BOILER BURSTS, FOUR ARE HURT

and shoulders, while Carroll, the engineer, was thrown to the floor and crawled out with only slight injuries. He suffered no burns. Bortin was pinned in much the same manner as McGibbon, but his burns were less severe. Leaving from the opposite side of the cab, Culler, Carroll, and Bortin avoided the boiling pool into which McGibbon had waded.

Walks With Scalded Feet.

Leaving the wrecked locomotive, the four walked nearly a mile to Carroll's home, where they rode in his auto to Bend. Bortin is in the hospital, while McGibbon is at his home. Both will recover. Culler

JOE STECHER AGAIN • CHAMP OF WRESTLERS

Sure they come back—in wrestling at least. For instance, Joe Stecher, Nebraska farm boy, is again world champion heavyweight wrestler. He regained the title he lost to Earl Caddock of Iowa, in a one-fall match, which went 2 hours and 34 minutes, at New York.

and Carroll were at work again this afternoon.

The accident to the locomotive catches the lumber company at a particularly bad time, for with the engine damaged in the fire last fall still in the Albina yards, and the new locomotive ordered from the Baldwin locomotive works lost on the way, only one engine, and that a somewhat defective one, remains to handle all the logging work.

The locomotive is worth repairing, but the first step will be the construction of a new track around the wreck so that traffic between the woods and the mill may not be needlessly hindered.

Put it in The Bulletin.
