

WEAVER AT SHORT STRENGTHENS SOX

By H. C. Hamilton,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The transfer of Buck Weaver back to his old position at shortstop in the White Sox lineup, with McMullin at third base, simply adds to the predominance the Chicago team enjoys over the Giants infield.

With Weaver at third base and Risberg at shortstop the Sox topped the Giants at second base, were overshadowed at shortstop, had a probable edge at first base and were stood off at third. Now the Sox have an advantage at second base and shortstop, a probable edge at first base and are topped only at third base, where it is considered by most persons that Heinie Zimmerman's experience and hitting ability places him far above McMullin, a youth.

McMullin may hold his own as a fielder with Zimmerman, although there isn't a third baseman in the game who can handle bunts and slowly hit grounders as Zimmerman can. It is certain that at first base to drop one of these in front of Zimmerman. He has the art of scooping up a grounder with his bare hand reduced to a science, and the strength of his throwing arm makes it almost certain he will get his man.

McMullin can't do that kind of playing—yet. But on the other hand, it has been men of just his type who have shown to such tremendous advantage in world's series contests. In the quartet of games the White Sox won from the Cubs back in 1906 it was youthful George Rohe who subbed at third base and was the hero of the series.

Weaver is a natural shortstop—the greatest in the game just now. He and Roger Peckinpaugh, of the New York Americans, simply eclipse other shortfielders now doing duty. Arthur Fletcher, though a brilliant hitter and a remarkable fielder, never could cover the ground or work with the speed of a Weaver. The transfer gives the Sox strength where most critics were inclined to believe they would be weak.

It was a lucky day that Clarence Rowland decided to switch his lineup and retain McMullin at third base.

AT THE MOVIES

Grand Theatre.

A number of Bluebird photoplays have been selected by the management of the Grand Theatre and the first of these will be shown Thursday. "A Kentucky Cinderella," presenting Rupert Julian and Ruth Clifford, is a five-act comedy drama. "Hell Morgan's Girl" and "Eagle Wings" were produced by the same people, and this picture is reputed to be superior even to these productions. The story is adapted from F. Hopkinson Smith's popular novel, "A Kentucky Cinderella," having been translated to the screen by Bluebird. Rupert Julian directed the feature and will be joint star with Ruth Clifford in the presentation billed for the Grand Theatre, when "Bluebird Day" is again celebrated. Locations for the early scenes were found in the Sierras, and for the reflections of Kentucky some beautiful vistas of Southern California serve as framing for intensely interesting scenes and situations. Mr. Julian and Miss Clifford will be supported by the best cast Bluebird ever assembled. Little Zoe Ray and Emory Johnson have been stars in earlier productions, and there will be such clever players as Gretchen Lederer, Myrtle Reeves, Aurora Pratt, Lucretia Harris, Frank Lanning, Harry Carter and Eddie Polo.

Liberty Theatre.

When the local theatregoers see popular Alice Brady in "Maternity" at the Liberty Theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday they will not only see one of the most brilliant and unusual photodramas ever filmed but they will also see the most startling and realistic fire scenes ever flashed on a screen. The big fire that comes toward the close of this big attraction, has a tremendous bearing on the outcome of the story. As the result of its effects upon the woman who participates in it, happiness comes to her and her husband. Dear little Madge Evans is seen in this production and has an important part. The production has been staged on the lavish scale given to all World Pictures Brady-Made.

"Wild and Woolly" is the second Douglas Fairbanks production to be released by Artercraft Pictures in the role of the adventure-seeking youth of the east who realizes his fondest fancies amidst the great plains of Arizona. In this picture the energetic dispenser of laughter presents his efficiency in the various accomplishments of the cowboy, portrayed in his own inimitable style. This picture will be shown at the Liberty Sunday and Monday.
