorable results. There are no precipices to fall from and no obstructions to collide with.

The aeroplane is even safer than some forms of water travel. The motorboat, going at a speed of forty miles an hour or even slower, is a more risky form of transportation than an aeroplane. If such a boat strikes even a small obstruction, such as a floating plank, its side is punctured and it sinks in a few seconds. But there are no such dangers in the air.—Orville Wright in Harper's.

Marines. Marines—soldiers serving on shipboard—date back to the year 1664, when an order in council, dated Oct. 16, authorized 1,200 soldiers to be raised and formed into a regiment. More regiments were later on formed, and in the latter years of the French wars they numbered 32,000. The marines are today a feature of every navy, and in most countries officers of the marines are equal in rank with those in the army and navy.—London Chronicle.

Slaves of the Gown. Some women live in a state of perpetual preparation of wardrobe. They never seem to acquire one in any approach to completion, and they are always in the act of either planning or of obtaining some separate portion of one in such a way that it would seem as if they lived to and for no other end or purpose. The materials of which their gowns are made must be of the nature of Penelope's web.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Womanly Retort. "Women are terribly inconsistent," protested Mr. Kwibbles. "John," replied his wife, "you know the poet says, 'Consistency's a jewel.' And you told me yourself that much jewelry is not good form."—Washington Star.

The First Question. "Opportunity is at your door. Wants you to go with him." "Has he a car?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Ventriloquism. Ventriloquism was first described in 725 B. C. Greeks ascribed it to the operation of demons.

At the Movies

Bend Theatre
Mae Marsh will be featured Saturday night and Sunday matinee at the Bend Theatre in the charming story of modern Cinderella in the Triangle photoplay, "Hoodoo Ann." The poor little girl thought she was doomed to a life of drudgery—dish-washing and floor-scrubbing day after day. And when another was accused of murder because of her accidental deed things looked blacker than ever.

But there was a happier day in sight. She met HIM. And the grim dark sorrows of the past slowly faded away, and in the place of sadness was joy—a desire to live and be loved.

Mack Swain, in "Stork Delivery," will also be shown as the comedy film for the evening.

Singing Crickets. In Japan if one will leave the hotel and the tourist office and the cocktail drinkers and go out into the real native quarter there are enough things to interest any one. One old man passes with his load of crickets, which sing in hot weather and are kept in cages like so many canaries. These gentle creatures make a noise like a squeaky axle, and one hidden under the hood of a twelve cylinder car would subject the most careful chauffeur to scorn. They are caught with birdlime and make nice little pets, cheap to buy and not requiring gasoline for the upkeep.

Retributive Justice. The month's prize for the most atrocious joke goes to the Kansas editor who admonished his readers in the following words: "In order to combat the constantly soaring cost of living, we advise our readers to bludge food." It was a nice murder.—Michigan Gargoyle.

To Clean Flowerpots of Moss. After scrubbing soiled pots in water soak them a few hours once a year in ammoniacal carbonate of copper solution and new growths of moss will be prevented.

Life is a quarry out of which we are to mold and chisel and complete a character.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC
The publishers of the new directory of Crook, Deschutes and Jefferson counties desire to have it complete in every particular. If you have reason to believe you have been missed in enumeration, you will confer a favor by sending your full name, occupation and residence address, together with those of any adult members of your family to the Commercial club offices in the O'Kane building, and proper representation will be assured. The spirit of co-operation of the citizens of Bend has been so loyal that with this additional help, a full count will be certain.
