What have you done today to help win the war?

A GOOD SHOWING.

Bend is doing herself proud in her subscriptions to the Liberty Loan. With nearly $75,000 already subscribed it seems certain that before the drive is over we shall have offered more than $100,000 to help defeat our enemies. Except for the work done at the mills there has been little organized effort to sell the bonds in the city and when that phase of the campaign has been started the total should be big.

The results of the mill campaign are most gratifying. Patriotism was never expressed more definitely than it is in the offer made by the two companies to their men, and the response to the offer found in the subscription lists. On the one hand the companies have offered to carry the employees' purchases without interest, making the bonds an insurance policy as well; on the other, the men have come forward and taken $35,000 worth of bonds. Read the names of those who have subscribed and see how fast Americans are being made.

For the results that have been shown at the mill credit should also be given to the men who have devoted their time since Tuesday explaining the need of the United States for money and the technical features of the bonds. Reverend Snyder and Mr. De Long have made a good team and their efforts have helped in getting our result.

MILL INDUSTRY GIVES $51,050.

CAMOUFLAGE PROTECTS ITALIAN ROAD

Where the Italians are driving back the Austrians high in the mountains on the Isonzo front camouflage is practiced extensively by the Italians to protect their lines of communication and supplies. This photograph shows the road to Vipulzano protected by a screen of straw from the artillery fire of the enemy that is constantly sweeping over it. A supply train is passing along the road.

GERMAN WHO IS PESSIMISTIC

General Baron von Freytag-Loringhoven, chief of the supplementary general staff of the German army, has declared that the general political and economic situation of the war works only in favor of the allies and that Germany's soldiers will be defrauded of the fruits of her victories. General Loringhoven believes trench warfare a great mistake and thinks that only an aggressive attack would have brought success. He adds, however, that the German offensive was not strong enough to overthrow the allies. He is shown, at left in photograph talking with a member of his staff.

But One Ideal.

Ideals of beauty differ where the body is concerned. One person prefers blue eyes and another brown. "What a pretty girl Bessie is," one will say and another will answer: "Why, I never thought Bessie particularly pretty, but her sister Mary—" and so on.

But when beauty of character is concerned, there is no such disagreement. Everyone realizes that unselfishness, beautiful, and selflessness ugly, that kindness is charming and hate hideous. There is no danger of your becoming confused by a double standard. There is but one ideal for the beauty of the spirit.—Girl's Companion.

His Age.

Allan, on his second birthday, was told by his mother that he was two years old. That same day his mother weighed him, and as she lifted him off the scale, she said:

"You weigh just thirty pounds."
That evening, when the little boy's father came home, he said:
"Well, Allan, how old are you?"
Allan hesitated a few seconds and then replied:
"Two years and thirty pounds."
