

GRAND MARIE DORO IN "12:10"

A lonely castle, a waif of a girl, at midnight's witching hour, strange noises, creaking doors, a moving figure on a bed, are but a few of the puzzling elements that go to make this one of the most baffling mystery stories of the day.

Elms

No natural Gothic arch compares with that formed by two American cliffs, where their lofty jets of foliage shoot across each other's ascending curves, to intermingle their showery flakes of green. When one looks through a long double row of these, he beholds a temple not built with hands, fairer than any minister, with all its clustered stems and fluttering capitals, that ever grew in stone.—Holmes.

Nothing New Under Sun.

New York Tribune discovers that Burke used this expression: "I should say they did." In Charles Dickens' "Sketches by Boz," a street urchin shouts to one of two fighting women, "Put the kybosh on her, Mary." There is nothing new, not even in slang expressions.—Florida Metropolis.

Two Splendid Rules.

Thou shalt not make unto thee any false standards of farm life, nor bow down thyself to them to serve them. Thou shalt not say or do anything in vain, but have some sensible purpose in all thou shalt say or do, for the community shall not hold him guiltless that sayeth or doeth anything in vain.—Wm. Butcher.

SECURES DIVORCE ON SIXTH TRIAL

PORTLAND, March 13.—Most people are willing to give up after putting the old adage—if at first you don't succeed, try, try again—but not so with Mrs. Iona E. Davis.

Mrs. Davis wanted a divorce from husband Walter. But her suit was unsuccessful. So she tried again—and again. Still no freedom. So, Mrs. Davis started all over and her sixth attempt brought success.
