"Peter's Pence."

Peterpence or Peter's pence was the annual contribution for the support of the papacy. It consisted of the payment of a silver penny by every family that possessed land or cattle whose value was 30 pence. In England this payment was abolished under Henry VIII, and in other countries did not survive the Reformation.

Locusts Used as Food.
Locusts are eaten in many countries where they are roasted or fried in butter. They are also preserved in brine and often dried in the sun. They thus appear in the markets of Arabia, Syria, Egypt and Madagascar, and are even exported as an article of commerce. They are also candied and eaten as a delicacy in China.

STATE TO AID SERVICE MEN

HOME SERVICE SECTION OF A. R. C. ADVISES MEN DESIRING HELP AT COLLEGE TO MAKE APPLICATION AT ONCE.

The home service section of the American Red Cross, located in the First National Bank building, circuit court chambers, is now prepared to take care of the soldiers and sailors who desire to pursue courses of study in Oregon institutions of learning. All honorably discharged soldiers, sailors and marines enlisted or inducted into the service of the United States from the state of Oregon are eligible for this aid. This includes those citizens of Oregon who were temporarily absent from the state and were enlisted from some other state as a matter of convenience. Individuals who have been in the branch of the service known as the Students Army Training corps or who were inducted or enlisted in the limited service of the United States army and who did not leave the United States in that service shall not receive this aid. Student Army Training Corps men who were sent to training camps or received commissions in or were transferred to the service of the United States therefrom cease to be members of the Student Army Training Corps upon being commissioned or transferred into the service of the United States, and are entitled to the benefits of the act.

The financial aid given by the state of Oregon for educational purposes is $25 per month, with a maximum of $200 a year for four years. Application forms can be secured from the home service section of the American Red Cross. These application blanks are in the form of affidavits and are filed with the executive of the institutions in which the soldier or sailor desires to pursue his course of study. The home service section urges prompt attention to this matter as the beginning of the school term will soon be here. Office hours are from 1:30 to 5:30 o'clock and Saturday evenings from 7 to 9 o'clock.

"HOUSE DIVIDED" SCORES.
Without question one of the finest and most ably produced and acted pictures that has been seen in Bend in a long time is "A House Divided," featuring Herbert Rawlinson and Sylvia Bremer. Patrons of the Liberty theater have been unanimous in their approval of this strong photoplay. It is a piece of art from beginning to the end. The

CAMPING IN OLD MOROCCO

Travel by Caravan, the Chief Means of Transportation, Has Many Pleasant Features.

The Moroccan encampment, whether it is military or that of some traveling band, is always picturesque. Elsie F. Well writes in Asia Magazine. The tents of persons of distinction are often surmounted with copper balls and decorated with arabesques of cloth. Camping is a fine art in Morocco, where the roads are almost impassable, and the chief means of transportation is by caravan.

All day one rides across the great plains, prodigally covered with iris, daffodils, daisies, buttercups and wild lavender. Perhaps a wild band of horsemen will gallop by, their robes, sea green, salmon colored and blue, streaming in the wind, their horses richly caparisoned like those of some crusading king. Occasionally one skirts a little village built of mud and wattle and surrounded by fields of wheat and barley. Here and there the white-domed shrine of some saint rises serenely above the plain. And at sundown the shepherds playing on their reed flutes drive their flocks of sheep and goats home from pasture.

Then it is time to pitch the tents near a grove of orange trees or on a fairy carpet of red anemones. One dines on roasted sheep and cous-cous and is lulled to sleep by the songs of the guard under the intense blue of the African sky.

SIGHT WELL WORTH SEEING

Canyons of Southern California at Times Furnish Spectacles Nothing Short of Remarkable.

The spectacle of rain, fire and flood all occurring at the same time, is not an unusual sight in some of the canyons near Los Angeles, says the Scientific American. The most notable example is near Santa Monica, which is on the southern coast of California. The precipitous sides of the canyons debouching into the Pacific ocean in that vicinity are composed of clay and shale. Whenever rain falls on these rocks, great clouds of steam rise from the canyons. The canyon crests and faces are crowned by vitrified rock burned a dull red.

It is reported by the early historians that when the Mission fathers visited this region 150 years ago the natives avoided these places. They claimed that these mysterious canyons were the abode of evil spirits and the Indians could not be induced to guide the priests to their vicinity.

Actual flame has also been reported in one of these canyons. Hence the occasional newspaper accounts of active "volcanoes" near the coast of California. The phenomena are evidently due to fires in the petroleum-bearing shales which crop out in these regions. The cause of the fires is uncertain. They may be started by lightning or they may be a case of spontaneous combustion.

Bamboo Grass.

The giant bamboo grass of Japan and China grows at the rate of two feet a day in some instances, and sometimes to the height of 150 feet and a diameter of two feet. A clump is planted and it widens over the landscape with remarkable rapidity. The bamboo takes the place of steel and iron to a great extent in China and Japan. The farmer uses it to build his house and fence it; his household furniture is manufactured from it, and the tender shoots furnish him with a delicious vegetable for his table. It supplies framework for awnings, ribs of sails and handles of rakes, material for the chicken coops and bird cages, stuffing for pillows and mattresses, chopsticks for eating, pipes for smoking, brooms for sweeping, chairs to sit upon, skewers to pin the hair, hats to screen the head, paper to write on, the pencil to write with, the crab net and the fishpole.

Must Be One of the Crowd.

You can't crawl into yourself and maintain wholesome social relations. It's a mistaken notion that teaches a fellow to think he is the only one of his kind in the community. He may be a genius in some lines, but he will have equals in others. And what folly to begin such introspection that you are perpetually busy with your own thoughts. The effect is the very opposite of what you would have on the public. Men know that the really big man is able to leave his burdens at the desk where they belong. He works when he works and then begins storing up energy for the next day. And here again what you really are counts. There's something of telepathy that flashes from mind to mind and warns the wary of self-centered individuals.

Social Icebergs.

Some men are social icebergs. There seems to be no reason why they should be, but they are. They are good looking, dress well, have education, come of good family, and have money. Yet in spite of these advantages they fail to be the center of attraction among men. There is something about them that chills you as soon as you begin a conversation with them. They are the wall flowers at parties, the last picked at games, and the drones at every function that seeks to promote fellowship. Sometimes it's hard to see just what is the matter with them, but you have no difficulty in getting proof that they are no help in the social world. They just chill everybody and everything that they touch.
