TIMES NOT GETTING BAD

Notwithstanding all the rumors of closed shops, less employment, reduced wages and the like, readjustment of our national economies is proceeding normally. No organization has its finger on the pulse of affairs—not even the general government—as completely as the federal reserve board, and the federal reserve board says that deflation is proceeding as it should without any indication of a panic.

We all know that prices were far too high. Even steel, the basic industry next to farming, was twice as high as it ought to be. These prices had to come down and, as they fell, with the certainty of lower dividends than during the old profiteering days, when net earnings were no good unless they were at least 30 to 50 per cent, it was only human nature to howl. We are now hearing the dismal howling of the fellows who know that they must soon submit to competition—the life of trade—and to reasonable profit.

The fact is that business is keeping up. Our exports are still large—they increased the last two months over previous months. Bank clearings are only a small percentage below flush 1919, notwithstanding that prices—wholesale prices, anyway—have gone away down from 1919, meaning that less money is passed in transactions of equal size. Money rates are receding.

Prices are lowering normally, all are agreed. But they won't go down to pre-war figures for a great many years, if ever. And the man and woman who won't buy shoes and clothes and other necessities until the prices sink to pre-war figures will have to emigrate to where clothes and food and other necessities are not needed. Such a person is only doing his best to bring on a panic and bad times for himself.

Half Awake.

Compared with what we ought to be, we are only half awake.—William James.

More Pep Required.

Junior was out walking with his grandfather, who became tired and walked along slowly. Junior was in a great hurry to get home, so, running some distance ahead, he turned around and yelled, "Come on, grandpa put a little more pep in your legs."

Had Picked Him Out.

Little daughter came home from school one day during her first term and announced with the utmost assurance that Lester was her beau. It was rather a shock to the family, but the mother said: "How do you know he is? Did he tell you so?" And much to her relief Louise replied: "No, he doesn't know it; I just chose him."

Rule to Attain Old Age.

Sir George Reid said: "I have aimed at health and happiness, and when confronted by a formidable obstacle I have first tried to knock it over; failing in this, to get around it; if not to get under it; and if these maneuvers failed I have been content to lie down in its grateful shade, lauding it as a beautiful blessing in disguise."

The Usual Luck

I bought a hundred-dollar suit, one day when I was feeling flush; and people said I looked the plute, arrayed in costly dark green plush. I proudly loafed around the town, and told how much my raiment cost, and then the price of clothes came down, and life became a killing frost. Then Jinks and Jimpson fell in line, and so did Smith and Brown and Jones, and bought them suits the same as mine, and only dug up sixty bones. I to the tailor went, in tears, and handed him some hot abuse, whereat he smote me with his shears, and roundly soaked me with his goose. I bought a handsome limousine (and placed a mortgage on my shack), and it was painted Brewster green; two thousand plunks it set me back. Then for a week I rode around, inflated with a foolish pride, on vain and giddy errands bound; I gave her gas and let her slide. And then the price of cars was cut by makers who were fond of fun, and Johnson, Perkins and McNutt bought cars like mine for half the mon. And so no smiles my face bedeck, I spring no glad and joyous yips; I always get it in the neck when I go forth on shopping trips. No matter what I buy today, the price goes down tomorrow noon; then wiser shoppers go their way, and save the groat and picayune.
