

It is expected that fully 50 new members will be taken in at the close of the campaign now under way.

E. E. Fuller, who has been ill at the St. Charles hospital with pneumonia, is reported to be slowly recovering.

Practically all details have been worked out for the observance of Memorial Day by the post committee headed by Dr. L. W. Gatchell. Beginning at 9:30 o'clock on the morning of May 31, services will be held at the gymnasium, the Rev. J. Edgar Purdy of the Methodist church having been selected to deliver the Memorial Day address. Practically all members of the G. A. R. and Spanish War Veterans in Bend have been seen and will participate in the ceremonies, and the fraternal organizations of the city have also been invited to take part.

Immediately after the services at the gymnasium the ex-service men in attendance will march to the Pilot Butte cemetery, where brief ceremonies will be held conforming to the suggestions sent out from national headquarters. Graves of veterans of the Civil war, the Spanish American war, and the world war will be decorated.

Comrades are requested to report at the gymnasium in uniform, and to have uniforms spick and span in order to make the best appearance possible.

By the way, don't forget the big social evening which the post has set for June 3. The baked beans will be done just right, and the committee in charge of the event has worked out some entertaining stunts which it is predicted will make a real hit.

sees the light just in time and, after a brave struggle against want and temptation, is able to go to the man she loves with a clean slate.

The picture was adapted from Rupert Hughes' novel and is interpreted by a good cast, which, besides Miss Clayton, includes Monte Blue, Charles Meredith, Anna Q. Nilsson and Irving Cummings.

GUEST INHALES SOUP, EATS PEAS WITH KNIFE, BUT HE'S A GOOD SCOUT

When your Uncle Henry, from Hickory Corners, comes to visit you for an indefinite stay, takes off his shoes in your "parlor," displays weird gastronomic feats at your table, eats peas with his knife, inhales soup audibly, and otherwise offends your aesthetic tastes, don't judge him too harshly. He may be vulgar—but sincere.

When your country cousin tells friend wife you're "not such a bad feller as some folks say" you are, he probably means more than your polished city friends do, with their brazen compliments.

If you want to realize the truth of the axiom that "the only good breeding is kindness of heart, see "Poor Relations," at the Grand theater, Sunday only.

It will carry you back to the days when your heart was young, hopes still buoyant, and you had not lost your zest for the real things of life.

Florence Vidor, ZaSu Pitts, Charles Meredith, William DeVaull, Roscoe Karns and Lillian Leighton portray characters that have human appeal and who enlist our sympathies.

Where He Slips.

The man who thinks he knows everything always gets into difficulty when conditions require him to verify his information.

What He Thought.

Company had just gone and Mrs. A. had changed from her company talk to that of the every day variety. Speaking plainly she was nagging her husband. He endured it for a little while and then he said, "Maria, do you know why I call you my queen bee to the boys at the office?"

"No," snapped Maria, not the least bit mollified by the title of queen.

"Well," patiently explained Mr. A. carefully discerning the shortest way to the door as he spoke, "while we have company you make me honey all the time and then just as soon as they are gone you begin to industriously use your stinging abilities."

And then, well, then, the door closed after Mr. A.

NATURE'S VALLEY

By the side of Deschutes' gurgling waters, In the valley of silence and shade; Amid Nature's majestic profusion— Stalwart pine, Crater lake, sylvan glade! It is here that the soul goes caroling, And each unfettered thought takes a wing, As one hears gentle breezes exhaling, The advent of new-born spring.

Twittering swallow the water's crest kisses; Lambkins frolic about in the fold; The blackbird to his new bride is singing With a heart full of gladness untold; And the trees, which so lately were weeping Like an infant bereft of all care, Now o'er landscape fond vigils are keeping, Enchanting the scene everywhere.

In this valley of sunshine and shadow, Where alone, Mother Nature holds sway, There are hours full of anguish and sorrow, While again there are hours bright and gay; Which reminds us that Life's potent measure Is a compound of gladness and pain; Just as laughter and excessive pleasure Bring tears of remorse in their train. —J. W. ENRIGHT.

SHOULD WOMEN SERVE ON JURIES?

"The Woman Under Oath," Offers Remarkable Instance of This Modern Question.

Is a woman temperamentally fitted for service on a jury in a criminal case? Does feminine intuition make females better arbiters than men? Will that intuition which women are conceded to possess in a higher degree prove a surer and safer guide than mere masculine logic?

These and similar questions naturally arise in connection with Florence Reed's latest United screen vehicle, "The Woman Under Oath," which presents the remarkable case of the first woman juror appointed in a certain state. The subject is timely, public and particularly of feminine interest.

The latest form of feminine activity opens up to Florence Reed a novel role which at once provides that emotional actress wide scope for her undoubted histrionic powers and forms the basis of one of the most powerful screen dramas of recent times.

In the cast of "The Woman Under Oath," Florence Reed is supported by no less than three players recognized as leading men. They are Gareth Hughes, Hugh Thompson and David Powell.

"THE THIRTEENTH COMMANDMENT"

Ethel Clayton in Rupert Hughes' Popular Story.

What is the "thirteenth commandment"? The motion picture by that name, starring Ethel Clayton, which is being shown at the Liberty theater Sunday and Monday, answers the question thus: "Thou shalt not spend more than thou earnest." It advances a rather stern theory of living, which is especially applicable to idle and extravagant wives whose husbands are continually making financial sacrifices in order to satisfy their every whim.

In a strikingly dramatic manner "The Thirteenth Commandment" shows what is liable to happen when a wife thinks it is her sole duty to look pretty, dress lavishly and spend her husband's money. The heroine, played by Miss Clayton, Memoranda in Glass.

A reader tells us that with the use of gum tragacanth, allowing a week for drying, two sheets of glass can be joined with a sheet of paper between them, without the slightest staining of the paper. It is suggested that this provides a new and useful means of making paper weights and other glass articles with calendars, etc., imbedded in them. The gum, while still wet, appears to have stained the paper; but every trace of this disappears as the drying out proceeds.—Scientific American.

Liked the Name.

One of the government-owned dwellings near the Union station, Washington, is occupied by a stout colored woman who has converted it into a small hotel for folks of the darker race. Over the door is a signboard with the inscription, "The Annex." I asked the woman to what other hotel was her place an annex. "Oh," she replied, "dat's jes de name of my hotel. Dar ain't no other hotel 'nected with it. I Jess picked de word 'Annex' 'cause it sounds high-toned like."—Washington Herald.

Housing Conditions Are Serious and Relief Can Only Be Found In the Erection of Homes That Will Take Care of Those Who Are Seeking Places In Which To Live

People are searching the city from end to end to find places in which to live. The fact is that people who want to live here and co-operate in the upbuilding of our city are unable to find places in which to live. As the man who wants to locate here is obliged to seek a location in some other city, we lose. The more people who are compelled to go to other places, the greater the loss to this city will be. No one can question how strained the housing conditions are. Construction has been stopped for two years. The large number of houses which have customarily been erected have always been taken up as fast as built. The need for these houses has been as great during the past years before and, as they were not erected, it has caused such a shortage as now exists.

BUILD NOW AND DO YOUR PART

Your interests, present and future, demand that you give serious consideration to the matter of having a home of your own.

Sickness may come, and at any moment. Not only may it take you temporarily from your employment, but it may end your days of salary earning.

In a few days or weeks, illness causes a loss of income that is felt when your bills must be paid. Consider the future of the loved ones if death should remove you—the wage earner of the family. Sometimes, even with your full salary every month, it is hard to pay the rent. This being the case, how will the rent be paid when your income ceases to provide for the wants of the home? How much easier it will be for those you love and desire to protect if a home is left for them. It will mean much to them to have a home, rent free. The time for you to consider providing this home is now. Every day's delay is a mistake. Be wise and take the first step today toward the ownership of a home.

OWN YOUR HOME—START BUILDING NOW IT IS NOT TOO LATE
