THE ROOSEVELT HIGHWAY.

Yesterday citizens of Bend had the pleasure of meeting and entertaining B. F. Jones of Newport and Tom Hanley of Tillamook, who are touring the state in the interest of the Roosevelt coast military highway bill, which will be passed on by the people of Oregon at the special election June 3. The chief arguments advanced by the visitors from the coast, and one which appeals particularly to Central Oregonians, is that the counties west of the mountains will support the irrigation measures coming up at the election, and that the voters in the Central and Eastern Oregon counties should reciprocate by casting their ballots for the Roosevelt highway appropriation of $2,500,000.

This argument, excellent though it is, should not be necessary. While the coast highway is not a direct benefit to Deschutes county and Central Oregon, it is, nevertheless, a vital part of the state good roads policy, and of supreme importance to many living west of the mountains. The counties in this section of the state have for several months past put up a determined fight for the construction of the Dalles-California highway, which will involve the expenditure of considerable sums of state money. This is not of great moment as far as the development of coast interests are concerned, any more than is our irrigation program, but it is a move for the development and betterment of the state as a whole. The same statement applies to support given by us to the Roosevelt highway.

The road so earnestly advocated by the coast voters is planned to be built by the state in cooperation with the federal government, from Astoria, through Clatsop, Tillamook, Lincoln, Lane, Douglas, Coos and Curry counties, to the California line. It will open up thousands of acres of rich land, much of which is now virtually inaccessible, and it is estimated that by so doing taxable property will be increased $100,000,000, which in itself would allow for the return of the original investment, in taxes, within five years' time.

Realizing their own needs in road building, the people of Central Oregon will appreciate the problems of communication confronting residents of other parts of the state, and in voting for the Roosevelt highway will have an unequalled opportunity of showing that they take a real interest in the welfare of the state at large.

Burn Fortune in Opium.

Hundreds of cases of opium, reported worth their weight in gold, were lately burned by the Chinese government to prevent the attempted resumption of the trade. From the Shanghai warehouses of the dealers the drug was ferried across the river, under guard, and the sticky mass was fed to four furnaces and carefully raked into the flames. Precautions were taken to make sure that none of the stuff remained, even the rakes being withdrawn only after prolonged burning.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

There are pleasanter things than carrying a basket--

And more profitable things too.

Carrying a basket uses up your energy, takes time and spoils your temper. And it's entirely unnecessary.

We do not ask you to carry home your groceries. We believe that we can perform this service for you cheaper and better than you can do it for yourself.

And our growing business is proof that hundreds of housewives in this community feel the same way about it.

Why not let us shoulder your marketing burdens?

We'll tell you what things are good and you can trust us too, because you can understand how dangerous it would be for us to advise you to buy something you wouldn't like.

We recommend Dement's Patent Flour from Walla Walla hard wheat.

"But when I was courting you you didn't need so much gas," said the young husband.

"No, dear," replied the sweet young thing as he chided wife.

"You were satisfied then to sit in the darkened room with me. Now you want every gasburner in the house lighted."

"Well, you must remember, Henry, that my father is not paying for this gas now."—Yonkers Statesman.

GOAT GIRL OF GREECE

Red Cross official photograph showing a little goat girl of Greece; behind her is Mount Parnassus. She is just one of the two hundred million people in central Europe and the Balkans who were hit hardest by the war. Germany absorbed the life blood of central Europe, the raw materials and food, in order to keep up the Hun military machine and feed the German people. Disease developed among all these war-stricken people; the allied blockade on Austria and Turkey and Bulgaria stopped the imports of such necessities as cotton. Today fourteen races are looking to America for goods. They want to buy, and will buy, after the peace treaty automatically abolishes the blockade.

Learning to Drum
 How Haydn learned to beat a drum and the preservation of the first one he played make an amusing story. There was to be a great church festival, including a procession through the streets in which the choristers were as a matter of course to take part, but the drummer falling ill, no one could be found to take his place until the director called for Joseph Haydn, showed him how to make the stroke and left him alone. Joseph found a meal tub, stretched a cloth over the top, set it on a stool and began to drum away with such vigor that the drum was soon overturned and himself covered with meal. But the stroke was learned and the spectators of the procession found their gravity unduly taxed by the sight of a little fellow of six years beating a big drum carried before him by a hunch-back, since a huncher of ordinary stature would have raised the instrument far out of the drummer's reach. The drum used on that occasion by Haydn is still preserved in the choir of the church at Hamburg.
