

ANNIVERSARY OF PILGRIMS IS KEPT

CELEBRATION IS HELD IN PLYMOUTH

Vice President Elect of Nation Takes Part in Ceremonies, and Senator Lodge, Descendant of Pilgrims, Gives the Chief Address.

(By United Press to The Bend Bulletin)
 PLYMOUTH, Mass., Dec. 21. — Three hundred years ago today, in the bitter cold of a northern winter, a little band of intrepid men and women, seeking freedom in religious thought and action, disembarked from their staunch little vessel, the Mayflower, and started the first settlement in the wilds of what is now Massachusetts.

The 300th anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims was celebrated here today almost on the very spot on which the first settler set foot. Ceremonies commemorating the day were carried out in the shadow of historic Plymouth Rock.

Hundreds of direct descendants of the Pilgrims were here to do honor to their ancestors.

The ceremonies were staged in Old Colony theater, in which were assembled scores of prominent men and women of the nation and representatives of foreign countries.

Among those who took part in the ceremonies were: Calvin Coolidge, vice president-elect; Sir Auckland Geddes, ambassador from Great Britain; General Robert Georges Nivelles, representing France, and many others.

Louis K. Liggett, who presided at the meeting, presented Vice President-elect Calvin Coolidge, who, in a brief address, paid a tribute to the work of the Pilgrim tercentary commission, which arranged the celebration, and spoke on the landing of the Pilgrims.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, a Pilgrim descendant, made the principal address of the celebration on "The Pilgrims of Plymouth." He painted a vivid picture of the landing of the little band of settlers in a wild and unknown country, in which they were beset by many dangers in their efforts to establish homes. Outlining their reasons for seeking homes in an unknown country, Senator Lodge described their trials in the years in which they sought to gain a living from the virgin soil. He told of their mode of governing themselves and of their struggle against the Indians.

Following Senator Lodge's address, the audience, led by Rev. A. B. Whitney of the First Church of Plymouth, knelt in prayer for several minutes.

REAL TURK NOT MONEY MAD

Recognizes There Are Higher Things in Life Than Practicing Buying and Selling.

The real Turk, unlike the so-called mongrel Turk, does not have to impress his sense of superiority on others. And, although the latter is always eager to do business with you, according to Mr. Herbert Gibbons in Asia, the real Turk is often quite indifferent.

Some real Anatolian Turks are merchants and sit in the bazaars. But they will not go out of their way to make a sale, and they really do not care whether you buy or not. Often they ignore strangers; sometimes they rebuff them. When you meet with this type in the bazaars where all the Jews and Gentiles are hard after your money, it is like a dash of cold water in your face.

Once in a little open shop I saw a rug that attracted me. I started to Children at the Bread Kitchens

Three and a half million children in eastern and central Europe wait, gaunt and pinched like these, at the American kitchens for the hot soup and bread that mean life to them. In the winters since the Armistice, America has been the one friend that had food to give them. It is a common sight in Europe today to see a child five or six years old whose head has not healed. With a healthy well fed baby the skull should close before two years. America must see these children through the rigors of another winter, and to that end eight great relief organizations have combined into the European Relief Council. They seek to raise $33,000,000 to save this generation of Europe from death by starvation and the diseases that come with under-feeding.

enter, but the crouched figure on the mat put out a long-fingered left hand, grasped firmly my ankle, and removed my foot outside the threshold. I thought there must be some superstition about which foot went first; so I tried the other. The same left hand proved again its strength. All the while the merchant did not speak or look up. His right hand was stringing beads, and he was smoking a nargile.

He simply did not want to bother with me, and my shoe told him that I was a frangee (European). Later I got to know that old bird, and we laughed over stories together. But he never asked me to buy anything, and I did not want to risk his friendship by making a second try for the rug. There are more important things in life than buying and selling.

"SQUEEZE" POPULAR IN CHINA

What the Western World Calls "Graft" is Practiced by All Classes in That Country.

One trait firmly imbedded in the Chinese character which the foreign business man and the housewife both have to contend with is the weakness for "squeeze." It is said by foreigners that the Chinese merchant, coolie, politician, fisherman, chauffeur and beggar would rather make $1 by "squeeze" than $10 by the same amount of brain work or manual labor.

Squeeze is Chinese for graft. It is a word in that International Far Eastern tongue known as pidgin-English. But squeeze is something more than graft. Its political phase might be termed graft, and that form of squeeze is what makes the military governors of the provinces and the politicians of Peking and Canton so fat. Most Chinese politicians would have been acceptable in the eyes of Julius Caesar, and squeeze is the reason for some of the compulsion in China.

Squeeze is the Chinese translation of "as much as the traffic will bear." It is a factor in Chinese business, as much as supply and demand, or profit and loss.

Quaint New England Expressions.

There are many quaint expressions peculiar to New England, some of which are heard only in Rhode Island or in places where their use has been perpetuated by former residents of this locality.

"Won't you take off your things?" is a common invitation to the caller in this state, though in some parts of the country it would be unusual. When a housewife changes her abode, she moves her "things," and when going on a journey, she packs her "things" in a grip.

In the south county it frequently rains "pitchforks" and sometimes "cats and dogs." The most intensive expressions of the native, however, are that it is "raining like all Sam Hill" or like "all possessed."—Boston Globe.

A Cold Snap in Siberia.

In some parts of Siberia most of the food sold in shops is in a frozen state, milk being sold in long sticks and meat backed with axes. The men walk around with beards esked with ice, and women incased wholly in wool or fur. No children are to be seen in the streets, the cold is so intense.

FROZEN TO DEATH

An unfortunate young man froze to death near Crescent the other day. If the people of Bend had known of his plight scores of cars would have hurried off to his rescue. Money would have been spent freely to save him.

In Europe millions of children are dying of cold and starvation. Shall we not spend as freely to save them? Ten dollars will carry a child through the winter. Give quickly.
