IN CASE OF FIRE

Complaints which have been heard from property holders, members of the Bend fire department and from the telephone company since the fire of Sunday morning which destroyed the garage of L. O. Taylor on Tumalo avenue, suggest the possibility of closer cooperation which may do much to prevent loss. Simple rules to secure greater efficiency and speed in turning in alarms have the endorsement of both the department and the telephone company, but it remains to the people of Bend to see that these rules become operative.

Do not report a fire to central. Call 401 and report to the fireman answering the phone the location of the fire, giving, if possible, some well known building in the vicinity or the name by which the section of the city concerned is commonly known. The street number is not necessary, for the driver of the fire truck will see the fire as soon as he is in the neighborhood.

If you are merely asking for information, keep away from the telephone.
If at any time you should wish to call up the station for purposes other than to report a fire, ask for "two rings on 401."

Reasons for these rules are obvious. It has been the experience at the telephone office that when a fire starts the lights flash on the switchboard so rapidly that the operator has little opportunity of taking care of the calls. A large proportion of these calls are from persons who wish to know the location of the fire. The operator does not know, but several minutes of her time may be taken up in telling questioners that she is not allowed to give out information, before she answers a call which is intended to bring out the department.

First hand information is always best. For this reason the person reporting a fire is connected with the department. As soon as the operator hears the word "fire" she makes the connection with the fire station. Sometimes the person calling hangs up and again tries to report to the operator and the chance for a speedy alarm is postponed.

One ring at the fire station brings every man in the building running to his station. If the call is not to report a fire, much inconvenience is caused, which would have been eliminated if two rings had been asked for.

On the occasion of Sunday morning's fire the first two of these rules were repeatedly broken, it is stated at the local telephone exchange. Once the department learned that a fire was in progress, one of the speediest runs ever made in Bend brought the fire fighters to the scene in record time. The house was saved, but the garage, destruction of which might also have been prevented, was a total loss as the result of delay in getting

Nights At Home

I always spend my nights at home, remote from strife and care; a pillow soft supports my dome, my feet rest on a chair; and so I read some gripping pome or volume ripe and rare. My aunts and grandmas play some tunes, or blithely sew and knit, while merry children, full of prunes, throw many a gladsome fit, till lullabys their mother croons—and so the calm hours flit. And when the morning comes I read how men who roamed by night fell victims to the auto's speed, were shot up in a fight, or touched for all their chicken feed by some unholy wight. I read of kidnapped maidens fair, and parents in distress, of youths who lose, in White Way glare, the number of their mess, of misdeeds in the gamblers' lair, and crimes no man dare guess. I say, if those who gallivant, would spend their nights at home, with grandma, niece and maiden aunt, and read some helpful tome, the crime of which the peelers rant would disappear like foam. I'd rather be with bards who think than with the men who prance to places where the glasses clink, and there are games of chance; a book is better than a drink, or than a tango dance. And when at dawn I leave my bed I caper and I sing, no hold-up, with a bar of lead, has spoiled my larboard wing, I do not have to stitch my head, or wear it in a sling.

into communication with the fire house.
The telephone company, through its local manager, has evinced the desire to cooperate fully in making fast alarms possible, but cooperation is necessary. It is to the interest of the people of Bend to see this cooperation is given.

FEW IN WHITE HOUSE WILL GIVE UP JOBS

Employees In Presidential Mansion Feel No Fear As Time Approaches For Administration Change.

(By United Press to The Bend Bulletin.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 8.—Clerks, messengers and engineers in the executive offices of the White House feel secure in their jobs even with the swift approach of March 4. Their total is 35, 22 of whom are clerks, nine messengers and four engineers. When President-elect Harding's secretary visited the White House in December, he inspected the offices and great was the conversational stir upon his departure.
"He's going to cut down the force in line with the policy of economy," said one.

"All the democrats will be fired sure," volunteered another.

But later the excitement died down and old timers in the offices pointed out the fact that few changes in the personnel are made just because a new president or new administration comes in. For instance, when President Wilson first assumed control of the White house there were only three changes. Of course a new secretary came in and as Taft's stenographer also left, Charles Swem was appointed. Warren Johnson, the third new man, filled a vacancy that had existed for some time.

It is reported about the offices that Swem will leave the White house with Wilson to assist him in his writings. The president has always shown great favor for Swem and his need for a stenographer upon his return to civil life and the proposed writings is apparent. Other than Secretary Tumulty and Swem, none of the employees have definitely stated that his post-inauguration position.

It is an interesting fact that only two of the 32 employees are women. With the full enfranchisement of women it is possible they will demand fuller representation in the president's offices.

To The Parents of Deschutes County:--

Every father or mother knows how impressionable is the mind of a child. And every parent worthy of the name is seeing to it that the boys and girls acquire the right kind of habits during this plastic period.

One of the most desirable traits that can be inculcated is that of thrift. It is just as easy to develop the habit of saving as it is to train your boy or girl to be a spendthrift.

Start a small savings account for each child. Encourage each to add every nickel and dime. In years it may mean a college education to that child, and in any event, it's splendid training. It opens their eyes to the value of money.

Just remember that thrift is the solid rock on which to build character, success and happiness, not only for the individual, but for the entire community.

The Central Oregon Bank stands ready to help you in this training. You can obtain one of our dime pocket banks, or on opening a one dollar account you may obtain one of our safe type banks taking either coins or currency.
