THE COX CHARGES

We have waited with interest to see how James M. Cox was going to deliver the goods on his charge that the republicans had their plans all made to raise a huge fund with which to buy the presidency. Fortunately a senate committee has been available to go into the charges at once, and it has done so. According to all that has so far come before the committee there were no goods to deliver, and Cox has been shown to have been mistaken—to put it most mildly and generously.

The charges were made unequivocally. Mr. Cox did not hesitate over them in any way. Indeed, the man's assurance and apparent self-confidence gave them their greatest weight. Now the facts are told. The Cox proof is not forthcoming. The charges fall flat.

The republican committee is trying to raise from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 for the legitimate and necessary expenses of its campaign. Unless those members of the committee who have testified are plain liars, they have no idea of seeking the larger sum mentioned by the democratic nominee.

Can we not have a campaign on a higher plane than Mr. Cox yet seems willing to place it?

Tuesday will see, in the words of that gifted author and eminent playwright, William Shakespeare, the "school boy, with his satchel and shining morning face, creeping like small unwillingly to school."

Popular election of senators, prohibition and women's suffrage. Is there anything else waiting now to get into the constitution?

Transients

We act as though we planned to stay on earth for countless years, but soon we'll have to move away to some uncharted spheres. A little while we charge around, and put up ice and grass, then to the village planting ground in solemn state we pass. And there till time is done we'll wait, and no emotions heed; so what's the good of all our hate, our envy and our greed? The evil thought corrupts the mind and turns the blood to bile; so let our thoughts be always kind—we're here so short a while! Bad passions spoil this world of ours and make the spirit sick; far better deck a foe with flowers than soak him with a brick. If there's a neighbor you detest, and whom you'd gladly slay, admit forgiveness to your breast, and send him a bouquet. All bitterness is a mistake; try kindness instead; for any morning you may wake to find that you are dead. Each evening when I go to roost I spring a prayerful spiel for those by whom I've been traduced, who for me hatred feel. For I would hate to die tonight and in the silence start across the darkness, to the light, with malice in my heart.

AT THE MOVIES

Parents who give their children unwise gifts will find an object lesson in Pauline Frederick's new Goldwyn production, "Bonds of Love," which will be presented at the Grand theater Monday and Tuesday. The adoring father brings home a new toy for his child every night. On the evening that the story opens he has brought a little hatchet. And the 7-year-old boy immediately finds uses for the new tool. Jimmy discovers his uncle's automobile at the entrance to his fathers' home. Again the hatchet comes into play on the front tires. And when uncle comes out to drive off, he discovers that he has a perfectly flat tire. And Jimmy, like George, didn't deny his guilt in the matter.

Would you like to see Mary Pickford, as the star of a three-ring circus, walk the tight rope? And scandalizing the village school on "visitors' day" by reciting a rather startling bit of verse of her own making?

Miss Pickford is coming to the Liberty theater Sunday and Monday in her famous success, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm."

Thousands have laughed over this classic of American girlhood in book form. Miss Pickford has made youthful, lovable Rebecca live upon the screen. Selling soap for prem-

PAULINE FREDERICK

Bonds of Love

Bonds of Love! We have all felt them. And we will all find our feelings reexpressed in the remarkable Goldwyn photoplay, starring Pauline Frederick. With all the skill of the screen dramatist's art, this new play has been put together. With all the beauty of an art director's imagination this new photoplay has been pictured. You surely will see it!
