NEW SHOP TO OPEN ON GREENWOOD SOON

From Eight to 10 Men Will be Employed in Establishment to be Conducted by A. J. Tucker.

With preliminary blasting practically finished, A. J. Tucker will begin work in the next few days on a $4,000 one story stone building, 35 by 60 feet, on the corner of Greenwood and Harriman, which when completed will be used by Mr. Tucker to house workshops for several allied trades, including blacksmithing, carpentering, and cabinet making, all to be under his own supervision. A specialty will be made of automobile top and body work.

Mr. Tucker expects that the building can be completed within 30 days, and once the establishment is opened he plans to employ from eight to 10 men. In addition to the equipment which he now has in his shop on Irving, he will install several pieces of new machinery.

Later in the season, on the lot back of the shop site, Mr. Tucker will erect a $4,000, five room brick residence.

STUDY OF FEET INTERESTING

No Two Pairs of Them Alike, and All Tell a Story to the Observant Individual.

In the subway and on the surface cars—in fact, in every sort of public conveyance—I have always found it interesting to while away the time spent in transit by making a study of feet. Large feet, small feet, narrow feet and broad feet have characteristics all their own, and no two pairs of them are alike. The long, slender, graceful foot of the woman of fashion, she with the rather lavish taste, betokened in the extreme heel and narrow, buckled vamp; the smartly shod foot of the executive business woman, with mahogany calf and military heel; the neat but worn black leather shoe of the shop worker, and the ultra faddish down-at-the-heel, high-cut kid shoe of the stenographer or factory girl. All of them tell a story. The girl who cares about getting ahead, and the boy who is ambitious, watch out that your feet do not betray you. Very often I have seen a well-groomed business girl whose appearance was entirely spoiled by a muddy or run-down pair of shoes, and I always judge her accordingly. An employer, hiring an office boy or a clerk, will invariably base his decision on the get up of his applicant. Unshined shoes and torn stockings may cause you to lose that opportunity for which you have always been looking.—Brooklyn Eagle.

GIVES GRIZZLY HIGHEST RANK

Writer Deplores General Idea That the Animal is of Coarse and Crude Temperament.

A grizzly has supersensitive ears, and loud, harsh sounds give his nerves a harrowing shock. Through his higher development the grizzly probably suffers more intensely and enjoys more fully than other animals. The clashing city noises must be a never-ending irritation and torture to a bear who has been sentenced to end his days in a riotous environment. How he must yearn for the hush of the wilderness! And, as his sense of smell is also amazingly developed, perhaps he longs for a whiff of pine-scented air and the wild, exquisite perfume of the violets. Experience in many zoos had shown that subjecting caged grizzlies to close contact with people is usually cruelty to animals. Often they become cross, and a number of crowd-worried grizzlies have died prematurely from resultant apoplexy. Modern zoo bear pens are constructed so that the bear is beyond the wiles of visitors—so that he can have much privacy—one of the needs of any grizzly. Perhaps we too often think of the bulky grizzly as being coarse and crude. But he is an animal of the highest type, sensitive, independent and retiring. The normal bear is good tempered and cheerful.—Enos A. Mills in "The Grizzly, Our Greatest Wild Animal."
