

DIAZ AND CARRANZA HEROES AFTER DEATH

Former Presidents, Once Opposed, Now Popularized By Street Vendors of Statuaries.

(By United Press to The Bend Bulletin) MEXICO CITY, Nov. 18.—Mexico has no hall of fame in which to display her heroes—heroes who are never deemed such until they are dead. But there are half a dozen vendors of plaster of paris statuettes, men who wend their way through the capital's streets, displaying their wares on the sidewalks. Not only do they set the style in heroes, as they place a new bust on the market from time to time, but they provide an interesting insight into the fickle reactions of a revolutionary republic. A year or so ago there appeared the plaster likeness of Don Porfirio Diaz, the president whose overthrow raised the nation-wide cry of revolutionary liberty. Don Porfirio's bust found a ready sale. He is a hero now. There have been many revolutions since Don Porfirio's time. The other day the statue vendors placed a new bust on the sidewalk. The face was familiar, as the original had been one of the best hated men in Mexico. There were whiskers, finely moulded in the plaster. It was Venustiano Carranza.

Big turkey shoot, Sunday; Bend trapshooting grounds; shotguns and rifles. Everybody welcome.—Adv. 138-142c

She Doesn't Believe It. Whenever an elderly woman is reading and gives a contemporaneous snort, it means that in the story the heroine has just rejected the hero because he is rich.

CONFIDENCE

Confidence is the life of trade; the bond between employer and employe; the open road from seller to consumer; the builder of good will; the creator of credit and the heart of finance.

Through all our dealings with you we have tried to create confidence in our organization, not merely an organization to make money, but an organization to do big things in a big way. In a measure we feel that we have succeeded—our record shows it.

We believe that with a thorough feeling of confidence, both the merchant and the consumer will come to understand that there is more in their business relations than just dollars and cents.

We have never done any misleading advertising, have never quoted misleading prices—prices are of no importance unless there is value to back it up. We are now making special prices on every article in the store, so we can clean up our racks, and have good, clean, new merchandise to show you next year.

We have always made good our promises. Come in, it will be our pleasure to show you our merchandise.
