UPROAR IS CREATED IN ASSEMBLY BY HAASE.

Demand Socialization of New Republic and Accuses Government of Murder of Red Leaders—New Outbreaks Reported.

By Frank J. Taylor
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
WEIMAR, Feb. 17.—Hugo Haase, radical leader, threw the national assembly into an uproar today when he declared that the workmen's and soldiers' councils would continue in existence until the Socialist Democrat-Centrist coalition demonstrates its intention to socialize the new republic. He said that he doubted that the coalition would carry out this program, and threatened new outbreaks unless socialization is accomplished.

When Haase openly accused the Ebert-Scheidemann government of murdering Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg a riot almost ensued. Practically every delegate excepting the radicals threatened to oust Haase and his followers from the assembly. Haase calmly waited until the members had quieted down and then resumed his attack on the government as a whole and everyone connected with it.

He admitted that the Spartacans had received money from the Russians.

In addition to track and field events, a tennis tournament, a declamation contest and typing and stenography contests will be held. GREAT ADVANCE IN SUPPRESSING WAR.

Ex-President, Speaking in Portland, Says Poindexter's Objections to League Constitution Belong to the German View.

PORTLAND, Feb. 17.—"On the whole, we should thank God that such a great advance toward the suppression of war and the promotion of permanent peace has been taken, as the agreement upon this constitution with every prospect of its embodiment into a permanent treaty at Paris," declared William Howard Taft, ex-president of the United States, before the northwestern congress of the league of nations here. "You should put this bill beyond the rhetoric stage in this congress," he said with emphasis in addressing the committee. VOCATIONAL TRAINING WILL MAKE SOLDIERS INDEPENDENT

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 17.—Many a man has come back more or less disabled and has been placed in some sort of a job in which charity is a moving consideration. A patriotic employer of labor takes on one or more of these men. They are not doing anything of value—they are not expected to. It is an evidence of patriotism that employers are ready to do this, and the motives actuating them are most praiseworthy, though misguided.

But, how long will these jobs last after the first fever of patriotic impulses has waned? In the after years the war spirit will inevitably calm down. In the sharp competition of business the useless expenses must be cut, the handicap of dead weights eliminated, and for one reason or another, these disabled men will find themselves out of work with no special ability to do anything well, and small chance to find anything else to do in competition with skilled men.

These men who have been passed upon as eligible for, or who may be eligible for, or who are drawing compensation from the war risk inurance bureau, are entitled to free specialized education by which they may fit themselves for some occupation and become expert in a particular line.

The experience of Canada and other countries shows that these men are able to really earn more money after being retrained than they could ever hope to receive as holders of semi-charity jobs. Better still, they become really valuable men and in periods of retrenchment instead of being the first to go are bound to be secure.

It would pay all war disabled men now holding these unskilled jobs to abandon them and take the training offered them free by the United States government. If single, they are allowed $65 per month support fund, have absolutely all expenses of the specialized education paid and are provided with suitable employment after they have finished their course of retraining.

A postal card or letter addressed to the Federal Board for Vocational Education, Washington, will bring the details of this great school of governmental justice.
