What have you done today to help win the war?

A FINE SCHOOL.

Peter B. Kyne, in the American Magazine, says: "I think that, of all the experiences and adventures I have had in my life thus far, those I gleaned during my 14 months in the regular army have had the most profound effect in shaping my destiny."

"The recruiting posters will tell you that a year in the army will teach your boy courage. It will. Also, it will teach him how to die, and in teaching him this will teach him how to live. And he will learn how to obey, in order that in the later battle of life he may know how to command; it will teach him democracy, and if, after he has learned to defend his country and himself, he is called upon to make practical use of his education for the benefit of posterity, he will learn tenderness and manliness and how to sacrifice without thinking about it. Yes, all pacifists to the contrary notwithstanding, he will learn these things, even while killing his fellow man."

"And if you show me a man who has been through active service and is now a pacifist and denies this statement, I will take the short end of a modest bet that his record in the War Department archives will prove him a malingering, on sick report when he wasn't in the guardhouse for being a dirty, careless, inefficient soldier. Military service in the United States army is a real job with variegated details, many of them unpleasant to some natures, but none of them degrading, and the army is the finest school in the world for teaching a boy courage, self-reliance, cleanliness and efficiency."

A PRETTY GOOD STATE.

Governor Withycombe, who ought to know, says that Oregon crops this year will not go better than 60 per cent. He also states that this is the lowest average crop record in Oregon for 46 years. That speaks mighty well for the Beaver state. There are very few states in the Union where, for a period of 46 years, the nearest to a crop failure has been 65 per cent.

Corvallis has a citizen however who goes the governor several years better. This colm called on Uncle Joe Yates the other evening. Mr. Yates is 84 years old and his mind is more keen and his intellect more active than that of most men at 40. Mr. Yates said that he has been farming in Oregon for 55 years and that this is the poorest year he ever saw. Of course, his experience has been confined to the Willamette Valley while the governor's testimony covered the entire state. But taking the evidence of either one of these Oregonians, either of which may well be taken as expert testimony, and we doubt very much that there is another state in the Union with so good a record for partial crop failure.—Corvallis Gazette-Times.
