FOR THE CHILDREN

The heart of America was touched through the war by frequent appeals on behalf of the bereaved children of the various war zones. The war was cruel enough and senseless enough as it touched the grown men and women. When it came to the children, however, its cruelties seemed unforgivable. That they, innocent of all relation to its origin and causes, except for the accident of birth in this nation or that, should go hungry and cold, be driven about over the land, deprived of their fathers, and sometimes of their mothers, and made to suffer untold privation, wrung the heart of the world. Millions of dollars were poured out for their benefit, and, what was of a more personal nature, an attempt was made to give them something of the parental affection that they were missing.

At best this could have been only a poor makeshift. And yet if a letter or a little gift brought a moment of pleasure to the child, its purpose was accomplished and the effort was worth while.

All this was in connection with the war. It was a great experience, so awful, that it took all our thought, and we were ready to respond to any call that arose from it. And so, in many instances, we responded to needs that, except for the connection with the war, were no different from needs that are arising and exist every day around us.

In Oregon today there are scores of children who have never known parental care. There are not so many, we believe, who go hungry and cold, but they hunger for affection and for the tendernesses that mark the love of a father or a mother. We refer to the wards of the state in institutions here and there. For all they know it may have been war that put them where they are. Why cannot they have the same thought and attention that was given to the war children? They, too, are entitled to their little moments of pleasure.

The idea is suggested by the situation of four fine boys, whose father is dead, and whose mother's mind has become, temporarily, we trust, unbalanced. They have been placed in a state-aided institution, where they will have good care, but it will not be home. When they were left there they began making plans at once for their return, and now they are looking for letters from Terrebonne and Redmond and Bend. And there are many others.

Who wants to join the Association for the Fatherless Children of Oregon, and help by letter writing and personal visits in making them happier? There will be no by-laws and no constitution. Just send in your name, and we shall see to it that a child is assigned to you to be written to and made happier.

In Germany.

In Germany all things are mixed, and nothing's settled, nothing's fixed. One government has quite a boom, and then it journeys up the flume; another comes, and it may bust, and leave behind a cloud of dust. And old Ex Bill, he sits and blinks, and many kinds of thoughts he thinks. "They can't cut ice without a throne," he sighs, as he sits there alone; "they talk republics and the like; republics! For the love of Mike! That sort of stuff is purely rot; they'll have to send for Me und Gott." Of course you'll say his thoughts are vain, that he is neither safe nor sane, that Germans wouldn't dare to place this relic of a bughouse race upon the throne we overset, but wait a while, already yet. It's sure, when all is said and done, we cannot trust the tricky Hun. He'd do the thing we least expect, although the universe be wrecked, if thereby he could jar the foes who lately led him by the nose. And Germans want old things again, the throne, the crown, and war lord men. And so the dreams of old Ex Bill are not so wild, already still.

Electric Cooking is Best

A quick luncheon or a big dinner. Breakfast for two, or "something hot" for hungry youngsters. The Electric Range is for every-day cooking, as well as for emergencies.

The difference between an Electric Range and other ranges is that the Electric—

Gives more accurate results

Saves food

Preserves the flavor

Is absolutely clean

Uses no "fuel" in the accepted sense of the terms.

If you want to know facts about the economies of Electrical Cookery, let us explain more about the Hughes Electric Range.

NORTHROP, KING & Co's SEEDS

MINNEAPOLIS MINNESOTA

CUT the cost of living next winter by growing long-keeping vegetables in your own garden this summer.

Root crops give fine returns with comparatively little care. You can easily grow enough beets, carrots, turnips, squash and pumpkins to store your cellar. Then when fresh vegetables are out of season you will have this good food for your table at a very low cost. The soil may be utilized early for radishes, lettuce or any quick maturing crop, and then sown to your favorite root crops.

For large, full-flavored vegetables you must sow good seeds. Northrup, King & Co.'s Seeds have been bred to produce Nature's finest food. They are all carefully tested. You can be sure of their vigor and productiveness.

Your dealer is now displaying the convenient Northrup, King & Co. Seed Case. Its selection of seeds represents thirty-six years gardening experience. Let it help you select your winter vegetables now. Cultural directions on the back of each packet.
