NOMINATE DIRECTORS FOR C. O. I. DISTRICT

Meeting of Irrigationists Held at the Grange Hall—Christmas Kits Made For Soldiers.

(Special to The Bulletin) BEND, R. F. D., Nov. 28.—At the meeting held at the Grange hall Monday night for the nomination of directors for the proposed irrigation district, J. Alton Thompson, G. L. Moore and J. J. Ellinger were named. Rev. Hartranft, of the Presbyterian church of Bend, delivered a most interesting talk to the children Sunday afternoon at the school house. Special music was rendered by Mrs. Hartranft.

At the regular semi-monthly meeting of the Pilot Butte Educational and Cooperative Union of America, No. 83, held Wednesday night, November 21, at the school house, C. L. Moore was elected delegate and Mrs. P. C. Burt as alternate to the annual state convention of Farmers' Unions of America for Oregon and Idaho, which is to be held at Pendleton December 4, 5 and 6. It was decided that the next meeting, which will be December 5, should be an open one and that R. A. Ward, county agriculturist, be invited to attend and speak on the jackrabbit question. A number of the members of the union are planning to attend the Agricultural Council meeting at Redmond on December 13.

Six new members were taken into the union, those being Mesdames Seth Stooky, L. Coffee, J. N. Warnstaff, Bishop, and Messrs. Bishop and Colver. At the conclusion of the meeting light refreshments were served by the ladies. Phil Dencer and wife are residing at Dr. Dencer's ranch, having rented the same. Amos Neff had the misfortune of losing a milk cow recently. J. W. Warnstaff has just completed a large cement cistern on his place. Mrs. J. Malosh is in receipt of a letter from her daughter in Idaho, who recently underwent an operation for cancer, stating that she is on the road to recovery. Will and Joe Warnstaff have sold some more potatoes to the potato buyers and are delivering them to the warehouse this week. Miss Myrtle Neff, who went to Kellogg, Idaho, recently, will remain with her aunt, Mrs. Philip Neff, of that place, for the winter.

The dance given at the Grange hall Saturday night was well attended. The Ladies' Aid Society of the Second Union church, met at the home of Mrs. Nelson Thursday. Seth Stooky and daughter Mildred, have returned home from Spokane where they attended the funeral of Mrs. Stooky's sister, who died quite suddenly.

A Thanksgiving program will be given by the pupils of the Richardson school at the school house Wednesday afternoon. The ladies of the Sunday school met at the home of Mrs. John Carson Friday afternoon and began making kits as Christmas presents for the boys who were drafted from this community and who are in military training now at Camp Lewis. The ladies will meet again Tuesday afternoon to finish the making of the kits.

AT THE MOVIES

Liberty Theatre. Billie Burke, who is coming to the Liberty Theatre in "The Mysterious Miss Terry," on Sunday afternoon, evening and Monday, was born in Washington, D. C. She went to France at an early age, however, and it was in a convent in that country that she received most of her education. Concluding her studies, she determined to become an actress, and as her father was an actor, widely known as "Billie" Burke, she decided to make use of that name for her professional career. She was a fluent linguist, and appeared in the music halls of several of the principal European countries, principally in England, before making her American debut.

Her American debut took place in New York City at the Empire Theatre where she appeared with John Drew in "My Wife" under the management of Charles Frohman. She was elevated to stardom in the role of Jacqueline in "Love Watches," a short while afterwards. Later she was seen in many such well known plays as "Mrs. Dot," "Suzanne," "The Philosopher," "The Runaway," "The Mind-the-Point-Girl" and "The Amazons."

Billie Burke, daintiest and most charming of stage and screen comedienne, in "The Mysterious Miss Terry," by Gelett Burgess, appears as a most baffling and fascinating young heiress. Mavis Terry (Billie Burke), gets into innumerable scrapes and works all sorts of havoc in the hearts of the young men in her boarding house before a sudden, quick and unexpected turn of the wheel of fate brings the play to a sweeping climax.

Directed by J. Searle Dawley, who has been responsible for many of Marguerite Clark's most famous pictures, such as "Snow White" and others, this production will rank among the best of the Paramount photoplays. Those of us who have wished for a "fairy godmother" to make our dearest wishes come true will recognize her, at last, in the winsome person of Billie Burke in her role of Mavis Terry.

Grand Theatre. William Farnum, who appears in the latest William Fox super de luxe photodrama, "American Methods," long held a deep admiration for women—all women. But toward no class of women is his admiration so keen as for the school teacher. In the school teacher, Mr. Farnum sees the women who literally is responsible for the future of the nation, for in the children of the nation lies the hope of the nation.

The women who tend the sick and the hopeless have a great share of Mr. Farnum's appreciation. But the woman who instills into the hearts and the minds of the little ones those principles which lead to splendid manhood and womanhood—to those women Mr. Farnum offers the crown. "To me a school teacher is a remarkable personage," said Mr. Farnum. "Her remuneration is not of the greatest, nor are communities the most liberal in payment of the teacher. A school teacher must lead and point the way. She must encourage; she must exhort; she must always set examples and always she must undergo punishment, in a physical and mental way, which few men could stand.

"Yet, the teacher, so far as I have seen, always maintains her poise, her sweetness of temper, her willingness to shoulder burdens, and her interest in the children.

"And what a debt of gratitude the children owe her! Next to their mothers the teacher is the one to whom they should always look, for it is due to the teacher that they become really worth while in the game of life. The school teacher? God bless her!"

The appearance of Rupert Julian and Ruth Clifford as Bluebird stars, in "The Mysterious Mr. Tiller" at the Grand on Saturday night and Sunday afternoon, brings assurance in advance of unusual entertainment. Mr. Julian also directed the feature, combining his skill as a photoplay inventor with his artistry as a player. Miss Clifford is one of the daintiest girls in pictures, and will be pleasurably recalled for her work with Mr. Julian in "Mother O' Mine" and in "A Kentucky Cinderella." Bluebird promises in "The Mysterious Mr. Tiller" a detective story of puzzling plot and gripping interest, combining fascinating mystery with the excitement of unexpected sensations.
