PICTURES ARE SHOWN

NO FOOD WASTE ALLOWED HERE

Rumors of waste of food at cantonment camps have been hotly resented by officers who have charge of garbage disposal at the various camps. This picture shows the unloading of garbage at the central depot at Camp Meade. The cans are brought from benches underneath the windows of each mess hall. Each can is labeled for various sorts of refuse so that bones, cans, paper, etc., go into separate receptacles. The camp's conservation officer notes the contents of each can as they are dumped into motortrucks for sale to contractors. At Camp Meade a cook who fails to scrape a bone properly is in for a stiff call.

TO CO-OPERATE IN RESEARCH

British Plan on Method of Bringing About Best Possible Results for Various Industries.

Realizing that many industrial firms are barred from the benefits of scientific research into their particular lines of activity by the great cost, reports Consul Franklin D. Hale, Huddersfield, England, the Committee of the Privy Council for Scientific and Industrial Research proposes the introduction of the co-operative idea. In this way a firm that is unable to bear the entire expense of research could contribute to the cost and share in the benefits accruing to an industry as a whole. It is planned to establish trade research associations in England to be formed as needed for each industry or group of industries, and aided by certain funds which the committee has in charge. One association is about to be organized for the cotton industry, and others will be formed as soon as possible for the wool, flax, oil, and photographic industries. The work that has already been accomplished through the committee's efforts, according to Mr. Hale, includes the discovery of three kinds of optical glass, the investigation of light alloys for use in aircraft, and the production of a new hard porcelain from purely British raw material. Researches into the recovery of tin are expected to save that industry a very large amount each year.

No Waste Allowed.

In the airplane factories in Great Britain, absolutely no waste is allowed. Even the swindust is sucked up through giant shafts to be transformed into gas, which in turn is used to generate electricity to drive the machinery. The whole power of the plant is supplied by its own waste, a notable instance of up-to-date economical methods.

AT THE MOVIES

Grand Theatre.

The new William Fox photoplay, "Two Little Imps," which is to be shown at the Grand Theatre tonight and Friday, is worth more than the price of admission. It shows Jane and Katherine Lee, the five and seven-year-old stars, at their best. It gives them full opportunity to exhibit all their film genius and they take full advantage of it. This is the first picture in which these popular little screen children have been starred.

As "Two Little Imps," left in the care of their Uncle Billy at a hotel, they help Billy in wooing, they aid in reforming Billy's sweetheart's brother Bob, and finally take part in a battle that lands two burglars in the hands of the police, after the crooks have, as Bob's pals, attempted to rob his father's apartment.

They do all this in their own inimitable way. The picture is something new, something to be expected from the Fox studios, and something that should not be missed.

When Elinor Crawford went to New York, bent upon gaining fame as a greater writer, the world was rosy and hope ran high. But in the end her literary ambitions simmered down to writing sensational newspaper stories for the consumption of those who like yellow journalism and made it profitable. New York's "bohemia" liked Elinor, and she liked bohemia so well that she nearly perished in its maelstrom of vanity and selfishness. How a good husband changed everything, bringing the sunshine of honest love into the darkness of "bohemia" abandonment (t) self-worship will be told in Bluebird photoplays at the Grand Theatre on Saturday, with Dorothy Phillips the star of a gripping romance of fast life in New York.

Liberty Theatre.

In his latest Artercraft picture, "The Man From Painted Post," to be at the Liberty next Sunday and Monday, Douglas Fairbanks discloses many new cowboy tricks learned from champions of a recent Rodeo meet, who appear with him in the photoplay. The story of Wyoming cattle rustling days presents the versatile Douglas in many thrilling situations offering typical surprises.

Among other things Douglas is called upon to shoot two holes through the "bad man's" hat while it reposes upon the latter's head, some hundred yards away. When the usual substitute was suggested, Fairbanks refused to listen to it, thereby retaining his distinction of never "faking a stunt" before the camera. Frank Campeau, the popular Broadway actor who portrays the outlaw character, being familiar with Douglas' ability as a sharpshooter, readily agreed to go through the bit, but when the star leveled his guns and fired two shots directly at the actor's head, even he had a sinking feeling in his stomach. "I know Douglas is a crack-shot, but even at that when I looked into the mouths of those 'young cannons' it made me a bit uneasy," said Campeau later. The scene was enacted exactly as per schedule, however, and Campeau's hat lay on the ground before he realized it was all over.

"The days of trick photography are decidedly over, with the exception of the slap-stick comedy," said Fairbanks in speaking of the incident, "and those scenes prove that you can easily recognize a faked bit by the unnatural tempo of the action. Whenever a scene does not look natural,

STATE LEADER LIKES LOCAL PUPILS' PLANS

CORVALLIS, Dec. 26.—(Special.)—The state leader of industrial clubs, H. C. Seymour, reports that practical conservation work was planned during the teachers' institute of Crook and Deschutes counties, which was held at Bend. Club work appealed to the institute workers as one of the most feasible methods of enlisting the aid of the boys and girls. In a conference with two of the county superintendents, a county agent and himself, Mr. Seymour outlined some very practical work with sheep, pigs, potatoes, garden and food preparation. He is quite enthusiastic over the progress of the club work there and the interest with which the teachers of the two counties took it up. He thinks that promise of success is as bright there as in any part of the state.

Lumber in British Columbia.

Fifty million feet of lumber or its equivalent in material heavier than boards, represents many trees, even big trees such as are to be found in the forests of British Columbia, says a correspondent.

Well, that is the quantity called for by the wooden shipbuilding program now being carried out in British Columbia. The cost of this material will amount to $1,750,000.

The ships being built in British Columbia are in part sailing vessels, others carry auxiliary engines, and most of them are intended for the lumber-carrying trade with Australia.

Touched.

The Minister—Don't you think I touched them rather deeply this morning? The Deacon—I don't know, I haven't counted up yet.
