GLASS SLAPS CARPERS AND LOAN CRITICS

Secretary of the Treasury Carter Glass hit out straight from the shoulder today at those "Americans" who, now that the guns are cooling, are unwilling to pay for American victory.

"The coming issue of government bonds has been designated the victory loan and it seems to me it might well be termed the thanksgiving loan, for if ever a people had cause for thanksgiving we are that people.

Could Stand It. "Consider if the war had lasted another year what would have been our state. Instead of sixty thousand dead we likely would have had hundreds of thousands. In time we might have equaled the record of France, with her two million slain. And yet some of us grumble because the government must spend further money to maintain the comfort and bring home in safety those boys whose lives were spared.

"Congress is writing off the books fifteen billions of dollars, expenditure of which had been authorized and which would have had to be expended, with billions of other dollars, had the war gone on another year. We all are glad, of course, that it is not necessary to spend these additional billions, but had it been necessary the spending of them still would not have brought the nation down to ruin.

"We still would have been far behind France in the amount of our debt, compared to wealth and population. With our man-power practically intact, with our towns and factories and farms undamaged, should we be cowed by a monetary obligation lighter far than the one France faces unafraid?

"Those Americans who today have joined the carpers and the quibblers are not worthy of the name. They are not worthy of the boys they sent forth to make, if need be, the supreme sacrifice that liberty might live.

Dollars and Sons. "It is incomprehensible to me that any of the men who gave their sons so gladly and so proudly to their country in its hour of peril should turn so quickly to cold and calculating contemplation of the dollar. Had the war gone on they would, with equal pride, have offered other sons and would have continued to give of their wealth ungrudgingly. Now that the coming of peace has restored their sons to them, will they tighten their purse-strings and adopt an attitude which would seem to say: 'Let the government go hang?'

"I think the number of croakers relatively is very small, but their wallings and lamentations travel far and tend to discourage others who are not stout of heart.

Plain Patriots. "I do not believe that the plain people of America either are fearful of the future or distrustful of their government. When the next loan is offered I have every confidence they will understand its necessity and will gladly meet its requirements.

"Plain fathers and mothers throughout the land have not so soon ceased to be thankful that the ending of the war has restored their sons to them."

Watch Our Neighbor!

Australia has made war bond buying compulsory. Every one of the British countries is still buying, and France—France with her industries laid waste, her farms devastated, her land shell blown, and her homes destroyed—France is buying short term bonds at decreased rate of interest in small amounts but great numbers.

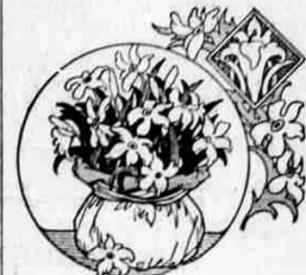

Freaks of Fashion.

The crinolines of the reign of Louis Napoleon had prototypes in remote antiquity. The orientals of long ago had devised an equivalent of the hoopskirt which we now ridicule, but which it is not certain we shall not reappear at some future time. Only a few years ago the high waists and sheath gowns which women of fashion affected were hailed as novelties, but the instigators of them had borrowed the idea from Mme. Recamier. She, says Roger Boutet de Monvel, was inspired by the Greeks and Romans. In the eighties there was a fashion among men of wearing trousers that made many of them resemble skeletons. But in the early eighteenth century it is reported that our ancestors "wore clothes so tight to ye skin that it might well be conceived that they wore no clothes at all." The practice of wearing furs in summer is not a mere bit of modern feminine foolishness, as some have supposed. It has been traced to certain tribes of wild barbarians—Oregonian.

Children's Fancies.

Children live in a world of fancy. Whatever may be the real nature of the things they see those things to them are real. Remember that the child has had no experience by which to judge the importance of practical relations of what they see or imagine. Even men and women sixty years old misjudge events, misunderstand relationships of things, attach absurd importance to their imaginings. How must it be with a child who has not been here long enough to test his visions by the standards of observation and experience!—Exchange.

The early part of the meeting was taken up with speeches on the Victory loan, Sergeant E. C. Frost, of the old Oregon, and Sergeant A. M. Fisher of the 32nd division, both overseas men, urging a ready subscription to the Victory notes as a true proof of America's patriotism. County Agent Koons, also recently returned from overseas service, was introduced by R. A. Ward, formerly county agriculturist, and also spoke on the coming Victory loan drive.

Sergeant Frost sketched the sacrifices made by the French people in floating their bond issues, and declared that the American people have no idea of what sacrifice really means. "The excitement of the war is over, but the bills remain to be paid," he said. "What are we going to do about it? It's the real test of patriotism that's confronting us now, and while you may hear that the war is over, just remember
