A CITY PARK.

The plan of the city council to obtain a park on Tumalo creek is a good one. Nature has made the spot beautiful, it is convenient to town for some purposes, and, in connection with the fish hatchery, it can be developed into a real asset to the city.

Somewhere near town there should be reserved in a natural state specimens of the pine trees of this section—the pines that have made Bend what it is today. The Tumalo park would do this, but to do it properly, and to make the park what it should be, more than a few acres should be obtained. The number should be several hundred instead of six or seven, unless the cost would be prohibitive.

If the city is going into the park business, however, it should not confine itself to the Tumalo site.
That is a site for a park of one kind, but, in spite of all its advantages, we think it should not take precedence over a park in the city limits.

We cannot agree with the council committee that any tract available in the city limits is too small for a park. A park is of no standard size.
Any spot, however small, either beautiful in itself or which can be made beautiful, which can be enjoyed by the public, and especially by the women and children, is large enough for a park. There are several such spots in Bend, one, in particular, along the river, which the committee apparently does not favor, but which we believe a majority of the people would favor.

As between a park in the city and one on Tumalo creek, we urge that the city site be acquired first. It can be available to all, while a spot four miles away can be visited only by those with cars, and if one has a car he needs no park. If the two can be had together, let's have them; but if only one is our limit, let's get one in the city.

Calling a special session of congress indicates that Wilson wants to start a new war at home as soon as he gets the old one cleaned up at Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. Newlywed, Save up for a Home!

JUST a word to the NEWLYWEDS. Dear friends, we don't want to PREACH to you, but we do wish to say SIMPLY and EMPHAT-ICALLY: "BEGIN SAVING FOR YOUR HOME NOW!" It's not EASY, we know. The first years of your new life require most of your money, which perhaps does not come to you as plentifully as it will later. But save NOW. DON'T WAIT. It'll make you HAPPY.

LIVE FOR WORLD TO COME

Inhabitants of Monasteries on Mount Athos Take No Thought of Mundane Things.

The long peninsula tapering southward from the busy city of Saloniki ends in three irregular prongs like a misused trident of Neptune. On the end of the easternmost of these prongs, almost surrounded by the sea, stands the Holy mountain, or Mount Athos.
It is given to men whose thoughts and doings are all directed with a sole thought of the world to come, so that the war agony which convulsed this earth hardly caused a ripple in their quiet existence. The slopes of Mount Athos are covered with monasteries, large and small.

It is a little world in itself, this bit of ancient Greece. It lives to a quiet ordered tempo in an atmosphere where noise and strife are almost unknown, where all the little doings of the day move to a thousand-year-old ritual.
There are men here who have not wandered a mile from their cloister in twenty years, willing prisoners of their own convictions. It is a place of kindly, dreamy life, free from heartburnings and jealousies, where each man is the equal of his fellow, despite the castes and ranks of the order—equal in a common infinite littleness before the majesty of divine omnipotence and eternity.

No woman is permitted to visit the sacred ground of the mountain, not that the order looks down on woman, but rather in tribute to her power to draw the thoughts of men from the eternal things. Despite the prohibition, however, there are rumors of women disguised who fled to Athos and found sanctuary there in the time of the Greek revolt and the war with the Turks. It is whispered, too, that the daughter of an English admiral accompanied her father on an official visit in the uniform of a midshipman.

DYES FROM MOOR AND HILL

Plants in Scottish Highlands and Ireland Used to Produce Vast Variety of Tints.

We think of the preparation of color tints as having been essentially a German industry, though in reality the first discovery in that line was made by an English scientist, when in 1856 Sir W. H. Perkins introduced a beautiful mauve tint. Further back still English and Irish dyes depended for tones of yellow on the brown or genesta plant, the whin in Scotland, a plant of the gorse family.

Woad, too, was another valuable ally of the dyer. Fermented woad holds about two per cent of indigo and was used to obtain that color. Woad-dyed cloth was dipped into a broom liquor in order to obtain a rich green.
So that three colors with a multitude of shades were possible at once. In the Scottish highlands lichens are still collected in order to get purples, reds, brown and yellows so constantly needed in dyeing the clan and national tartans. In this connection Ptolemy tells us that the navigators came from Tyre and Sidon to the sea-cliffs of Ireland in order to obtain certain "mosses," or lichens, for use in compounding the renowned imperial purples and Tyrian reds of their land.
Walnut, dyers' green weed, barberry, yellow hedstraw, buckthorn, sea buckthorn, and corn marigold are among the plants of the Irish country-side which have been used as dye-stuffs by past generations.

Mere Incident in Cat's Life.

You're not obliged to believe the following story, nor even strain your imagination over it. The Bath (Maine) Times tell it. About four years ago a Bath man went smelt fishing off a wharf on the riverside and when he returned lashed up his pole on which was his fishing line in a corner of the kitchen. Attached to the hook was a minnow for live bait and this was wriggling on the hook, when the man's pet black eon cat espied the fish and made for it. Before the owner could prevent, the cat had swallowed the fish and the hook. It was impossible for the man to pull out the hook without killing his pet so he cut the line, leaving the bait and the hook and a small portion of the line within the coony. The cat seems to have assimilated the hook, for she never has shown any symptoms of discomfort from her strange meal and is still alive and in apparent good health.

Japanese Wrestlers.

Because of their enormous stature and girth it has often been assumed by foreigners that Japanese wrestlers are a race apart, a strange little group of native giants handed down from antiquity. As a matter of fact the wrestlers, recruited from the fishing, farming and forester classes, have splendid physique to begin with, and become strong and muscular through their long training and the encouragement that is given to their voracious appetites. Friends are very fond of giving them big banquets and are amused to see how much they can eat. One prominent trainer, when invited by his backers to a dinner, took all his students along with him, saying, "All my followers come along with me who can drink a gallon of sake apiece." There is a touch of the Rabelaisian in it, especially when one contrasts it with the usual foreign impression of the dainty tea-sipping, cherry-fetters Japanese.

The Only Explanation.
"Your husband tells me he has quit betting on horses!"
"Oh dear!" exclaimed young Mrs.
Tolkins. "Charley's broke again!"

Packing House By-Products.

The by-products in the packing house industry may be divided into two classes—the edible and the inedible.
The inedible constitute the external covering (hair, horns, hoofs and hides), some of the offal, and the bones. From these are prepared a great variety of substances, some of which have developed into enormous industries in themselves, such as leather, soap, glue and fertilizer. The last mentioned represents the ultimate utilization of packing house waste. For example, in the manufacture of buttons, combs, knife handles and spatulas from the horns and hoofs of cattle and sheep and the hoofs of hogs the waste resulting from the preparation of these articles was at one time thrown away, but it has been found that by treating such material with sulphuric acid the nitrogen which it contains becomes available as a fertilizer.

GOODBY, WOMEN'S TROUBLES

The tortures and discomforts of weak, lame and aching back, swollen feet and limbs, weakness, dizziness, nausea, as a rule have their origin in kidney trouble, not "female complaints." These general symptoms of kidney and bladder disease are well known—this is the remedy.

Next time you feel a twinge of pain in the back or are troubled with headache, indigestion, insomnia, irritation in the bladder or pain in the loins and lower abdomen, you will find quick and sure relief in GOLD MEDAL Hamlet Oil Capsules. This old and tried remedy for kidney trouble and allied derangements has stood the test for hundreds of years. It does the work.
Pains are troubles vanish and new life and health will come as you continue their use. When completely restored to your usual vigor, continue taking a capsule or two each day.

GOLD MEDAL Hamlet Oil Capsules are imported from the laboratories at Haarlem, Holland. Do not accept a substitute. In sealed boxes, three sizes.
