A Scoop for Mannheimers Men's Suits and Overcoats at Reconstructed Prices.

The men's clothing market is breaking your way—and we hurry to spread the news that Winter Suits and Overcoats for men are coming down in price at this store.

We are the first to publish this reduction—and the first to practice it—even though the wholesale market has not reduced its prices to us.

The people of this city want the good old clothing costs to come back again—and there is no use of a clothier holding our against public demand. We have taken issue with Henry Ford—and reduced the prices of every stitch of clothing in this store—and we have every reason to expect that the people of Bend are with us.

for the higher bid because the taxpayers desired it, and took occasion to express their disbelief in the wisdom of putting down a pavement of only two inches in thickness.

After the tabulation of the bids in the early part of the meeting, discussion of the merits of the rival paving compounds was carried on by Mr. Welton and Mr. Reid, the former briefly stating his case and urging that he be given the benefit of the 5 per cent differential allowed by the Oregon law in favor of Oregon contractors against companies from out of the state. This point was brought out in connection with his bid on bitulthic pavement, which he offered to lay at $1.68 a yard, the total bid on this material being $68,046.01.

Suit Not Contemplated.

Mr. Reid referred to many cities in California, as well as other points in western and eastern states, where Willite has been found satisfactory, and laid much stress on the contention that the use of copper sulphate in combination with the asphalt, and the introduction of a fine mineral aggregate, produces a pavement much more durable than the type most nearly approximating the patented material. He mentioned that the city had already entered into an agreement with him, and said that, relying on this, his company had gone to heavy expense in purchasing and shipping machinery to Bend.

Mr. Welton was asked, following the meeting, as to whether or not he contemplated starting any legal action because of the refusal of the lower bid, a possibility which had been mentioned at a previous council meeting.

"There's nothing of the kind in my mind—now," he said.

He intimated that he considered his case would be an excellent one if he cared to take it into court.
