HELP THE STOCKMEN.

The suggestions made at the meeting of the Shorthorn association on Saturday are important to all livestock breeders in this county. It is to be hoped that the other associations will take them up and proceed to obtain the protective measures needed.

On two points of the proposed program substantial aid can be given by the city of Bend. One concerns estrays and the other the marketing of beef, both subjects to be dealt with by the city council and each offering an opportunity to show consideration for the rancher and farmer which we believe has hitherto been lacking.

The manner of dealing with estrays is, of course, provided by city ordinance and if necessary the ordinance can be amended to cover the needs of the stockmen. However, they have never criticized the impounding of stock. They recognize that the city must take up animals running at large to avoid damage to property. All they ask is that when taken up notice be sent at their expense describing the animals and their brands so that, if missing stock is recognized, the owner may come for it before charges in any considerable amount have accrued.

The other matter, the regulation of the sale of beef, is more difficult to deal with since it makes extra trouble for the honest rancher who kills and brings in his own meat for sale. It is the only way however, to protect against the cattle thief and, since the protection extends to every stock owner they ought all to be willing to undergo any slight inconvenience caused by the need of obtaining the proposed permit.

The other matters discussed on Saturday are subjects for others than the city council to deal with.

Saturday's meeting was highly interesting and valuable to the Shorthorn owner and breeder. It was a milestone in the progress of a new industry that will mean much to the county. Mr. Mahaffey and the Central Oregon Bank are to be congratulated on the assistance they have rendered in giving it a start.

We have heard Hoover suggested as a good man for the Department of the Interior. He surely did a good job regulating our interiors during the war.

With the Reds gone things ought not to look at all blue around these United States.

"Cardinal Virtues."

Our English word cardinal comes from the Latin word "cardinalis" which means to hinge, hence applied to that on which something turns or depends; so in the case of the phrase cardinal virtues, the adjective is used in the sense of chief, or principal. The cardinal virtues of the ancients were Justice, Prudence, Temperance and Fortitude, and were so called because the whole of human virtues were supposed to hinge or turn upon them. This mode of dividing the virtues is to be found as far back as Socrates, and these were regarded by the Catholic church as moral in distinction from the theological virtues of Faith, Hope and Charity. "But this classification into cardinal virtues," says William Whewell, the celebrated English scientist and philosopher, "is somewhat arbitrary," and he points out that it wholly omits the fundamental virtue of benevolence.

Rangers Marry Teachers.

It is a curious fact that approximately 75 per cent of the forest rangers are married to school teachers. You will wonder where all the school teachers come from in this sparsely settled region, writes Alice Spencer Cook in the American Forestry Magazine of Washington. This is partly explained by the fact that every district has at least one teacher, regardless of the number of pupils. Since 25 per cent of all receipts from the national forests go to the counties in which they lie, to be used for schools and roads, they can well afford to employ a teacher at an attractive salary.

Rippling Rhymes

Industry.

"By industry we thrive," our fathers used to say; all day they looked alive, and put up tons of hay. They went at work full tilt, and seldom paused to rest; and thus our fathers built the country we infest. "By eloquence we thrive;" this is our watchword now; no longer do we strive to earn in sweat of brow. The country's boyed with care, the care that sears and carks, and we hand out hot air, and make a few remarks. The whistles do not toot to call men to their tasks, for all men elocute, on platforms, kegs and casks. The country's needing coal that children may not freeze, and gets a rigmarole, a protest and a wheeze. The country's needing peace, and harmony and zeal, and it would have surcease from fuss and frenzied spiel; but we like eight day clocks are to the limit wound, and every fellow talks, and rants and paws the ground. We all are Ciceros, we all have silver tongues, and haughtily pose, and labor with our lungs. The sound of factory bell can only chafe and irk; we're binding with a spell, and haven't time to work. Together let us get, let all our rows be tinned; let's try to earn with sweat what we can't earn with wind.

And an old man there, blind and deaf and dumb. His face alight with faith. He wouldn't make a hit on Broadway. "Funny in the head." They'd call him, and smirk and go their ways. But that old man makes crooks go straight. Floods darkened souls with sun. How?—Belief, he thinks. You, being wise, may smile. But we who have seen and felt—No miracles? Where do you get that bunk?

"THE MIRACLE MAN"

By Russell Mitchelltree.
No Miracles Today?
I've seen a gnarled, misshapen thing, misnamed a man, Writing in the streets, begging for coins with a cripple's whine. And after the day's good pickings, rise in his shame And loosen his hard mug into a grin. Now he's standing, face to the world, Working to ease another's closing years. It would warm your heart to hear the big boob laugh And see him pet the little gray old lady on the cheek.
No miracles? That handsome devil, standing with the girl. Once had a heart as black as the hair his victims loved to stroke. One of those cynical, sneering guys, lurking, shark-like, In the under-tow of life, to pull down human souls. Look at him! What's that that they say about God's image? One night, last April, down in Clancy's place, I saw him kiss that girl, after they'd trimmed a rube— Both of them loud and stewed— And then again today, after he'd slipped her a tiny ring.— No miracles? Hell, bo! Where d'ya get that bunk?
You, with your facts and science, come with me— Me—a year ago, shaking with dope and a hacking cough. And my finger itching for pockets to pick. I'll show you a little house, resting among the roses, High on a slope that rises from the sea;
