Riches of the Incas.

The image of the sun, which the Incas worshipped, "was engraved on a massive plate of gold of enormous dimensions, thickly powdered with emeralds and precious stones." An effigy of the moon, the sun's supposed wife, was a vast plate of silver.

Cosmic Dust at Bottom of Sea.

It has been only lately discovered that cosmic dust forms layers at the bottom of the deepest seas. Between Honolulu and Tahiti, at a depth of 2,350 fathoms—over two miles and a half—a vast layer of this material exists.

TUESDAY--WEDNESDAY

Worth Trying, Anyway.
 If you want to insure yourself good luck, wear your new dress for the first time to church, so sayeth old Doctor Lore, Doctor Folk Lore, to be more exact. Maybe the old gentleman was laughing up his sleeve the way he said this, believing in his heart that the good luck would follow attending church; but then it's just as well not to go to analyzing the whys and the wherefores of these old superstitions, because after all they are "just for fun."

Enthusiasm Wins.

The great deeds of the world, the triumphs of the race, have not been accomplished by men who were content merely to hold their own or "just to get along," but by men who were dominated by their purpose, filled with an evermastering enthusiasm which swept everything before it as a mountain torrent sweeps aside or overleaps every obstacle that would bar its progress in its mad rush to the sea.—New Success.

Paradox.

Matherson surprised his friends at the club one evening by rising to leave much earlier than usual. "Why this haste?" said one of his friends. "The night is still young." "I know," replied Matherson; "but I promised my wife to be home by ten-thirty tonight and if I miss the last train I shall catch it!"

Mother Love.

A mother's love is indeed the golden link that binds youth to age; and he is still but a child, however time may have furrowed his cheek, or silvered his brow, who can yet recall, with a softened heart, the fond devotion, or the gentle chidings, of the best friend that God ever gives us.—Rowee.
