A GUARANTEE OF QUALITY.

Have you ever stopped to consider the real significance TO YOU of the trademark or brand name on the package or label of the article you buy at the store?

Have you ever stopped to think that the presence of an advertised trademark on a can of pork and beans, for example, is a guarantee that these beans are of good quality?

This must be true, else the advertising would defeat its own purpose. The trademark, being a mark of identification, is as much a means of rejection as of selection.

That is, if the article so identified proves unsatisfactory you are enabled by the trademark to avoid it a second time.

Manifestly, a manufacturer could not afford to put a brand name or trademark on an unsatisfactory product. People would not buy it a second time and he would run himself out of business almost immediately.

A manufacturer backs a branded product by his reputation. Therefore, he cannot afford to stake his reputation on any product that is not good.

It is only when he puts on the market a satisfactory product, one which people will like and call for a second time, that he can afford to put the mark of identification upon it.

But when he has such a product he wants people to know that it is his. Every package he sells then helps to build a reputation for him and his goods.

Advertised, trademarked goods then are most apt to be GOOD GOODS.

The advertised trademark is your guarantee of quality.

We trust that before Mr. Cobb arrives a change will be made in the banners advertising his coming now carried by local delivery cars. If not, we may some day expect to find ourselves famous in his writings as the town which is noted for superfluous ease.

STATE ISSUES BECOME CLEAR which seems to be fairly well on the road to solution, as all members of the legislature are now virtually agreed that state aid must be removed and that the application of the compensation act should be made compulsory.

The state aid will be removed for two years at least, that is certain, and the other features of making the act compulsory will probably be thrown over to the people for their decision. Whether or not state aid will be permanently removed will also probably be left up to the people.

in cities and towns being held at the same time as general state elections is also another more minor issue which this legislature will have to take care of. This involves some rather careful handling if details, but it has been determined that it is up to this session to oil the machinery to make the amendment workable for all time.

Finances Less Involved.

To take the big problems up briefly one by one, it may be said in the first instance that the financial problem is well along toward solution. The ways and means committee now has about $1,000,000 cut off from the budget requirements with a long road yet to follow, and many places where slicing may be done along the road. In cutting out these things it may be remarked that the higher educational institutions are going to be kept very nearly down to an actual millage basis by the present session. Very few new buildings will be allowed for any state institutions and a number of seemingly useless functions will be done away with. The work of the ways and means committee may be entirely upset if some radical sort of a consolidation program comes along and requires a general readjustment, but whatever occurs, the committee now has the situation well enough in hand so that for actual state needs, as set out in the budget, it will be able to keep the legislature inside of the amendment. Of course, if the legislature insists on enacting a sea of appropriation bills outside of the budget requirements, that will be another story, as Kipling remarks, and there may be some decided difficulties to encounter.

Plans for Soldiers Chaotic

As to reconstruction, that is still in a chaotic stage. Both houses have a special reconstruction committee and in each house a land settlement bill has been received. One in the senate from Eddy applies to soldiers and sailors alone, provides for an appropriation of $500,000, and is a replica of the measure of Secretary of the Interior Lane, which gives two alternative plans for land settlement, one by the state furnishing the land and the government financing the improvements through loans, and the other by the state furnishing equipped farms, which will be sold on long time amortization payments.

In the house Richardson has a bill which provides for land settlement for all alike, whether soldiers, sailors or citizens of the United States only. His plan carries an appropriation of $210,000 and provides for the equipping of farms, much as the second alternative in the Eddy bill.

Both of these measures are before the reconstruction committees. The reconstruction committee of the house has also secured passage of a resolution calling upon all of the people of the state having ideas along reconstruction lines to submit them to the committee in assisting it to frame some general plan of legislation.

The highway programme has so far been made rather uncertain by the appearance of many bills hitting at the patented pavements, and royalties, and what nots, and not going at the heart of the situation,—that people really want—good roads.

Will Double Licenses.

In a general way it is safe to predict that automobile licenses will be at least doubled; that a $10,000,000 bond issue will be decided upon; that probably a tax of one cent per gallon on gasoline will be imposed and that the legislature will not attempt to change the present highway map but will go ahead and complete the trunk lines first. If this is done three or four roads will be constructed in and out of Bend. This much was made plain by the highway commission when it appeared before the legislature and the commission told the body that its plans involved the east and west and north and south roads out of Bend.

Much has been said of consolidation. What is to be done in that line can better be told later, and will be deferred for the present until something more definite appears. Sufficient to say that the committee is busy and so far there has appeared very little opposition from the usual state house lobby.

OLD AGE STARTS WITH YOUR KIDNEYS

Science says that old age begins with weakened kidneys and digestive organs. This being true, it is easy to believe that by keeping the kidneys and digestive organs cleansed and in proper working order old age can be deferred and life prolonged far beyond that enjoyed by the average person.

For over 200 years GOLD MEDAL Hairlem Oil has been relieving the weakness and disability due to advancing years. It is a standard old-time home remedy and needs no introduction. GOLD MEDAL Hairlem Oil is included in odorless, tasteless capsules containing about 5 drops each. Take them as you would a pill, with a swallow of water. The oil stimulates the kidney action and enables the organs to throw off the poisons which cause premature old age. New life and strength increase as you continue the treatment. When completely restored continue taking a capsule or two each day. GOLD MEDAL Hairlem Oil Capsules will keep you in health and vigor and prevent a return of the disease. Do not wait until old age or disease have settled down for good. At the first sign that your kidneys are not working properly, go to your druggist and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Hairlem Oil Capsules. Money refunded if they do not help you. Three sizes. But remember to ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand, in sealed packages.

The Natural Safety!

How many times have you read in the paper something like this:

"On Saturday last, Miss Marguerite Keith rolled up three $100.00 bills, two $50.00 bills, a few $10.00 bills and $5.00 bills, in all $475.00. She made as small a parcel or roll as possible of it as she could, and, like all daughters of Eve, put it where she thought to be the safest place—in her stocking.

"This $475.00, the saving of many years of toil and self-denial, was lost somewhere between her home and the Bank department store."

Here is the object of this story: There are fully 5,000,000 Miss Keiths in the United States who should know the proper place in which to put their savings is in the bank.

The money is safe here, and you pay all your bills by check.

PEST SPREAD BY MOSQUITO

Scientists Have Traced Cause of Disease That Has Long Been Prevalent in the Tropics.

One of the most peculiar of all diseases is malaria, common in the tropics. In the blood of persons suffering from it there are found innumerable little worms that can be seen only by the aid of a microscope. These are present only at night in the blood that is circulating. At about five o'clock in the afternoon they begin to appear in the blood, having been hidden away in the body until this time, and then they remain in the circulation until about midnight, when they begin to diminish. By eight or nine o'clock in the morning they have all disappeared, and a search of the blood under the microscope after this fails to reveal any. They are now collected in certain large blood vessels deep in the body, especially in the lungs, where they remain hidden until they go out on their next nocturnal excursion.

The parasite is conveyed to human beings by the bite of certain kinds of mosquitoes. The mosquito bites and takes from a man or from some animal, as the case may be, blood which contains these small worms. In the stomach of the mosquito (the intermediate host) the parasite goes through certain definite changes or metamorphoses, which are just as necessary to its complete life as are the different phases in the lives of butterflies, moths and a great many insects. First it escapes from a skin or shell in which it has existed. Then it bores its way through the wall of the mosquito's stomach and travels forward through the body until it arrives at the base of the bill or proboscis.

ODD BELIEF ABOUT GEESE

Long Ago It Was Universally Thought That They Originated From the Barnacle.

The popular sixteenth century belief that geese originated from the barnacle was not confined to the uneducated, but was shared even by naturalists. John Gerard, in his "Herball, or General Historie of Plantes" (printed in London in 1597), in giving a description of this marvel, says he only tells "what our eyes have seen and hands have touched." "On the Pile of Foulders," he goes on to say, "are founde certaine shels, wherein is contained a thing in forme like a lace finely woven; one end whereof is fastened unto the icicle of the shell; the other end is made fast unto a rude mass, which in time cometh to the shape of a bird. In short space after it cometh to maturity, and falleth into the sea, where it gathereth feathers and groweth to a foule which the people of Lancashire call by no other name then a tree goose."

He goes on to testify to their abundance by saying that the best of them could be bought for three-pence, and challenges the incredulous to "repaire unto me and I shall satisfie them by the testimonie of good witnesses."

The Pile of Foulders is the small island now known as Piel Island, near Barrow-in-Furness.

Keep Moving Up.

To be worth moving up you must keep up. There are thousands of things in which you must keep up. It's not enough to think well in terms of business. The average business man must watch his habits, dress, speech, and companionship. They are all signboards of his standing. The man above the average takes care of everything that advertises him and his business. He can afford to let others exploit the freakish and the startling. He takes care that whatever he does or wears tells of the man of judgment and good taste. Call it waste time if you want to. A few years of observation will show the wisdom of his position. So the thing is to mentally and efficiently move up. The visible transfer will come with the bigger pay as soon as you are prepared to handle the job.—Grit.

Hindu Snake Superstition.

The pious Hindu believes the snake to be the reincarnation of some human being, possibly a great philosopher, and he has the assurance that the deities he worships will protect him from these venomous reptiles. Sometimes one sees a Hindu before an altar in a temple, with a serpent in the folds of his cloak. Suddenly he permits the snake to sting him, showing the blood flowing from an undesputed wound. He then takes a black stone from his pocket, rubs it over the bleeding spot, then muttering many incantations he makes passes over his body. A few moments later he assures his audience that the bite, which would have been poisonous otherwise, was made harmless by his prayers and incantations offered to the deity.

Planting Bulbs.

The easiest way to plant bulbs is to use a dibble or a bulb-planter. A dibble is, in its simplest form, only a round stick slightly larger than the bulbs, with one end pointed. Those purchased at the stores usually have a curved handle. A very good dibble can be made from an old garden fork or spade handle by cutting it off about a foot from the end. The handle will be found convenient. You can be sure of planting the bulbs at a uniform depth, if you measure the distance on the dibble and drive a nail into the wood or make a chalk mark at the right place. Some gardeners paint bands an inch apart on their dibles for convenience.
