What have you done today to help win the war?

TWO GROUPS.

(Boston Herald.)
There are two groups of people who should be particularly active in buying and stowing away Liberty bonds. These are the prosperous western and southern farmers who have enjoyed high prices for their grain and cotton, and the workers in favored lines of manufacturing who have been earning wages before unheard of. Each group is buying some bonds, but neither is buying as many as it should.

Workers, especially, should not miss the opportunity to "salt down" for future use some of the surplus proceeds of the present high wage scales. Those who are the beneficiaries of big increases, from participation in work applying directly to the great war demand, will write themselves down as exceedingly foolish if they come through the current period of enormous "forced draft" activity with nothing to show for it, nothing stowed away as a reserve. In fact, any worker who can save should do so.

There never was a better time to stick steadily to a good job, and to try to lay by a surplus. And there never was a better investment for a surplus than a government bond—a mortgage on the United States—paying four per cent, with the added benefit of any higher rate if the government issues later bonds at a higher rate, and purchasable, if desired, on the installment plan, the payments to be met from future earnings. Every munition worker in the land should be wearing a Liberty button; should buy outright what bonds he can pay for cash down, and subscribe for more, to be paid as he goes along.
