COULD READILY BELIEVE IT

Stage Driver Quite Willing to Accept "Keeper's" Explanation as He Understood It.

The New Englander uses the word "natural" to describe one who was unfurnished at birth with the usual and indispensable quantity of brains. Prof. Burt G. Wilder, the distinguished zoologist, tells an amusing story that turns on a countryman's mistaking the unfamiliar word "naturalist" for the familiar word "natural."

A few years after his arrival in America, Agassiz was one of a small party of Harvard professors who traversed the White Mountain region in a carriage driven by the countryman. Three of them were vivacious, restless, and on the lookout for specimens. They would call a halt, leap from the vehicle before it stopped, dash over the fields, and return with prizes in their boxes, in their hands and pockets, and even pinned upon their hats. The fourth, Prof. Felton, the brother-in-law of Agassiz, sat quietly in his corner of the carriage reading a favorite Greek author.

When the bewildered driver could stand it no longer he elicited from Felton information that led him to view the behavior of the others with compassionate toleration. At the close of the day he thus conveyed his interpretation to the innkeeper:

"I drove the queerest lot you ever saw. They chattered like monkeys. They wouldn't keep still. They jumped the fences, tore about the fields, and came back with their hats covered with bugs. I asked their keeper what ailed them; he said they was naturals, and, 'judgin' from the way they acted, I should say they was.'—Youths' Companion.

MUCH DIFFERENCE IN HUMOR

Brand Highly Thought Of in One Country Is Not Always Appreciated in Others.

When Coleridge said, "No mind is thoroughly well organized that is deficient in the sense of humor," he expressed a conviction that seems common to all civilized men, and makes each nation take pride in its humor and perhaps suspect that other nations enjoy a somewhat inferior brand. Yet comparisons of humor shows, broadly speaking, that the peoples of the world are much alike. In the Tourist, published in Tokyo, a Japanese author, for example, remarks that humor "is indeed the flower of life, and life without it would be as dreary as spring without its blossoms. To illustrate, he translates a number of Japanese anecdotes, "funny stories," as the United States might call them, but one does not smile over them. Neither, on second thought, does one smile over many of the "funny stories" in American magazines and newspapers. Humor which really amuses is everywhere rare and precious, a "flower of life," as the Japanese gentleman poetically puts it, but growing up in company with a great many weeds.—Christian Science Monitor.

No Idle Chatter.

When a young girl I was timid and shy, and having attention directed to me always caused me much embarrassment. One evening I was invited to a rather formal dinner party. All the girls present were considerably older than I, so I said nothing until about the middle of the meal, although the others were chatting in a desultory manner.

Suddenly a young woman sitting at my right turned to me with the question: "Don't you ever say anything?" It seemed to me that the attention of every one at the table was focused on me, and blushing furiously, I stammered: "Oh, yes, sometimes, when there's something interesting to talk about." A stony silence greeted my remark.—Chicago Tribune.

CITY COUNCIL WILL SET ELECTION DATE

Budget, Bond Issue, Library Appropriation and Charter Amendment to Appear on Ballot.

To set the date for a special city election, at which the budget will be voted for the coming year, members of the Bend city council will meet this evening at 8 o'clock, in the council rooms in the Sphier building. In addition to the budget, a charter amendment to make the city election law conform to the statute, a $3,000 tax for the Carnegie library fund, and a $5,000 bond issue to provide a revolving fund for street improvements, will be placed on the ballot.
