

ATTRACTED BY "GOLDEN BED"

Marquesas Islanders Fascinated by Sight of Article of Furniture New to Them.

An amusing tale is told of the coming of the first brass bed to Atuona. Atuona is one of the Marquesas Islands, a place of coconut palms, and people who are still ornamentally tattooed and who used to be cannibals before the missionaries arrived and taught them better. But no missionary had ever disembarked a brass bed on the beach of Atuona; it came with the baggage of a curious traveler who had seen the island from the deck of a steamer, and felt an impulse to live there a while and see what it was like. He could not depart, he says, "without penetrating into those abrupt and melancholy depths of forest, without endeavoring, though ever so feebly, to stir the cold brew of legend and tale, fast disappearing under stupor and forgetfulness." And so one day the boat brought him ashore, and the populace welcomed him, marveling at the sight of the "golden bed" and nearly overcome with delight at the elasticity of the springs under the mattress. They took turns bouncing on it, while he drove an easy bargain with the possessor of a house for the use of that domicile in return for leaving the "golden bed" with the owner when he departed. Then, the bargain concluded, the wife of the chief who owned the house had the unique privilege of sitting on the bed, happily bouncing up and down, till it was lifted on the tattooed shoulders of four Marquesans and marched with honor to its destination.

*The Ease of the Chalmers Engine
Has a Story*

WHEN you sit behind the wheel of a present day Chalmers you will long remember the rare ease of its engine.

It responds to the slightest call without effort. At high speed you are conscious of no great activity under the bonnet. But you roll along with a certain comfort of mind that is comparable only when you lag along at slow speed and note no "breaking," no "missing," no jerky action—but a quickness, a silence that is smooth and expressive of high efficiency.

There's a story back of this. Most troubles in a car come from vibration. In a Chalmers there is so little vibration as to be negligible.

Its crank shaft and reciprocating parts are balanced to a fraction of an ounce, both static and in motion.

More than this, Hot Spot vaporizes the raw gasoline into a "fog," and Ram's-horn supplies each cylinder with an even "charge."

This provides double insurance against vibration, and generates an ease of action not often found in a motor car.

Once you experience this you, too, will say Chalmers is one of the few great cars of the world.

Whose Word is Better Than Your Druggist's?

Physicians, Dentists and Nurses Rely on Him — Isn't That Sufficient Reason for Confidence?

There are many good reasons for the confidence the public repose in their druggist. First, he is educated to know by four years of College and Practical training. Second, ethical physicians everywhere rely implicitly on his skill—they trust him. This faith, of course, originates and is maintained by the professional service rendered by the druggist in filling prescriptions. Everyone admits this confidence when offering a prescription to a druggist.

Very few men can be honest in one department of their business, and dishonest in the other. Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Oyde exist very little in real life. If you trust your druggist to fill your prescription, therefore, in all fairness, you must accept his word against the word of unknown and far distant manufacturers.

To recommend an article, the druggist must of course, know what it contains and how it is made, and this was one reason for the formation of a co-operative national association of druggists and physicians who prepare a complete line of household remedies and toilet goods. This association is the American Druggists Syndicate, popularly called A.D.S., which boasts a membership of 28,000 druggists and physicians, the largest of its kind in the world. For 10 years these professional men met annually for conference in order to obtain the best formulas for its products that the combined skill and experience of its members could produce. All these articles are non-secret, strictly ethical. The ingredients in all A.D.S. preparations conform to the standard advocated by the government, and cannot be excelled in quality. As the association is strictly a co-operative, its merchandise is also sold at the very lowest prices possible for the quality.

In Bend there are three druggists who will tell you that A.D.S. Household Remedies, like Milk of Magnesia, Aspirin, Digestive Tablets, Peridol Tooth Paste, etc. are the best that they can find in all markets. These three druggists stand squarely behind every A.D.S. product with an unqualified guarantee and a hearty endorsement. Such a recommendation is the greatest that can be obtained, based on the scientific experts and fulfilled by a man you know well and must trust implicitly—your druggist.

Whenever you need a household remedy or toilet article, ask an A.D.S. Druggist to recommend one to you. All A.D.S. Druggists identify themselves with prominent window or counter displays. Ask one about A.D.S. products. If you would trust him to fill your prescription, it's only fair to take his word about the merchandise he sells.—Adv.
