

GERMAN VOTE BLOW TO REDS

MODERATES' VICTORY IS DECISIVE.

Bolshevist Program of Killing Off Upper and Middle Classes Fails to Appeal to Great Mass of Electorate.

By J. W. T. Mason
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—The westward spread of Bolshevism through Europe has suffered a severe check in the overwhelming victory of the moderates in the German elections Sunday. A chastening effect on the Russian program for killing off the upper and middle classes throughout the world is inevitable.

The German elections will act as a softening influence on the Bolshevik and may be expected to demonstrate the futility of the red flag and class warfare.

Russian agitators were allowed to conduct their propaganda freely in Germany and received sufficient assistance from German extremists to put their case squarely before the electorate.

SOME ELECTIONS BLOCKED.

BERLIN, Jan. 21.—That the Spartacists succeeded in preventing the Sunday elections in several of the towns along the Rhine was learned in Berlin today.

Majority socialists apparently won in the city of Berlin.

COL. LEADER WILL SPEAK HERE SOON

Veteran of the Somme to Be Sent to Bend by the University of Oregon January 29.

Preparations are being made by the Bend Amateur Athletic club for the appearance of Colonel John Leader, in charge of military training at the University of Oregon, who will speak in Bend on the evening of January 29, at the gymnasium.

The colonel went to the front in the present war as commander of the Royal Irish Rifles. The day the war broke out he left Vancouver for England. He was made captain of the staff at headquarters and soon was promoted to the rank of major, and later lieutenant-colonel. He went to Ulster and raised the battalion which he commanded at the battle of the Somme. It was in this battle that he received the wounds that have incapacitated him for service.

Returning health made Colonel Leader feel it his place, to train others to be soldiers, since the British war department declared him unfit for military duty. When the university wrote to the British war office in the fall of 1917 asking for a man to drill its troops. The office sent back a list of men who were available and suitable. The university selected him as the best man to have, and his coming is now history at the university. In two weeks he had guns for the troops, had made arrangements for the only kind of uniforms practicable and had the men drilling an hour a day, with four hours on Saturdays and lectures three days a week. "A demon for work" was the opinion of the student body after he had been at the university a couple of days.

WHITE HOUSE IS QUIET NOW

ONLY AN OCCASIONAL VISITOR COMES TO EXECUTIVE MANSION SINCE PRESIDENT WILSON WENT TO EUROPE.

(By United Press to The Bend Bulletin.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 21.—Secret service men, cooks, maids and the greater number of the retinue of folk attached to the executive mansion are on leave these days. The stream of diplomats and celebrities usually to be found in the reception room at the western extremity of the building has dwindled to an occasional visit of the friends of Secretary Tumulty or the remaining few others in the executive offices.

At night one or two lonesome lights gleam from the windows. Passers-by who are obviously visitors in Washington look toward the building with interest but without eagerness. A returned soldier, small bands of women and now and then a small group of Englishmen temporarily in America or other foreign folk appear, asking to be shown the interior of the White House.

Quiet prevails at the executive mansion while the president and first lady are away. The atmosphere is much the same as in the summer months of ordinary times when the president removes to the summer white house. Then, however, the president takes with him the executive force, which he left behind on the European trip.

On Mondays, unless something of greater importance interferes, the cabinet members indifferently congregate for the meeting, at which Vice President Marshall is always late. Other days Secretary Tumulty comes down about 10 a. m.

Outside, since the first of the year, two suffragists who are keeping a vigil to express their disapproval of the president, occasionally toss a speech into the wash tub where the National Women's party's "eternal fire" is burning. The guards, who remain to keep a watch over the grounds and gateways, observe those ladies with indifferent interest.

(By United Press to The Bend Bulletin.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 21.—A Red Cross worker who is still overseas serving with a certain well known division in France which has seen hard fighting claims he has the prize memo, which is a small, dog-eared book.

When the book was blank it was placed by this Red Cross man on the counter of a Red Cross outpost near the fighting line. Soldiers and officers calling for tobacco, cigarettes, chocolate, comfort bags and other commodities, adopted it as a register. When a customer called for anything he would affix his signature in the little book and write a line or so of comment. Now it contains the signatures of men from almost every state and from all ranks of the army, generals down to privates.

Peoples announced today that failure to comply with the law after car owners had been notified would result in the application of heavy fines. The delay, it is believed, is due to the fact that many did not make application for licenses until the first of the year.

CROSS FOX PELT BROUGHT TO BEND

Black Streaked Fur Indicates Existence of Rare Animals in This Vicinity.

Indicating the presence of valuable black foxes in the Central Oregon country, is a cross fox skin which G. C. Griggs, local pelt dealer, received recently in a consignment of furs. The name of the trapper, or the point at which the fox was taken, could not be learned.

The pelt held by the Bend dealer was apparently worn by a rather young animal, has black feet and further shows mixed parentage in the fact that dark tipped hairs are numerous on the back.

Cross fox skins are listed at from $65 to $100 in the local fur market.

VETERAN TELLS STORY OF WAR

SAYS BRITAIN'S PART IS UNDERESTIMATED.

Colonel Pringle Praises America for Entering War as a Matter of Principle — Describes Life at the Front.

Wearing the uniform of the Highland soldier, Lieutenant Colonel John Pringle, Canadian chaplain, spoke last night to a capacity crowd at the gymnasium, sketching the history of the world war as seen by him during four years at the front. Praising the indomitable courage of the allied troops, he declared that the part played by Great Britain was sometimes underestimated.

He quoted figures showing that while Canada lost 60,000 men in action out of a total enlistment of 500,000, the mother country sustained losses totalling 1,250,000 out of 6,250,000 men actually sent overseas. "Britain saved the situation hundreds of times, first with her fleet, and afterward with her dauntless army that could not learn the meaning of defeat," he said. He told how 130,000 British soldiers had been pitted in the early part of the war against 800,000 German invaders, and showed the work of the fleet in the fact that out of 20,000,000 troops conveyed by British warships only 4394 were lost at sea.

"America came into the conflict as a matter of principle, to uphold the right," the speaker asserted. "This country had nothing material to gain, as did the European nations engaged in the war. And after becoming a belligerent, the greatest thing America did was to place her troops under General Foch, making possible the series of tremendous blows which brought the Germans to their knees."

Colonel Pringle related stories of the training camps and the trenches, described the front line, the placing of barbed wire entanglements, giving here and there a glimpse of the stoical humor of the British Tommy. Whether in pursuit of the Hun or the elusive "cootie," he declared them to be equally steadfast.

In concluding his address he urged that the lesson of the war—that peace and righteousness are one and the same thing—be taken by the people of America to be made a part of their daily life.
