KEEP THE SPIRIT ALIVE.

Before there was any world war the Red Cross was an agency of relief in time of emergency. The American Red Cross was an institution capable not only of meeting such needs as followed disaster at home, but able to extend relief abroad commensurate with the normal requirements. Even before the entry of the United States into the war of nations, the American humanitarian organization practically reached the limit of resourcefulness in assisting in the care of the sick and wounded, conformitory to the laws of neutrality.

When the war became in part OUR war, the patriotism and generosity of the American people gave such mighty expansion to their Red Cross—with rapidity that amazed the world—as to dwarf all previous conceptions of organized relief. There was a new birth of the Red Cross spirit. Under its influence the men and women of America not only provided for every comfort and care pertaining to their own beloved sons called to the defense of the flag; they underwrote the morale of the depressed peoples at whose thresholds the war was raging, and furnished the forces and machinery that carried physical help to the suffering.

The dawn of peace saw great areas of the earth desolate; in countries reopened to the outside world the people were striving, naked, racked with pestilence. Immediately greater need than ever arose for the relief of human misery. Red Cross spirit and organization were ready to meet the new situation. The American Red Cross campaign for membership renewals and funds is our part of the contract imposed by freedom's victory of arms.

The chess board is the world, the pieces are the phenomena of the universe, the rules of the game are what we call the laws of Nature. The player on the other side is hidden from us. We know that his play is always fair, just and patient. But we also know, to our cost, that he never overlooks a mistake, or makes the smallest allowance for ignorance. To the man who plays well, the highest stakes are paid, with that sort of overflowing generosity with which the strong man shows delight in strength. And one who plays ill is checkmated—without haste, but without remorse.—Huxley.

Whatever may be the feeling about the League of Nations covenant all will agree that this month our country has a mandate for turkey.

Garden of Eden in Mexico?
A prehistoric race that lived in Mexico centuries before Cortez ever arrived there to crush the power of the Aztec kingdom, was a civilized people who were flooded out of existence by a deluge that swept the valley of Mexico, as relics picked up near the capital city prove, and some writers assert that Mexico was the site of the beginning of man and that it was in this valley that Noah set forth for his 40-day tour of the flooded world.

Time to Re-Join

NOVEMBER.

November skies are dreary, her winds as sharp as knives; and all the world seems weary, when this sad month arrives; the birds no longer tarry where tempests raise old Harry, the bees no longer carry the glucose to their hives. The cockleburrs I tended through golden summer days, the milk-weeds tall and splendid, no longer meet the gaze; the frost is falling nightly, I see it gleaming whitely, when in the morn, politely, I cuss November's ways. The night wind, at the casement, now shrieks in fiendish glee; the furnace in the basement is calling, calling me; in spring I didn't need it, the summer weather freed it, but soon I'll have to feed it coal carloads two or three. No wonder if my sonnet should strike a plaintive note; my uncle has my bonnet, he also has my coat; the summer rags I'm wearing won't do when blasts are tearing, and creditors are swearing; my uncle has my goat. Alas, that bleak November, which leaves us cold and numb, is followed by December, the bummiest of the bum! Then comes fierce January, to punish the unwary; but, hoots! let us be merry—the worst is yet to come.

BATTALION OF DEATH HEROINE A BRIDE

For five years this Russian girl fought at the front with the famous "Battalion of Death," made up of women warriors. She was twice wounded and twice decorated by the czar, and for six months a prisoner of war in Germany. Now she has come to America for the happiness of an American home, the wife of Harry C. Menefee of Covington, Ky. This picture was taken on board the S. S. America upon her arrival at New York.

MYLER CONSTRUCTION CO.
SEEKS TO RESTRAIN RAIL-
ROAD FROM GIVING STOCK
FOR EXPIRED FRANCHISES.

PORTLAND, Nov. 7.—Action in the circuit court has been started here by the Myler Construction Co., to restrain the Portland & South-eastern railway from taking franchise deeds, or other allegedly worthless assets in payment for 1,000,000 shares of stock. The action comes as a cross complaint to the railroad's suit to replevin maps and engineer's notes retained by the contractors.

In answer to the railway complaint, the Myler company asserts the stock offered them in payment for their surveys and preliminary work on the railroad is not paid up stock, and by way of cross-complaint seeks to prevent the directors of the railroad at an early meeting from voting to accept assets alleged to be valueless, for their stock.

The construction company now desires either a money judgment for work already done or payment in fully paid up stock.

Times Have Changed.
It is said that the post office in Philadelphia will lose $15,000 a day as the result of going from the three-cent back to the two-cent rate for letters.
That happens to be exactly the sum which Benjamin Franklin was able to turn over to Great Britain in annual revenues from the post offices in the colonies in 1774, after he had put in four years of hard work in creating a postal system.

That's the Question.

Are Ladies
Afraid of Reasonable
Prices?

(A business editorial intended to inform the lady purchaser of Central Oregon that a reasonable price for merchandise does not mean inferior quality.)

PRICES

The word prices is the watchword of every household in America today. Housewives keep in constant touch with them. She has come almost to believe that in order to obtain quality merchandise she must pay the top price.

It is not fair that this impression should go broadcast. The methods a merchant employs in buying and selling determine, in a great measure, the selling price of an article after it leaves the producer or manufacturer.

WE WANT EVERY LADY TO KNOW

Our methods of buying directly from the manufacturer through a thoroughly competent and experienced buyer who knows the market, understands fabrics and can appreciate values, eliminates the jobber. Our goods come direct from the manufacturer.

Buying and selling for cash reduces, in a great measure, the cost of doing business, which advantage comes in cutting the selling price of our merchandise.

Our prices have been so reasonable that ladies who have come into our store after seeing other merchandise of similar quality believe at first sight that our merchandise is inferior. But after thorough inspection they have come to be convinced that it is only a matter of better values at a more reasonable price.

To the lady who is not one of our customers we feel certain that we have the merchandise you want at the price you feel able to pay.
