

1920 FALL SHOWING OF

SUITS COATS DRESSES

A GAIN, the J. C. Penney Co., with its enormous buying power stretching from the length and breadth of the country, comes forth first in the showing of its splendid array of Autumn Suits, Coats and Dresses.

Appreciating the unprecedented patronage we had last year and during the Spring and Summer of this year, we are better prepared this season to accommodate the needs and desires of every woman in Bend and Central Oregon with our exceptional showing of new Fall Garments. Quality and price figure most prominently in these garments. Owing to the enormous purchasing power of the J. C. Penney Co. with its corps of expert buyers in direct touch with the New York garment markets, the Bend buyer has the same purchasing accommodations as the woman in New York. We feel safe in saying that never before have we been so fortunate as now in being able to give value at such remarkably low prices as this Fall. We cordially invite you to drop in. Our saleslady will be happy to show you any garment.

A Word or Two About the New Fall Things

New Fall Coats

There is a great variety of styles shown in coats. The plush are being shown in thirty-three to forty-eight inch lengths; the short sleeves being made with a large flare. The tendency in neck style is toward the cape collar. The coats are tailored in both the loose and belted models. The cloth coats vary in lengths from forty inches to forty-eight inches, and are in both the loose and belted models. The cape collar idea prevails in the cloth coats as well as the plush coats. The outstanding materials used are: tinsel-tone, silvertone, gold-tone, velour, chamois-cloth and Bolivia, with one cloth as popular as another.

We have just received a large shipment of these new coats and it will be a distinct pleasure to talk to you about them.

New Fall Suits

There is a wide variety shown in Suits. Every woman, no matter to what her tastes tend, she should obtain a garment to her liking. A majority of the suits incline toward the tailored models. The coats are from thirty-two inches to forty-eight inches long. The Fall skirts are about the same length as those shown during the last Spring and Summer. The prevailing shades will be navy, brown and taupe; while a few are being shown in burgandy, rookie and sand. The prevailing materials are tricotine, poiret twill, serge, velour, tinsel-tone, silvertone and gold-tone.

New Fall Skirts

Indications point to fewness of silk skirts this season. The wool skirts, however, are very attractive. The novelties such as stripes and plaids, are in beautiful color combinations with a great number in pleated models. The knife pleating, box pleating and side pleating predominate. These pleating effects are especially effective as they do not muss when sitting in them as do the accordinian pleated effects. Styles are very effective in plain materials. Brown tones in novelties predominate. The plain materials such as tricotines, serges and poplins, are shown mostly in navy.

New Fall Hats

We are now showing on our balcony a clever assortment of Women's and Misses' Hats. The prices of this head wear will charm you as will the simplicity and smartness.

New Fall Wool Dresses

Dresses—The new fall dresses are made in attractive styles along long lines and many of them are elaborately trimmed in embroidery and braid, some with bugle bead trimming. The three-quarter sleeve length is the most popular. Navy is the leading shade with brown and taupe popular second.

In silk dresses satin and charmeuse lead as to materials. There are models from the extreme fitted model to the long line model, with a general tendency toward fullness over the hips.

Japanese government changes radically, there is nothing to prevent her "peaceful occupation" from becoming permanent. The present Russian government will require years to become strong enough to wage successful war against so powerful an enemy.

Japanese diplomacy, however has already got itself into an incongruous position by admitting that the present Siberian government was entitled to recognition.

Ostensibly the Verkhne Udinsk government was purposely set up to comply with Japan's demand for a stable government. The Japanese, realizing the power of the coalition, negotiated with them regarding an armistice, thereby tacitly admitting their right to recognition.

Japan however, is expected to charge that the Verkhne Udinsk regime is a tool of Moscow, unless by favorable concessions it proves its friendliness to Japan and hostility to the Bolsheviks.

WILL JAPAN MOVE OUT OF SIBERIA?

British Wait For Nipponese To Declare Present Policy; Alibi Expected.

(By United Press to The Bend Bulletin)
 LONDON, August 3.—Foreign office officials and diplomatic officials here are filled with curiosity over Japan's next declaration of policy regarding Siberia, which is due shortly after the last Czecho-Slovak contingent sails from Vladivostok.

That Japan will fill her former pledges to evacuate Siberia upon the departure of the Czechs, Poles, Rumanians and other war prisoners, is regarded as highly improbable. In fact, foreign office officials do not consider such an action debatable.

What interests them more is the substance of Japan's new alibi, by which she will seek to justify the continuation of her occupation of Russian territory.

Earlier official statements emanating from the foreign office at Tokyo indicated positively that Japan's only purpose of maintaining forces in Siberia was to "protect" the Czechs. Later declarations referred to the necessity of protecting Japanese subjects and covering the Korean frontier against the intrigues of the Koreans domiciled in adjacent Russian territory. The last declaration promises evacuation when a stable government has been established.

Recently, according to foreign office reports, Japan sent 10,000 additional troops into Russia, presumably as relief forces for the soldiers there whose enlistments had expired.

However, none of the time expired men have been withdrawn, which makes the status of the newly arrived contingents more of the nature of reinforcements.

The general opinion in official quarters here is that Japan has made herself the dominant factor in the far east and expects to retain her hold and position in Siberia until action by the Russian government renders such position untenable.

Unless combined European and American pressure forces Japan to loosen her hold upon Russia's eastern territories, or the policy of the

GALA DAY AT MARION AS HARDING IS NOTIFIED

Perhaps no more impressive frolic was ever staged by the Republican party leaders than when the notification committee, supported by about thirty thousand Republicans from all over the United States, called upon Senator Harding at his home in Marion, Ohio, on July 22, to officially notify him of his nomination and listen to his speech of acceptance. The picture shows Senator Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, reading the notification. The arrow points to Senator Harding.
