AT THE MOVIES

Grand Theatre.

John Kirby, a dashing broker of the outer edge of Wall street, finding himself on the verge of disaster, grabs at the chance to entertain in his home a vulgar rich man who offers to lend him money. The vulgarian is accompanied by a woman, who Kirby is forced to introduce to his wife. The young wife resents this. "It's business," snaps Kirby. "It's disgrace," retorts Mrs. Kirby, and divorces him.

Kirby, repentant, courts and marries his wife all over again. It is thus that Kirby becomes "Her Second Husband." See Miss Edna Goodrich in this remarkable Mutual drama at the Grand Theatre tonight and Wednesday.

Gladys Brockwell, whose coming is always hailed with delight by her thousands of admirers in this city, opens at the Grand Theatre on Thursday, for two nights, in her newest William Fox photoplay, "The Soul of Satan."

This production, which goes thoroughly into the problems confronting the maturing girl, is guaranteed by the Fox people to have a punch in every foot. Miss Brockwell is not the usual type of screen actress. She differs from the usual type in that she can act, whereas a great many of those now playing leading roles in motion pictures haven't the slightest idea what the word even means.

The story of "The Soul of Satan" begins with Miriam Lee (Miss Brockwell) as a girl of the slums, whose entire life has been passed in the drudgery of mothering two little children. When she meets a man who seems to love her, she runs off with him and leaves her father, cursing her, behind.

As the years pass, she learns to know this man whom she thinks she has married. He is a low, despicable character, and he stops at nothing to gain his ends.

Then, into Miriam's life comes the one bright ray of true love. She meets Lucky Carson, out of the west, and he sees and understands all. When she realizes that her marriage to the first man has been a trick, she leaves him to the punishment for his crimes and goes back to her home, accompanied by the man she really loves.

STANDARD SLEEPERS THREE TIMES A WEEK

Cars Are Limited By New Order, Believed to Have Come From Government.

Perhaps what is the first direct bearing the federal control of railroads will have on Bend is the change in the Pullman service ordered in effect today. Instead of running standard sleepers daily on the Oregon Trunk, as has been done heretofore, they will only be in Bend three times a week.

Station Agent J. J. Hoydar received a telegram from Portland this morning outlining the new schedule. It reads as follows: "Effective Tuesday, January 29, the Oregon Trunk standard sleeping cars will leave Portland Tuesdays, Thursdays and Sundays and will leave Bend Wednesdays, Fridays and Mondays instead of daily. Tourist cars from Portland, Wednesday, January 30, and Thursday, January 31."

Mr. Hoydar is of the opinion that it is just a slight beginning of the changes soon to be made, in conjunction with the government's efforts to discourage passenger travel for the duration of the war. The expense of maintaining complete service on both roads has also been found to come under the "unnecessary" head.

Modify Your Own Recipes.

If you have good recipes for bread of any kind, make them conform to food conservation by omitting sugar and fat and by using at least one-fourth wheat substitute. The recipes below tell how to use or add the substitutes. Try for yourself with your own recipe. Many people think milk is necessary for good bread, but it is not, although it of course adds to the food value, and is therefore advisable when it can be afforded. Water, milk and water, whey, potato water or rice water may be used for the liquid.

In using part other grains than wheat, the loaf will be as nourishing, but usually not so large or light.

All measures in these recipes are level. The flour is measured after sifting.

Yeast.

Because of the high price of yeast it may be economical when bread is made frequently or in large quantities to prepare liquid yeast. In making the bread the amount of yeast used, of whatever kind, will depend upon the time in which the process is to be carried through.

Liquid Yeast.

4 medium sized potatoes,
1 quart hot water,
1 teaspoon salt,
1 cake dry yeast, softened in 1/4 cup of warm water, or
1 cake of compressed yeast,
1/4 cup sugar.

Wash, pare and cook the potatoes in the water. Drain, mash and return to the water. Make up to one quart. Add the sugar, and salt and allow the mixture to cool. When lukewarm add the yeast. Keep at room temperature (65° to 70° F.) for 24 hours before using. If kept for a longer time it should be poured into a sterilized jar and put in a dark, cool place.

Each of these recipes make one loaf. The weight of the different breads will vary from 18 ounces to 23 ounces.

Cornmeal Yeast Bread.

1 1/2 cups liquid,
3/4 yeast cake,

1 1/2 teaspoons salt,
2 1/2 cups flour,
* 3/4 cup cornmeal, white or yellow,
* more if needed.

Note—One-fourth cup of liquid yeast may be used in place of the 1/4 yeast cake, and 1/4 cup of liquid when making bread by the short process. If dry yeast is used the long process must be followed or a liquid yeast prepared. For the long process sponge method, 1/2 cake of compressed yeast or 2 tablespoons of liquid yeast is sufficient. For the short process use more yeast.

Long Process.

1. Soften the yeast in 1/2 cup of lukewarm water, add 1/4 cup of white flour. Beat thoroughly, cover, and if the sponge is to stand over night, let rise at room temperature (about 65° to 70° F.) and at 80° to 85° F. if the time is to be shortened. When this sponge is so light that the slightest touch causes it to fall it is ready for the addition of the other ingredients.

2. Stir the cornmeal into the remaining cup of salted water and heat to the boiling point over the direct flame. Cook 20 minutes in a double boiler or over hot water. Cool until it feels warm to the hand (about 90° to 95° F.)

3. Beat the cooked cornmeal into the light sponge prepared as directed above. Add gradually sufficient flour to make a dough somewhat stiffer than for ordinary bread.* It is impossible to give the quantity of flour exactly, because different samples of flour may not absorb the same amounts of liquid. Knead a few minutes until the dough is smooth and elastic, cover and let rise at a temperature of about 80° F., until double in bulk. Then shape into a loaf, cover and let rise in the pan until double in bulk. Bake 50 to 60 minutes, starting in a hot oven (450° F.) and lowering the temperature gradually at the end of ten minutes. A pan of water set in the oven will keep the air moist and give a soft brown crust. If the pan of water is not used the temperature may be 425° F.

*The long process usually produces better results in this bread.

Short Process.

Cook the cornmeal in 1 1/4 cups of liquid, cool to about 90° F., add the yeast softened in the remaining 1/4 cup of liquid (or the liquid yeast) and flour to make a stiff dough. Proceed from this point as directed above.
