

TEACHERS AND THEIR PUPILS TO BARE ARMS

VACCINATION ORDER RECEIVED

DISEASE WIDESPREAD

State Board of Health and Superintendent of Education Require Precautionary Measures Against Disease.

Pupils and teachers as well, in all city and country schools in Deschutes county must submit to vaccination as a precaution against smallpox if they are to be permitted to continue attendance at classes.

Word received this morning by City Superintendent S. W. Moore from the State Board of Health, gave warning that vaccination is compulsory if children are to continue as pupils or if teachers are to continue to instruct, and shortly after similar information was received by County Superintendent J. A. Thompson from State Superintendent Churchill, in regard to the schools outside of Bend.

According to the law, a stated fee is charged for each vaccination, except when the child or his parents is unable to pay, when no charge is made. The work will be in charge of Dr. R. W. Hendershott, County Physician, and Dr. Anna Ries Finley, City Health officer.

An unusually large number of cases of smallpox have been reported. More than 50 are said to be suffering from the disease in Bend, and there are several in the rural districts, while a number of cases in Redmond were reported earlier in the season. So far the manifestation of the disease has been mild, and no deaths from it have resulted.

Announcement of vaccination hours has not yet been made.

WORLD IN NEED OF HIGH IDEALS

ANZAC ORATOR MAKES PLEA

Fast Task of Rebuilding Civilization Will Take Optimism, Fraternalism, Religion and Education, Says Skeyhill.

Embodying the idealism which he urged upon his audience as one of the chief tools to be used in rebuilding the world, Tom Skeyhill, Australian veteran of the world war, spoke last night at the gymnasium in the first number of the Y. M. C. A. lyceum course. To those who expected an address based entirely on the war, the subject matter used by the Anzac came as a surprise, for with the exception of a masterly description of the storming of the Gallipoli forts, given as a telling argument for a lasting world peace, little of the horrors of the war in which he fought, showed in his remarks. The world rebuilt, on a foundation of peace, was the ideal he held before his hearers.

Introduced by H. J. Overturf, the speaker dwelt at first on the similarity in temperament of the American and Australian soldiers, declaring that the Australians were the only ones who really understood their last English speaking allies. Predominant was the quality of optimism and enthusiasm, and the readiness to forget all about war as soon as the actual fighting was over. "I believe that this was one of the greatest causes at work in the defeat of Germany," he said. "The Germans should have won the war, but they could not forget their hymn of hate for an instant."

No Gloves For Reds. In the rebuilding of the world, the same qualities must predominate as those so effective in winning the war, Mr. Skeyhill affirmed. "Take off your kid gloves and go after them," was his advice touching the Bolsheviki problem.

He urged a greater degree of fraternalism as potent in curing economic and political diseases of today. "Have community meetings, forget class and creed," he said. "Keep in your civilian life the spirit of unity which pervaded the army and made it effective."

Idealism and true religion he named as two more of the tools to be used in rebuilding the world, and touched with especial interest on the topic of education. "In 90 per cent of the counties in the United States that I have been in, the school system gets more than your county superintendent," he declared. "Because of the comparatively low pay for educators, registrations at the normal schools are falling off, and some of your greatest college professors are turning to other other lines of work. If this is not remedied, the future generations will suffer."

Democracy, respect for the state, and support for those in power he pointed out as an essential. "The state and religion are what separate us from the jungle," he said.

GERMAN LABORER CONTENT WITHOUT RATION OF BEER

By Carl D. Groat. ESSEN, Jan. 23.—The myth that the laborer must have his beer to be contented is—only a myth, according to Herr Fritz Homann of the Krupp works.

Herr Homann, who speaks English like an English gentleman and without the trace of a German accent, was my conductor on an interesting trip through the famous steel plant.

"What is the situation as regards drinking among your workers," I asked.

"We abolished beer from our plant before the war, and find that its absence does not impair either the contentment or the efficiency of the workers," he replied.

DEMAND MADE FOR ECONOMY

LEADERS IN HOUSE AND SENATE URGE THAT EVERY POSSIBLE MEANS BE TAKEN TO CUT NATION'S EXPENSES.

(By United Press to The Bend Bulletin.) WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 23.—Leaders in both houses are becoming more and more insistent in their demands for economy and ruthless slicing of appropriations. ## INCREASE IN PAY IS GIVEN SOLDIERS

(By United Press to The Bend Bulletin.) WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 23.—The House today passed the bill granting pay increases of from 30 to 50 per cent to enlisted men in the navy.

As to the prohibition movement in general, Herr Homann is skeptical of its taking a hold on Germany. "Schnapps," he pointed out, are more expensive than before the war, and generally out of reach of the poorer classes, hence there is a marked reduction in the drinking of strong liquor.

"We have in Germany," he continued, "a sort of prohibition movement. There are two groups—the Blue Cross and the 'Gut Templers,' the latter an organization which comes here from the Scandinavian countries. There is in Germany, however, little drunkenness and hence little that these organizations can do. As for beer and wine, they are taken everywhere in Germany."

PROPOSALS OF CLERKS HEARD

MANY CLAUSES ARE STRICKEN OUT

Merchants' Association Agrees to 8-Hour Day and Closed Shop, But Considers Other Matters Not to Be Stipulated.

Out of many clauses constituting the proposed agreement between the Retail Clerks' union and the Bend Merchants' association, just two were accepted when the merchants, in session last night, finished their consideration of the document which the clerks had submitted. The eight hour day clause stands, and provisions which will keep the stores of the city on the closed shop basis, also hold good. Other clauses, however, were deleted one by one.

Among these proposals were provisions fixing opening and closing hours, specifying holidays to be observed, and making mandatory the taking out of a special card by extra clerks employed for short time periods. Matters of the kind, the association held, should be decided by the merchants themselves in response to public needs, rather than to be made the subject of stipulations by the clerks.

The final details of reorganization were completed when a constitution and by-laws were adopted.

Fayette was killed when the three men entered his home last, after he had ordered them to leave.
