AT THE MOVIES

Grand Theatre.

Margarita Fischer, the brilliant comedienne, is noted as one of the most fastidious dressers in filmdom, and does not hesitate to exploit any original ideas, the result being that she is seen in some startling and novel creations.

Miss Fischer appears in "Molly Go Get 'Em" at the Grand Theatre on Wednesday only, in the Mutual-American production, in which she takes the part of a fun-loving girl of an adventurous spirit, she wears a suit of pajamas that is just a few parasangs ahead of the latest concoctions in this interesting garment. It is Oriental in genus, Mongolian in specie, and is the only copy of a pair worn by the pampered daughter of a wealthy mandarin who took a violent fancy to Miss Fischer during a sojourn at Santa Barbara.

The nether garment is of black silk, rather loose fitting and somewhat shorter than the ordinary kind. The coat is of cream-color, sleeves full and short, while worked into the texture are symbolical Chinese characters, the meaning of which is a sealed book, except to the deep student of Confucius. The costume is topped off by a mandarin hat that sets rakishly on Miss Fischer's raven locks.

The first night Miss Fischer wore these Oriental habiliments she dreamt of hydra-headed dragons of emerald hue, with indigo tails which they manipulated as chop-sticks in devouring huge tankards of chop-suey.

Liberty Theatre.

Jane Cowl, the heroine of "Within the Law" and "Common Clay," and one of the foremost of American dramatic actresses, comes to the Liberty Theatre tonight and Wednesday as the star of the Goldwyn production of "The Spreading Dawn." This is the first screen appearance of this noted beauty, actress and dramatist. "The Spreading Dawn" is a picturization of a remarkable story by Basil King which, when it was published in the Saturday Evening Post attracted country-wide attention.

"Her Circus Knight," a Mack Sennett Keystone comedy in two reels will also be screened.

Mix the fish and capers. Arrange in a mold. Soak the gelatin in two tablespoons of cold water. Add the boiling water and stir until the gelatin dissolves then add the lemon juice and salt. Pour this jelly carefully over the fish and set in a cool place to harden. Cut into portions and serve on lettuce with salad dressing. If desired celery or hard-boiled eggs cut in slices may be added to the fish.

TRY A NEW WAY.

It is claimed that there are more than 100 ways to cook potatoes, from the primitive (and still probably the best) methods of boiling and baking with the skins on, to the most complex and seasoned dishes. Here are some of the ways known to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Have you tried them all, or do you know about as many more?

MEAT SUBSTITUTES.

Fish Chowder.
A 3-lb. fish,
4 tablespoons drippings,
1 medium onion, chopped fine,
1 quart sliced potatoes,
3 cups hot milk.
Skin and bone the fish, and cut into inch cubes. Cover the bone and trimmings with cold water and let simmer for one-half hour. Cook the onion in the fat for 5 minutes, then pour into a stew pan.

Parboil the sliced potatoes for 5 minutes, then drain and add layers of fish and potatoes to the fat and onion in the stew pan. Season each layer with salt and pepper.

Strain the liquor in which the fish bones have been cooking over all, and cook about 20 minutes until fish and potatoes are tender. Then add the scalded milk. If desired thicker, sprinkle a little corn meal between each layer of fish and potatoes.

Baked Salt Fish.

2 cups salt fish (flaked),
2 cups cold mashed potatoes,
1 pint milk,
2 eggs,
2 to 3 tablespoons of drippings.
Soak the flaked fish in cold water over night or freshen the fish by boiling up several times in fresh water (usually 3 times is sufficient). Then simmer until tender. Drain off the water. Mix the potatoes with the milk, eggs, fat and seasoning. Add the fish, turn into a greased baking dish and bake one-half hour.

Broiled Salt Mackerel.

Freshen the fish by soaking 10 to 12 hours with the skin side up. Change the water several times. Simmer until tender (15 to 20 minutes) in water to which 1 teaspoon of vinegar, a bay leaf, one slice of onion and a sprig of parsley have been added. Drain, rub the fish with a little salt and margarine or other fat. Grease the hot broiler and lay the fish on it. Brown on both sides quickly. Garnish with slices of lemon and parsley.

Jellied Fish.

1 1/2 cups cold flaked fish,
2 tablespoons chopped capers,
1 tablespoon granulated gelatin,
1 cup boiling water,
2 tablespoon lemon juice,
1/2 teaspoon salt,
2 tablespoons cold water.
