BEAUTIFUL LAND OF HOLLAND

Oliver Goldsmith's Description of Dutch Country as True Today as When He Wrote It.

"In winter, when their canals are frozen, every house is forsaken, and all people are on the ice; sleds drawn by horses, and skating, are at that time the reigning amusements," Oliver Goldsmith wrote of the Dutch. "They have boats here that slide on the ice, and are driven by the winds. When they spread all their sails they go more than a mile and a half a minute, and their motion is so rapid the eye can scarcely accompany them. Their ordinary manner of traveling is very cheap and very convenient; they sail in covered boats drawn by horses; and in these you are sure to meet people of all nations. Here the Dutch slumber, the French chatter, and the English play cards. Any man who likes company may have it to his taste. For my part I generally detached myself from all society, and was wholly taken up in observing the face of the country. Nothing can equal its beauty; wherever I turn my eye, fine houses, elegant gardens, statues, grottoes, vistas, presented themselves; but when you enter their towns you are charmed beyond description."

Airplane Prospecting.
The airplane is destined to be of enormous utility in facilitating prospecting for and opening up mineral properties in the Andean valleys. Hydroplanes can fly from the Pacific to the upper waters of the Amazon in a few hours, while there are good landing places for planes on many of the snow fields of the higher Andes, which have never yet been explored. The airplane is almost ideal for transporting precious metals, where the value is high in proportion to weight and bulk, and the time-saving is so important as well as the safety from robbery. Already plans are under way to use planes in Peru and Colombia.

COM. BOONE DECORATED

Lieutenant Commander J. T. Boone of the marine corps is the first navy man to be decorated in Washington for service with the A. E. F. Acting Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt pinned the Croix de Guerre with palm on Commander Boone in the secretary's office. Boone has been cited three times for bravery. He is a resident of Pottsville, Pa.

Authorship Not Determined.

"The more I see of human nature, the more I love dogs." The common phrasing of this cynicism is: "The more I see of men the better I like dogs." This has proved the despair of the industrious folk who run quotable passages down to their source. Because the sentiment is somewhat sardonic it has been attributed to the French and credited to Victor Hugo and Georges Sand, but the attribution has never been satisfactorily fortified by the citation of chapter and verse. The authorship remains a problem, and when it was proposed here some years ago the curious scholarship of those who are alert to answer these questions failed to shed any light.

Mines Threaten Shipping.

Naval authorities say it will be several years before the waters of Europe are entirely free of floating mines. Many of the German mines destroyed by allied trawlers were found to have been moored by ropes. When the rope rotted the mines broke from their anchorages and drifted in many cases to the main line of steam travel.

Song Inspired by Poster?
It is an interesting bit of history, in view of the importance of posters as an inspiration and interpretation of patriotism, that the Marseillaise was inspired by a contemporary poster. At first thought one might imagine that the art of the poster, as it is now understood, was unknown in 1792, but the proclamation of the mayor of Strasbourg, with its terse, ringing sentences, beginning "To arms, citizens!" was no doubt as effective as the posters produced in 1918. Posted on the city walls, as Jean Richepin of the French academy has just pointed out, the words of the proclamation directly inspired Rouget de Lisle in the composition of the "Marseillaise," or, as it was first called, "The War Song of the Armies of the Rhine." Later the convention at Paris entitled it the "Hymn of Marseilles," but the public promptly named it "La Marseillaise," and it might almost be said to have set the mayor's poster to music.—Christian Science Monitor

The characteristic musical instrument of the Chinese is a series of bamboo tubes, the longest of which measures about nine inches, and of which the remainder diminish in length at a regular ratio, each being just two-thirds the length of the one before. This arrangement was devised by the Chinese—they say, by the Emperor Huang-Ti—on the following principle: Between heaven and earth there is perfect harmony. Now, the number three is the emblem of heaven and two of earth. If then two pipes or tubes be made in the proportion of three to two, they will harmonize in tone as perfectly as earth and heaven. So the base tube of the instrument was made nine inches long and the second two-thirds that length, or six inches. Of course, the third has to be two-thirds the length of the second, or four inches; and so on. The result was that the note of the second tube was what we call an interval of a fifth above that of the first, that of the third a fifth above the second, and so on through the whole range.
